Action Is Taken Despite Soviet Bloc Opposition

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) — The United Nations took its first step Saturday night to insure that outer space will be used solely for peaceful purposes. But the Soviet Union threatened to take no part in the U.N. effort.

The action came amid reports that a compromise agreement was being reached on Algeria as the 1958 General Assembly dragged toward an end.

Informed sources said the compromise will urge negotiations between France and the Algerian rebels, but will drop any specific reference to the Algerian provisional government.

This was expected to win the required two-thirds majority in the Assembly.

VOTE IS 59-9

By a vote of 59-9, with 19 abstentions, the General Assembly approved a resolution sponsored by the United States and 19 other countries to set up an 18-nation outer space study committee.

It will investigate the possibilities of international cooperation in utilizing outer space for the benefit of mankind rather than its destruction.

Only the Soviet bloc opposed the resolution. The Soviet Union said there were not enough Communist countries on the study committee, and served notice it would not participate in its work.

Earlier, the Algerian resolution failed in the Political Committee to win a two-thirds majority.

In other actions on its closing day the Assembly:

1. Authorized Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold to spend up to 19 million dollars in 1959 for operation of the U.N. Emergency Force in the Middle East. The vote was 43-9 with 26 abstentions. The nine no votes came from the Soviet bloc, which refuses to pay any costs for UNEF.

2. Turned down any suggestions for partition of Southwest Africa, a former League of Nations mandate now under rule of the Union of South Africa. The vote was 40-21 with 11 abstentions on a resolution calling also for new efforts to reach agreement with South Africa on making Southwest Africa a U.N. trust territory.

3. Approved a resolution to let Hammarskjold determine whether recommended changes should be made in the U.N.'s information program

Jena Man Killed In 2-Car Crash On Crest Of Hill

JENA (Special) — A 30-year-old Jena man was killed instantly in a two-car headon collision just after noon yesterday about three miles south of here on the Nebo road.

State police identified the crash victim as Ellis Lee Ganey Jr.

Also injured was Elbert Webster, 23, of Good Pine. The Negro was taken to a Jena hospital with head cuts and facial lacerations. His condition was reported not to be serious.

According to state troopers, the fatal smash-up occurred when Ganey, driving a 1958 Chevrolet, attempted to pass a car on a hill crest and rammed into a '51 Cadillac driven by Webster as it came over the hill. Both cars were demolished.

Funeral services for Ganey will be held at Fellowship Baptist Church Monday at 10 a.m., conducted by the Rev. S. B. Spinks. Burial will be in Belal Cemetery by Hixon Brothers Funeral Home of Jena.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Katherine Ganey; a son, Rodney Houston; a daughter, Tanya Darlene, all of Jena; three brothers, Sherman and Alvin, both of Jena; Glendale, Trout; five sisters, Mrs. Juanita Humphries and Miss An-

Monkey 'Blazes Trail' In Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A sturdy monkey outfitted like a jet pilot rode a missile nose cone through space early Saturday only to be swallowed up in the Atlantic at the end of its historic voyage.

But the Army hailed the swift trip of the surprise rocket passenger, named "Li'l Old Reliable," as an important contribution to a research program aimed ultimately at sending man into space within three years.

Ships and planes criss-crossing the cone's impact area 1,700 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral found no trace of the wedge-shaped chunk of metal and its valuable voyager, and the search finally was called off les than six hours after the 4 a.m. launching of the Jupiter missile carrier.

There was no indication of whether "Li'l Old Reliable" survived when the cone plunged back into the earth's atmosphere from about 300 miles up and smashed into the ocean.

It was certain, however, that the wee space traveler lived through at least 13 minutes of the 15-minute hop. But something went wrong in the recovery package that should have suspended the nose cone just below the ocean's surface and it appeared "Li'l Old Reliable," was a goner.

The little primate, weighing less than one pound, was the fourth living creature to be shot into space in a rocket's nose cone. Three mice were hurled aloft last summer in Air Force Thor-Ables, but none were recovered.

The Army kept its experiment a closely-guarded secret until it was certain the Jupiter had gotten off without a hitch. At first officials said only that the cone carried a primate—which could have meant a human.

But later it was disclosed that the cone's passenger was a male squirrel monkey, an intelligent creature native to Central and South America. The Army said 'Li'l Old Reliable," was given his name by doctors because he passed his preflight tests with flying colors.

For his momentous voyage, the space monkey wore a helmet on his tiny head and a foam rubber pad on his chest. With his knees drawn up over his stomach, Reliable sped through space in a capsule 10 inches long and 13¾ inches wide. The capsule was attached to the back of the nose cone.

Instruments were attached to the cone's passenger to transmit his heart reaction, blood pressure, breathing, pulse and voice re-

State May Double Tourist Business

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Louisiana residents may have a share in the state's newest potential billion dollar industry right in their own home-town.

From New Orleans' famed French Quarter to Shreveport's winging state fair, Louisiana has the proper natural resources to double its tourist business within two years time, according to commerce and industry department officials.

Louisiana's natural attractions are presently bringing in some $500 million annually from the 80 million Americans who now take a trip every year and spend an average of $400.

Increased productivity and shorter working hours have turn Americans into the world's most active tourists and the U. S. into the world's best tourist market.

Commerce and industry department spokesmen say more of the travelers could and should see Louisiana:

"We can double our present revenue from tourists in two years time," says department executive director Curt Siegelin, "if the people of the state push for more tourists and become aware of the tremendous importance of tourist revenues."

Snow, Sleet Skip Lightly Into District

Old Man weather yesterday gave the northeast Louisiana area a generous sampling of his winter wares — snow, sleet and freezing rain, but the outlook for today has been narrowed to overcast skies and very cold temperatures.

Slippery streets and mist were reported as contributing factors in several accidents in the Twin Cities.

Snow which flourished in neighboring Arkansas, skipped lightly through the district, but early in the evening apparently had halted short of the Twin Cities proper. The CAA Station at Selman Field on the outskirts of the Twin Cities reported a very light trace of snow.

Flurries were reported at other nearby points including Bastrop, Ruston and Farmerville.

Rain, freezing mist and a trace of sleet summed up the weather picture generally in Monroe and West Monroe yesterday.

The low temperature recorded at Selman field was 25 at 10 p.m. with the mercury still on the downtrend. The high was 39 at midnight Friday. Precipitation yesterday was gauged at .06 of an inch.

HOPING

In many a home eager youngsters —hoping for a white Christmas season—scanned the landscape through ice-flecked windows for the feathery flakes that would not descend.

Autos, rooftops, bridges, trees and fences took on a generous coating of ice, and brown, discarded leaves of fall were made shiney and brittle with a frigid glaze. Road crews sanded down some bridges and applied salt in areas to provide better traction for vehicles.

Roads throughout the district were reported by highway officials as being in "fair condition."

Snow and sleet were reported in Bastrop off and on all day causing the bridges and overpasses to be glazed with a slippery film. In the late afternoon the mercury went down to 27 degrees.

It also snowed and sleeted in Farmerville and Ruston, but failed to whiten the ground. Roads were said to be in good condition.

Oak Grove and Lake Providence were visited by snow flurries mixed with sleet. The low in this area was recorded at 28 degrees yesterday afternoon. Bridges were frozen over, but main roads were open with light traffic.

Sporadic rain and sleet kept the

Federal Agents Charge Eight In Car Theft Ring

MIAMI (UPI) — The FBI announced Saturday the arrest of six men and two women in connection with a large scale car theft ring operating between Georgia, Alabama and Miami.

The FBI charged the eight with conspiracy to violate the federal interstate transportation of stolen motor vehicle statute. Officers said six cars, stolen in Alabama. Georgia and Jacksonville, Fla., were involved.

Authorities recommended bonds of from $1,500 to $10,000 for the eight who will receive hearings Monday before U. S. Commissioner Roger Davis.

Those arrested were: Kenneth Earle Cohen, 29, Miami; Theron Payton Burrow, 38, Randolph County, Ala.; James Billy Edison, 27, Gadsden, Ala.; Luther Scruggs, 33, Huntington, W. V.; Daniel Steven Waters, 50, Miami Beach; Samuel Kobrion, 48, Miami Beach; Mary Edna Hubbard, 49, Brockton, Ala.; and Edna Jewel Pierson, 24, Maplesville, Ala.

Russia Again Orders Allies From Berlin

PARIS (UPI)—Russia Saturday renewed its ultimatum to the Western Allies to get out of Berlin in notes timed to coincide with the gathering of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and other NATO foreign ministers in Paris for a conference on the crisis.

Authoritative Western sources said the note repeated, in somewhat politer language, the Soviet demand made last Thanksgiving Day that the United States, Britain and France withdraw from West Berlin and that the Western sectors of the city be turned into a "demilitarized free zone."

In Berlin today, East German Communist Party officials hinted the Reds would speed up their campaign to oust the Allies.

GET NOTE

The Russian note was handed by the Soviet Foreign Office in Moscow to the ambassadors of all NATO nations. According to authoritative sources the Russian note:

Repeated that the Western half of Berlin must be turned into a "free city."

Proposed reduction of military forces by East and West.

The sources described the note as "simply as catalogue of earlier Soviet proposals to the West."

The notes were a Soviet technique used before. Last year, on the eve of the Paris NATO summit conference attended by President Eisenhower and other Western chiefs of state, the Kremlin issued notes warning of "retaliatory" action against any nation with U.S. atomic bases on its soil if war came.

$1,000 Is Taken In Burglary Here

Approximately $1,000, and possibly more, in checks and cash was stolen yesterday in a burglary of the General Gas Corp. in West Monroe.

The building at 708 Trenton St. was entered through a rear window next to the riverbank.

The butane company's safe was beaten open, and the contents scooped out.

Two employees discovered the entry at 6:30 a.m., and notified West Monroe police.

An intensive investigation was launched by West Monroe police and the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department.

Louisiana Gains Nearly $1 Billion In New Industry

BATON ROUGE, La. — (UPI) — Louisiana has added nearly one billion dollars in investments for new plants and additions to existing industries during the past three years.

That is the report today from Curt Siegelin, executive director of the state department of commerce and industry.

Siegelin said plant expansion during 1958 totaled some $197 million which raised the total investments over the past three years just shy of the billion dollar mark.

However, one brighter note in this year's investment figures is the diversity. A total of 37 parishes shared in the industrial expansions this year.

"We are particularly pleased," said Siegelin, "that industrial development came to many primarily rural parishes."

Leading all parishes in total investments in plant facilities during the year was Iberville with $33,285,000. Second was west Feliciana, Caddo was third, followed by Ascension.

From the standpoint of permanent employment created by industry during the year, East Baton Rouge led with 619 jobs, Orleans was second with 590.

Altogether 64 new industrial

POLICE SEARCH HALL

Bomb Hoax Fails To Ruffle Faubus

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Police Saturday night barricaded the Houston Music Hall for 20 minutes where Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus was scheduled to speak while they searched the building for a bomb.

They found no bomb, however, and Faubus appeared unruffled by the incident.

Police Inspector R. C. Clark ordered the search after the police department received an anonymous telephone call that a bomb had been planted and was timed to explode while Faubus spoke in a "Bill of Rights" program.

Clark said after the search turned up no bomb that it was probably a prank. "Just someone trying to have fun," he said.

Faubus was already inside the building when the search was ordered. He joked with newsmen immediately after the doors were opened but said "It's somewhat disgusting that something like this would come about."

"I can't fathom anyone so low as to make a bomb threat over the fact that someone was making a speech regardless of his views, race of religion."

The Arkansas governor said the

Icy Blasts Spread Deep Into South

By UPI

A severe snowstorm swept across Dixie and snarled traffic Saturday as one of the bitterest early season cold waves in recent years expanded deep into Texas.

There was no sign of relief from bone-chilling temperatures as the U.S. Weather Bureau posted cold wave and snow warnings over the lone star state. In addition, weathermen issued heavy snow warnings of six inches or more for most of South Carolina, and provisional warnings for North Carolina and Virginia.

New snow squalls developed, meanwhile, on the eastern shores of Lakes Erie and Ontario, already buried under deep snows from the past week. New snows also spread from the northern Rockies into the plains, and from the Great Lakes eastward across the western slopes of the Appalachians.

At least 69 persons have die[d] from causes attributable t[o] weather since the cold and snow onslaught began in the norther[n] plains about 12 days ago.

Snow and sleet were reported in Bastrop off and on all day causing the bridges and overpasses to be glazed with a slippery film. In the late afternoon the mercury went down to 27 degrees.

It also snowed and sleeted in Farmerville and Ruston, but failed to whiten the ground. Roads were said to be in good condition.

Oak Grove and Lake Providence were visited by snow flurries mixed with sleet. The low in this area was recorded at 28 degrees yesterday afternoon. Bridges were frozen over, but main roads were open with light traffic.

Sporadic rain and sleet kept the

Federal Agents Charge Eight In Car Theft Ring

MIAMI (UPI) — The FBI announced Saturday the arrest of six men and two women in connection with a large scale car theft ring operating between Georgia, Alabama and Miami.

The FBI charged the eight with conspiracy to violate the federal interstate transportation of stolen motor vehicle statute. Officers said six cars, stolen in Alabama, Georgia and Jacksonville, Fla., were involved.

Authorities recommended bonds of from $1,500 to $10,000 for the eight who will receive hearings Monday before U. S. Commissioner Roger Davis.

Those arrested were: Kenneth Earle Cohen, 29, Miami; Theron Payton Burrow, 38, Randolph County, Ala.; James Billy Edison, 27, Gadsden, Ala.; Luther Scruggs, 33, Huntington, W. Monroe Stores Set Late Hours

Monroe retail merchants yesterday announced that stores will be kept open nightly — except Sundays —through December 23, to accomodate Christmas shoppers.

The holiday buying rush moved into full swing here during the past week, a spokesman for the merchants said.

Russia Again Orders Allies From Berlin

PARIS (UPI)—Russia Saturday renewed its ultimatum to the Western Allies to get out of Berlin in notes timed to coincide with the gathering of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and other NATO foreign ministers in Paris for a conference on the crisis.

Authoritative Western sources said the note repeated, in somewhat politer language, the Soviet demand made last Thanksgiving Day that the United States, Britain and France withdraw from West Berlin and that the Western sectors of the city be turned into a "demilitarized free zone."

In Berlin today, East German Communist Party officials hinted the Reds would speed up their campaign to oust the Allies.

GET NOTE

The Russian note was handed by the Soviet Foreign Office in Moscow to the ambassadors of all NATO nations. According to authoritative sources the Russian note:

Repeated that the Western half of Berlin must be turned into a "free city."

Proposed reduction of military forces by East and West.

The sources described the note as "simply as catalogue of earlier Soviet proposals to the West."

The notes were a Soviet technique used before. Last year, on the eve of the Paris NATO summit conference attended by President Eisenhower and other Western chiefs of state, the Kremlin issued notes warning of "retaliatory" action against any nation with U.S. atomic bases on its soil if war came.

$1,000 Is Taken In Burglary Here

Approximately $1,000, and possibly more, in checks and cash was stolen yesterday in a burglary of the General Gas Corp. in West Monroe.

The building at 708 Trenton St. was entered through a rear window next to the riverbank.

The butane company's safe was beaten open, and the contents scooped out.

Two employees discovered the entry at 6:30 a.m., and notified West Monroe police.

An intensive investigation was launched by West Monroe police and the Ouachita Parish Sheriff's Department.

Chilly And Bleak View For Many

This weekend's bitterly cold, bleak weather portends what is typically known as a "White Christmas" for Monroe.

To the fortunate, snow would give an almost perfect setting to Christmas here this year, but come fair weather or foul, all indications are that the majority of the people in our midst will find Santa Claus generous and kind.

Such may not be the case for many, many others who through

Louisiana Gains Nearly $1 Billion In New Industry

BATON ROUGE, La. — (UPI) — Louisiana has added nearly one billion dollars in investments for new plants and additions to existing industries during the past three years.

That is the report today from Curt Siegelin, executive director of the state department of commerce and industry.

Siegelin said plant expansion during 1958 totaled some $197 million which raised the total investments over the past three years just shy of the billion dollar mark.

However, one brighter note in this year's investment figures is the diversity. A total of 37 parishes shared in the industrial expansions this year.

"We are particularly pleased," said Siegelin, "that industrial development came to many primarily rural parishes."

Leading all parishes in total investments in plant facilities during the year was Iberville with $33,285,000. Second was west Feliciana, Caddo was third, followed by Ascension.

From the standpoint of permanent employment created by industry during the year, East Baton Rouge led with 619 jobs, Orleans was second with 590.

Altogether 64 new industrial

POLICE SEARCH HALL

Bomb Hoax Fails To Ruffle Faubus

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Police Saturday night barricaded the Houston Music Hall for 20 minutes where Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus was scheduled to speak while they searched the building for a bomb.

They found no bomb, however, and Faubus appeared unruffled by the incident.

Police Inspector R. C. Clark ordered the search after the police department received an anonymous telephone call that a bomb had been planted and was timed to explode while Faubus spoke in a "Bill of Rights" program.

Clark said after the search turned up no bomb that it was probably a prank. "Just someone trying to have fun," he said.

Faubus was already inside the building when the search was ordered. He joked with newsmen immediately after the doors were opened but said "It's somewhat disgusting that something like this would come about."

"I can't fathom anyone so low as to make a bomb threat over the fact that someone was making a speech regardless of his views, race of religion."

The Arkansas governor said the

Icy Blasts Spread Deep Into South

By UPI

A severe snowstorm swept across Dixie and snarled traffic Saturday as one of the bitterest early season cold waves in recent years expanded deep into Texas.

There was no sign of relief from bone-chilling temperatures as the U.S. Weather Bureau posted cold wave and snow warnings over the lone star state. In addition, weathermen issued heavy snow warnings of six inches or more for most of South Carolina, and provisional warnings for North Carolina and Virginia.

New snow squalls developed, meanwhile, on the eastern shores of Lakes Erie and Ontario, already buried under deep snows from the past week. New snows also spread from the northern Rockies into the plains, and from the Great Lakes eastward across the western slopes of the Appalachians.

DEATHS RISE

At least 69 persons have died from causes attributable to weather since the cold and snow onslaught began in the northern plains about 12 days ago.

About 34 persons died in homes fires or from fumes from overburdened furnaces, at least 27 on snow and ice-covered highways, while at least 8 persons froze to death or died from exhaustion.

In Chicago, three adults died in an apartment house fire that drove 25 persons into near-zero weather. And at Brookport, Ill., three children perished in a fire that began around an oil heater in the living room of their farm home.

Snow, freezing sleet or drizzle spread across the Southland from Texas and Arkansas through Tennessee and parts of Mississippi and Alabama. Traffic quickly became fouled up in the snow areas of Dixie. State police in Arkansas, where snow up to 10 inches fell, closed several highways in various parts of the state and many autos and trucks were ditched and abandoned.

At Little Rock, Ark., a boy was struck and killed by an auto on ice-slicked streets.

An icy bridge at Dallas, Tex., caused a pileup of 12 cars during the morning rush hour, including a police car. An ambulance dis-

U.S. Scientists Are Assigned To Stations Abroad

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department finally launched Saturday night its long promised program for attaching top flight U.S. scientists to embassies abroad.

President Eisenhower had announced the plan more than a year ago—in a speech reacting to the first Soviet Sputnik triumph—as a means of strengthening ties between science and diplomacy.

The State Department said Saturday night it had chosen "seven distinguished scientists who will serve as science officers in the United States embassies in London, Paris, Bonn, Rome, Stockholm and Tokyo." Two will be in Paris, one being designated as a deputy.

In the near future science officers will be assigned also to the Soviet Union, India, and two or three countries in South America.

able to go out into a snow —if there is one —to enjoy the many play pleasures that it brings. Their little feet would soon become blue-numb with cold because of worn-out shoes and lack of cold weather footwear. Their little fingers would not be able to dip into a fascinatingly fluffy snow bank to make snowballs or snowmen. Their little bodies would shiver with cold as the wind cut through their inadequate clothing.

In most cases, their little tummies would be so hunger-ridden they could not enjoy even a warm and clear Christmas day, much less a snow-white Christmas.

LONG TIME

It's been a long time since there has been a White Christmas in the Twin Cities, and there may not be one this year. But, come what may, there is always one thing you can count on. That is the fact that there are a number of men, women and children in our community who can have nothing like a merry Christmas and good cheer during the season without aid from such unselfish organizations as the Good Fellows.

For a number of years, the Good Fellows have solicited contributions of cash, food, clothing and toys and have used it wisely and effectively to help the needy of Ouachita Parish at Christmas time. Good Fellows hav. been fortunate in having the support of a community of compassionate men, women and children who have been willing each year to share their good fortune with their fellow man.

However, it seems that the need is always greater than the supply.

In this year's Good Fellow drive, a total of $1,919.50 has been contributed, while the goal is $4,500. Contributions of money may be sent to Good Fellows, Monroe News-Star — Morning World, Monroe, La., and at the same time, donations of food, clothing, toys or money may be made by telephoning FA 2-2170.

But, there is another type. One received yesterday reads:

"Dear Good Fellows:

"Inclosed you will find a $10 check to use for the good of the poor. We appreciate your work for the poor and always like to donate to an honest organization which we believe yours to be."

SIGNED

It was signed by a man and his wife from one of the sections of the Twin Cities from which a number of requests for aid are received each year. This couple has had the opportunity to witness the good that Good Fellows are doing and are happy to help

Such a contribution will go a long way to help in a case such as this:

"I am writing for whatever you could do for my baby and me to make our Christmas happy. My baby will be two years old in January. We need food and clothing, and the little girl would appreciate some toys.

"My husband walked off and left us and gives us five dollars a week for her. We have no stove. Someone let me use one. We have no lights, and I went to the welfare and they turned me down.

"I trust you can help us to have a merry Christmas, please sirs."

Food and clothing appear to be the greatest need of the community's less fortunate this year. They need and want essentials of life.

Writes another:

"Will you please bring me some groceries and clothes for Christmas. I am a widow lady and have a 16-year-old crippled boy who has never been able to walk. I've had to care for him all these years on a welfare check, and I do the best I can.

"He wears size 14 blue jeans and size 18 boys size shirts. I would also be pleased with some cloth to make me a dress or two. As a matter of fact, I'll be proud of anything you might see fit to bring us."

State May Double Tourist Business

a high return on a low investment—with little risk at all involved.

The state's investment in the push to attract travelers, is comparatively modest to the half-billion dollar return it hopes to bring in.

The Louisiana Municipal association is starting the campaign with a tourism convention—first of its kind in the nation—here Monday.

Louisiana's tourist commission hopes to follow this with a week long, expense paid tour, of the state by a select group of travel writers from U. S. journals, newspapers and television stations.

The tour would be financed, however by private—not state—contributions.

But the travel editor's tour coupled with the department's usual national advertising campaign is just a start, says Diegelin.

"What we really have to get across is the importance of tourist revenue to the people of the state," he says adding:

"They've got to understand that an Iowa couple eating dinner at Antoines are not just benefiting New Orleans or one New Orleans restaurant."

Tourist dollars, according to Siegelin, are spread more evenly through the economy. They also lift part of the sales and gasoline tax burden from the state's residents.

Department of commerce figures show that two dozen tourists a day in a community are comparable to an industrial plant with an annual payroll of $100,000.

But beyond the tourists lies the additional attraction of industry. "Witness," says Siegelin, "Florida and California. Right on the heels of the tourists came the new industrial plants."

Mayors Proclaim Little Rock Week

The proclamation, issued yesterday by J. Allen Norris of West Monroe, and W. L. (Jack) Howard of Monroe, focused attention on a fund drive by the Ouachita Parish Citizens Council, and a scheduled appearance here of Arkansas Governor Orval E. Faubus.

A total of $25,000 in contributions is being sought in Ouachita parish to be given to the Private School Corporation in Little Rock, the Rev. H. L. Driskell, council president, said.

Gov. Faubus will be guest of honor and principal speaker at a "Little Rock Day" rally here Wednesday, Dec. 17.

The proclamation stated, "There has been a growing concern on the part of people everywhere in the United States at the growth and power of the Federal Government and the corresponding encroachment on the power and rights which have, heretofore, been accorded to the states. . ."

ENCROACHMENT

It continued, ". .Nowhere has this encroachment on states' rights been more evident in recent times than in the city of Little Rock, Arkansas, where the power of the Federal Government has brought about the closing of that city's public schools. . . ."

The proclamation added that ". .the mayors of the cities of Monroe and West Monroe deem it appropriate to set aside and designate the week beginning Dec. 15, 1958 as "Little Rock Week" in the cities of Monroe and West Monroe and to urge all citizens to support the cause with their contributions. . ."

On the day of Faubus' visit a parade will be staged in the downtown areas of the Twin Cities. It will assemble on Pine in West Monroe in front of the First Baptist Church at 2 p.m. and will get under way at 2:30 p.m.

The procession will move down Pine to Trenton, continuing South on Trenton to Coleman, east to the old bridge, crossing the river, down DeSiard to North 4th, and north on 4th to Washington where it will break up. Persons from throughout northeast Louisiana are expected to take part, with around 100 automobiles anticipated in the entourage.

A 7:30 P.M. rally is scheduled in Neville High School auditorium, at which Faubus is expected to outline the battle against integration at Central High School in Little Rock.

The proclamation added that ". .the mayors of the cities of Monroe and West Monroe deem it appropriate to set aside and designate the week beginning Dec. 15, 1958 as "Little Rock Week" in the cities of Monroe and West Monroe and to urge all citizens to support the cause with their contributions. . ."

On the day of Faubus' visit a parade will be staged in the downtown areas of the Twin Cities. It will assemble on Pine in West Monroe in front of the First Baptist Church at 2 p.m. and will get under way at 2:30 p.m.

The procession will move down Pine to Trenton, continuing South on Trenton to Coleman, east to the old bridge, crossing the river, down DeSiard to North 4th, and north on 4th to Washington where it will break up. Persons from throughout northeast Louisiana are expected to take part, with around 100 automobiles anticipated in the entourage.

A 7:30 P.M. rally is scheduled in Neville High School auditorium, at which Faubus is expected to outline the battle against integration at Central High School in Little Rock.

HISTORIC SHORT LINE

It was completed in 1855 from Colon to Panama City, paralleling the Panama Canal. It is owned by the Panama Canal Co., a U. S. corporation operating the waterway under government direction.

Predicts Yuletime Accidents

CHICAGO (AP) — Come Christma party season, strong spiritis will deny death its holiday.

The National Safety Council is predicting between 500 and 650 traffic deaths for this year's four-day Christmas weekend. During the last four - day Christmas holiday in 1956, 885 persons died or received fatal injuries in traffic accidents.

Fifty - five per cent of all the Christmas holiday accidents last year involved a drinking driver, says the National Safety Council. It maintains office parties are one of the important culprits.

Speed was a factor in 72 per cent of the smashups.

Against this, authorities in many areas plan a new method of attack called "selective enforcement." Police manpower and patrol cars will be increased, and concentrated in known high accident sections to head off the drinker or the speeder before he harms himself and others.

Judges are expected to met out heavier than usual fines to these drivers and slap some in jail for the duration of the holiday season.

According to the Safety Council, the four horsemen of motorage mayhem are darkness, speed, alcohol and pedestrian errors.

Here are their scores:

Fifty - four per cent of traffic deaths last year occurred at night.

Thirty - eight per cent of them involved a driver exceeding the speed limit.

Thirty per cent of them involved a driver who had been drinking.

Among pedestrian fatalities, 50 per cent of the victims were crossing between intrsctions. Another 17 per cent stepped from behind parked cars.

Little Theatre

We had wonderful attendance at BUS STOP and every one - that is nearly every one - was careful to get there on time.

Among the out of town visitors were Mrs. Colleen Dent from Baton Rouge, Mrs. Lois Montgomery from New Orleans, and Mr. Elliot Bain also from New Orleans. From El Dorado came the three enthusiasts who are working for a Little Theatre there - Mr. and Mrs. Kinnard and Miss Ruth Reed - very attractive people. Miss Reed works for station KTVE, being other things, their weather girl. We are not very fond of the weather she brought down with her. The Monday night hostesses had planned a camellia tree for the coffee table. When the cold front nipped the camellias, they substituted red carnations - strikingly effective.

Bus Stop having headed for the terminal, we're gassing up for our next production - the biggest we've ever attempted - big cast - big orchestra - big expense - big problems - big fun! Don't miss being in this one. Come to tryouts Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, December 17, 18, 19. They will be so entertaining to watch that you may be carried away and step right up to the stage yourself. We need eight principals, five other leads, and seventeen speaking parts. If you can dance and sing, so much the better, but we're going to have wonderful help with the choreography in the person of Nat Santoro, a young man who has worked with Little Theatre in both Houston and Shreveport. He will do some feature dancing in Pajama Game.

On Broadway Janis Page, John Raitt, Eddie Foy, Jr., and Carol Haney were stars in this play; in the movie version you saw Doris Day and John Raitt. Watch this column for the names in our own constellation.

Tryouts for The Little Theatre's musiçal comedy, "Pajama Game", will be held Wednesday December 17, Thursday December 18 and Friday December 19 at The Selman Playhouse at 7:30 P.M. "Pajama Game" deals with Union troubles in a pajama factory. There are 30 parts in the show, about 8 of which are principals, 5 are leads and 17 speaking parts.

Anyone interested in trying out must be at the theatre all three nights unless arrangements previously made with the director. One night will be devoted to testing for vocal talent, one night for dancing talent, and one night for acting talent.

The male lead will be tested with songs such as "Hey There" and "There Once Was A Man". The female lead will be tested with songs, "There Once Was A Man" and "I'm Not At All In Love". "Gladys" will be tested with "Her Is". The dancing will be tested with "Steam Heat" music. "Hernando's Hideaway" is one of the hit tunes of the show.

On Broadway Janis Page and John Raitt starred. The supporting players were Eddie Foye, Jr., and Carol Haney. Doris Day and John Raitt did the movie version.

Monroe's production will be done "in the round" or arena style. The show will be staged by Ivan Uttal. "Slick" Lawson is to be the music director. The choreography will be done by Nat Santoro of Shreveport and Houston.

He did the choreography for "The King and I" and "Pajama Game" in Houston. He, also, will be a featured dancer in the local show.

Park Avenue Ditch

The delay in closing the ditch in Park Avenue which was opened to permit the installation of a new water main is inexcusable. It has been against the best interest and safety of the citizens of Monroe.

Park Avenue has been torn up and dangerous for travel for three months. Long after the main was placed in position, the ditch, which has been called the "Big Canyon" by many, has remained open, while one reason after another has been given for the delay.

In reality there is no excuse for this dillydallying.

The contract, according to officials involved, called for completion of the project by November 25. It is now 19 days past that time and the job still has not been completed and there is no indication when all the filling work will be finished.

On several occasions, officials involved in the project have been asked when the job would be completed and the street made safe for traffic. Each time the reply has been—"only a few days longer." The few days continue to stretch on and on.

At first the excuse for the delay was given as a misunderstanding about the base width of the concrete and asphalt on each side of the ditch. Apparently, this was resolved. When the project still was not completed, weather conditions were given as the reason.

But the weather could not have been to blame for the delay either. Generally, during the period involved, the weather has been excellent, particularly for construction work.

What is the real reason for the delay? No one seems to know; at least if they do they are not talking.

However, one thing stands out clearly and emphatically; it is the responsibility of the Monroe Commissioner of Streets to see that the city streets are kept up and that projects involving them are completed on time.

In the Park Avenue project, the commissioner should have acted promptly to have the street repaired, regardless of what agency or group handled the original contract. After the work had been completed, the commissioner could have taken whatever recourse was necessary to collect the costs from the proper source.

This has not been the case in this project. As a result, many motorists who are forced to use Park Avenue have ridden daily with the possibility of a wreck which could have caused injury or perhaps death.

The commissioner owes it to the people of Monroe to see that this project is completed immediately. Then a full explanation on the cause of this unnecessary delay should be forthcoming.

Americans Can Do

"Americans are a can-do, will-do people. They believe in progress and growth. They believe in ever-higher income and earnings for all people. And they want tomorrow to be better than yesterday."

These are the words of an influential member of the United States senate.

If we are to have ever-higher income and earnings and if tomorrow is to be better than yesterday, we must have an expanding and improving economic machine. That means we must have tax policies that will encourage investment and risk-taking. It means that we must have a climate that is favorable to the growth of businesses of all kinds and sizes.

Whether we will have such a climate will depend in a large part on the actions and attitudes of the members of congress.

Objection To Disposal Of Nuclear Waste Predicted

Sooner or later the United States — and every other Nation engaged in nuclear activity — can expect to find growing opposition to the way it disposes of radioactive waste materials in the sea.

For the time being the amount of radioactive waste is negligible by comparison with what it will be when industry begins to rely more and more on this new pioneer source of power. Experts in the field who are not worried now believe considerably more research is essential before any additional radioactive waste is dumped into the sea.

The Atomic Energy Commission has established a set of standards for disposing of these materials which it insists completely meet the requirements of human safety. British standards are less rigid than ours. But Russia, on the other hand, takes the position that none of these waste should be cast into the sea.

AEC has already licensed six private firms to dump waste in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and is about to grant the first license for sea disposal in the Gulf of Mexico. These licenses, it should be noted, provide only for getting rid of low - level waste — those which gives off extremely minor amounts of radiation.

Before such a license is granted interested parties can protest and ask for a hearing before the AEC. This has been done on two occasions — in California and in Connecticut. By voluntary agreement with the State of California AEC stipulates that no waste will be dumped in less than 12,000 feet of water. By contrast, a Houston, Texas, firm is being given a license to dispose of waste in 6,000 feet of water in the Gulf.

Under the AEC licenses these materials must be packaged in such a manner — usually in reinforced concrete — that they cannot float to the surface. But the commission does not force the licensee to guarantee that these packages won't break open their underwater graves at some future date. In fact, AEC believes this might be a good thing since it would allow the natural processes of diffusion and dilution to come into play and prevent any significant buildup of radioactivity.

At one time it was believed that 19 ocean "trenches" around the world — some over four and a half miles deep and thousands of miles long — might be the ideal burial grounds for radioactive waste. However, surveys have shown that these are not troughs of stagnant water and in many instances would be unsuitable for disposal of waste containing anything much stronger than low-level radioactivity.

Soviet Russia reported at the recent Geneva conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy that it found in a study of one such "trench" in the Pacific that even at the greatest depth a change of water takes place in as short a time as five years. As a result, the Russians claimed, dangerous materials with long - lived radioactivity, will be liable to break loose and escape upward into the upper water. It is the Soviet position that under these conditions marine life would become radioactively infected and form a biological chain reaction which would end up in the food of human beings.

This view is also supported to an extent by Dr. B. H. Ketchum of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in this country who points out that there is a kind of biological elevator in the sea which could bring radioactive materials from the depths to the surface. Ketchum says sea organisms in the Bikini test area of the Pacific concentrate fission products to the point where some have beeen found to have 470 times more radioactivity than the water itself.

Under the British set of standards for disposal a pipe line simply carries radioactive liquid wastes two miles beyond the high water mark where it is spilled into the Irish Sea. These wastes are only mildly radioactive, however, and the main fission product wastes are concentrated and stored inland. Under their inspection program the British have marked and studied some 35,000 fish. In no case has there been found any increase in radioactivity which might cause concern.

While there is always the risk of an accident, even in peaceful uses of nuclear energy, experience so far has been exceptionally reassuring. The atomic energy industry, already employing hundreds of thousands of people, is the safest of all industries. Its accident rate so far is the lowest of any industry.

The most serious accident on record occurred when a reactor at a British plutonium factory "burned - out." There were no casualties and no one suffered ill effects.

Storage of radioactive materials is a big problem. The United States alone over the past 14 years has accumulated 60,000,000 gallons of radioactive elements stored in more than a hundred indestructible steel tanks. The cost so far has run to $65,000,000. Some of these elements will remain dangerous for decades, other for centuries. And in the case of plutonium, for at least 24,000 years.

It has been estimated that 42 years from now — on the basis of what world uses of peaceful atomic powers are expected to be in the year 2,000 — the amount of waste will require 100,000 acres a year as "burial grounds." And this holds true only where the most compact methods of disposal are used, such as fusing the waste in glass.

One scientist at Geneva put it this way, "The tombs of radioactive waste are becoming as elaborate and expensive as those for the mummies of the Pharaohs.

Soviet Officer Uses Soldiers In Big Swindle

MOSCOW (AP)—Red Star Saturday told the story of an army officer who reaped 200,00 rubles in a big swindle by using soldiers under his command for private work.

Worse still, said the army newspaper, the officer pulled the wool over the eyes of Communist party officials who visited the area by "pampering them with regal treatment."

Red Star, in publishing the expose, demanded intensified efforts against "loss of Communist party principles" in the army.

The accused officer was identified only by the name Parkhomenko. The newspaper said he has been removed from his command and kicked out of the party. He was charged with using soldiers to do such things as build bridges, repair roads and cut timber for various organizations and stuffing the profits into his own pocket.

Muscles account for about 40 per cent of the body's weight. Heaviest muscles are the buttocks, which are extensions of the thighs.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Free Press Must Earn Without Taking Subsidy

The first essential of a free press is the ability for publications to earn expenses without depending upon subsidies. The moment a newspaper is forced to accept a subsidy from a political party or a government or a group of rich men for continued existence, then it ceases to be free. Except in those countries where the press depends upon advertising can it be politically and socially free, not because advertisers are idealists but because they cannot afford to mix their business with their product. Just as many Democrats use soap as Republicans and just as many Republicans use automobiles as Democrats. In fact, even Socialists wash their faces.

Thus, the logic of the situation rather than the virtue either of the advertiser or the newspaper publisher has kept our press singularly free of outside control. Thé great editors of the 19th and early 20th centuries, before the press faced radio and TV competition, William Randolph Hearst, Joseph Pulitzer, William Allen White, Henry Watterson and I could list dozens of others, would just as soon tell a heavy advertiser to jump into a lake as to take his check. They were men of singular independence and ran their newspapers as they chose without regard for official approval or social relationships.

Also, they were members of a proud calling, important in the affairs of the country and surprisingly unafraid. Their principal task was that of being a constant critic of the government. It was the newspapers which performed many of the tasks which congressional committees do today. Unafraid, their reporters were out to catch the thieves in public office and it was newspaper editors and newspaper cartoonists who exposed the sanctimonious stuffed shirts who posed as saints and robbed the poor. Tom Nast and F. B. Opper, to mention two great names, served America as any soldier in the field. Lincoln Steffens, Charles Edward Russell, Upton Sinclair and dozens of other daring men freely spoke their minds and saved human beings and the country.

That was a wholesome function of the press and still is, but to maintain this strong position the press must be financially independent. It must be able to say to an advertiser that if he does not care for the way the paper is managed, he can take his wares elsewhere. It must be possible for newspaper editors and publishers to avoid entangling friendships. It means that each newspaper group is a fraternity of men who respect each other's integrity and work for something more than their money pay.

If American newspapers do not seem to be as courageous as they used to be, there are reasons and the reasons are not far to seek:

1. The cost of operations of a newspaper has gone up beyond reason, principally because of labor costs and the cost of paper. Labor costs rise as the press is increasingly proletarized by labor unions which now dominate the working staff in all departments, including the editorial. Also, it has become increasingly difficult to fire employees which means that deadheads can continue to hold positions not because of ability but because of union protection. One of the most severe difficulties of current newspaper management is the inability of management to tell a reporter to go to some other newspaper where his wares would be more welcome. Perhaps that is why there are no newspaper writers of the brilliance of Edgar Allan Poe and O. Henry who did find editorial refuge in the old New York Sun. Today, such men would take their union pay, work 40 hours a week on a newspaper and spend the rest of the day being a press agent for some restaurant or a presumptive star.

2. Another difficulty is government censorship of news. Were there no columnists, daring, not afraid to be called liars, government officials would find ways of so manipulating the news as to make all publications, newspapers, magazines, radio and TV, creatures of government press agents. The columnists still break through this very tight band which the government has set about the truth. This difficulty arises out of the permanent war during which government officials take advantage of public nervousness to protect their own errors and their own lies.

Bone Infections Are Revolutionized

Penicillin and the sulfonamides revolutionized the outcome of infection of the bone (osteomyelitis). This disease has not been eradicated but its victims no longer spend months in a hospital undergoing treatment or leave with disfiguring scars resulting from mutilating operations.

Osteomyelitis is caused by bacteria such as streptococci or staphylococci. In the past, many of the afflicted were children; the microbes reached the bone via the blood stream from infection elsewhere in the body. Nowadays accidents are the most common cause, particularly the compound fracture in which one end of the broken bone protrudes thru the skin.

The staphylococcus is the worst offender because it is capable of eating into and destroying a large area of this tissue. Shortly after the micro-organism's invasion, the individual develops chills, fever, rapid pulse, and prostration.

The source of trouble is suspected immediately because severe pain is felt over the end of the involved bone close to a joint. The area is exquisitely tender and the overlying skin swollen. Redness does not appear unless the infection spreads beyond the bone.

X-rays are not a reliable guide early in the course of the disease because bone destruction does not show up for a week or more after the onset of the disease. This was a handicap to the physician of old because the infection had an opportunity to spread widely before detection. The only treatment at that stage was extensive surgery.

Nowadays, antibiotics are used immediately. The surgeon is likely to make a small opening to allow the pus to escape so the infection can be brought under control before extensive bone destruction takes place. Blood transfusions and intravenous fluids may be needed to bolster strength and prevent dehydration. If the disease recurs or extensive scar tissue prevents healing, a more extensive operation may be required.

Vitamins Help To Youngsters In Many Ways

STANFORD, Calif. — (UPI) — Vitamins help a youngster mentally as well as physically, a Stanford University research team reported after a four-year study of some 2,000 school children in Merced and Santa Cruz counties in central California.

About half the participants received regular doses containing most of the known vitamins and minerals needed for good health. The other half received dummy pills which looked real but contained neutral substances.

Investigation showed that the vitamin-fortified younsters outgrew the others slightly in learning ability; had an "edge" in physical fitness; showed greater endurance; were slightly superior in growth rate; appeared likely to have less tooth decay, and had a better attendance record.

Enthusiasm In Israel Is High

TEL-AVIV, ISRAEL — There is something to be said for first impressions. If a psychiatrist should tell me to blurt out whatever popped into my head after a day in Israel, it would be: "Theodore Roosevelt."

Old T. R. is the American exemplar of the strenuous life who found everything "Bully!" and who, when the spirit moved him over some vista of the Wild West or a glorious sunrise in New York or Washington, would throw back his head and bellow: "Hurrah for God!"

This is too boisterous to be a very good rendition of the serious spirit of the Israeli, but it will do for a starter. Enthusiasm is the keynote here. These people are zealots in religion, firebrands in patriotism, hungry hunters in pursuit of knowledge and eager beavers for hard work. The most telling single statement about the two million Israeli is that virtually all of them in this arid, narrow, front-line country are here by personal choice and decision. Considering how many hundreds of millions of persons on the five continents and the hundreds of islands stay where their parents whelped them, and grouse about it, you feel an electric contrast in these voluntary pioneers.

From the upper floors of any Tel-Aviv building you can get a clear-day view of the enemy frontier in Jordan. Many biggish ar'illery pieces could lob a shell into the heart of Israel's capital city which has the dry, unfinished hustling look of a postwar boom town in the American Southwest. There is hardly a place name in this New Jersey-sized nation without its story of an Arab raid or a battle in what the people call the War of Liberation.

Today there is no civilized country without its special kind of stress and tension. To go further, I doubt if any historical age was as tranquil as we in our self-pity like to suppose. Coming here on the plane, I read a fragment of an autobiography by Edmund Wilson, the literary critic, who regarded his father's generation (1862-1923) as victims of a period in which they "were subjected to dizzying temptations, overpowering pressures, insiduous diversions of purpose, and the casualties among them were terrible. Of my father's close friends at college, but a single one was left by the time he was in his thirties: all the rest were dead —some had committed suicide." The elder Wilson worshipped Lincoln, who lived in the immediately preceding generation, as "a great lawyer who was deeply neurotic, who had to struggle through spells of depression."

My point is that no people or generation deserves any special credit for living under pressures (which are universal and timeless); the credit derives from how well and gallantly the troubles are borne. Well, perhaps the least remarkable thing about the Israeli is their military preparedness. All males from 18 to 49 are in service, subject to instant call; and all girls of 18 are under a selective conscription which, in a much more literal sense than we knew in World War II allows a female to "release a man for combat." Military readiness, whether done ill or well, is self-preservation, and not extraordinary, but a much more remarkable thing in the Israeli is the way in which they bet that their country, surrounded by blood enemies and beset with natural handicaps, is here to stay. All immigrants are given free courses in Hebrew, which means that alien languages here are being phased out of existence. Premier Ben-Gurion has agreed to meet with any or all Arab representatives to discuss any subject — except one: the existence of Israel, that one being above question.

Self-sufficiency, rather than expansion for living space, appears to be the policy in being, quite apart from what the national leaders say or do. A research group from the U. S. Department of Agriculture is here with the idea, seemingly justified, of learning things about the use of arid lands for forestation. A remarkable husband-wife team of scientists here, the Doctors Hugo and Elizabeth Boyko, have executed a fascinating flip-flop on the stubborn subject of desalting water for irrigation of dry lands. The dune areas of the world are about 3.2 billion acres, or around one-third of the land area, and productivity would, of course, be multiplied if fresh water could be brought in. But the Boykos have up-ended the problem by experiments which prove that something like 200 species of plants will grow if properly treated with salt water. According to the Israeli government report:

"When Dr. Boyko poured the sea water into the plants directly from above. . .the water remaining at the root layers of the soil was not highly saline. . .and the salts . . .return to the sea through the flow of underground water."

Another experiment of note is one by Dr. Y. Gindel who has a ten-year project coming to maturity in coffee-growing. If it works, as now seems believeable, the latitudes for coffee production will be expanded and Israel's two million dollar import bill will be considerably cut. The process is one of gradual acclimatization and is said to be applicable to California weather.

Views Of Our Readers

To The Editor:

It has only been 25 years since the Roosevelt administration recognized Russia as a legitimate government under the Communist rule by dictator Stalin, who at that time promised he would not interfere in our internal affairs. That promise, like all others, has not been kept.

Instead we have seen three Un-American activities Committees go down. We have seen the supreme court render more decisions in favor of the communist party, decisions that have stirred up racial strife and hampered law enforcement agencies and have ignored the states constitutional rights.

All this under the impact of the Communists, aided by the left wing radical elements of the liberal Democrats and the modern Republicans, and just plain tenderhearted citizens who are taken in and supported them by their contributions to the patriotic sounding names of the many Communist fronts now operating in this country.

All of these contributions help finance the Communist cause, by Communists and Communist sympathizers lobbying in the senate and the congress and getting appointed to positions in Government, by infiltrating unions and key positions in our defense plants and delivering vital information to Moscow through the Russian Embassy, which operates under diplomatic immunity.

The foreign aid that was to end in five years we still have with us, Congressman Passman tells us 82 billion dollars, since this spending started. The Communists have expanded over several thousand square miles of territory and millions of people have fell under the Communist rule, this aid has already been extended to 73 nations.

Now the president has appointed a committee to look in to foreign aid who no doubt come up with a request for more money. The President has already asked for an extra billion dollars for the new independent nations of Africa. His excuse is that he fear dictators. When Argentina ask you what reason he has to fear dictators, when Argentina was taken over by Peron, he immediately sent Milton Eisenhower on his way down there, thus giving him moral support as well as financial aid. Despite the fact that our public debt is 175 billion dollars and that we owe 39 billion more than the rest of the nations combined. We don't stand a chance of getting spending reduced in this session of Congress, especially foreign aid so long as it provides an excuse for senators, congressmen, state dept. officials and Ike's personal representative to go globe-trotting around the world, at the tax payers expense.

Sincerely

J. R. BLALOCK

Daily Devotion

Let your moderation be known to all men. The Lord is at hand. —Philippians 4:5.

We should come nearer to the Lord at Christmas time but, unfortunately, this season is apt to be one of secular celebration. Why the difference in attitude toward Easter and Christmas it is hard to tell —but to the layman, it does seem that Easter engenders a more reverent attitude. Maybe the difference in Christmas spirit is because we are "getting" as well as "giving" and that Christmas has become too mercenary. Without question the celebration of Christ's birth should awaken our deepest religious instincts and emotions.

Merciful God, our Father, help us to draw near to Thee and Thy Son as we celebrate Christmas. In Christs name we pray. Amen.

Park Avenue Ditch

The delay in closing the ditch in Park Avenue which was opened to permit the installation of a new water main is inexcusable. It has been against the best interest and safety of the citizens of Monroe.

Park Avenue has been torn up and dangerous for travel for three months. Long after the main was placed in position, the ditch, which has been called the "Big Canyon" by many, has remained open, while one reason after another has been given for the delay.

In reality there is no excuse for this dillydallying.

The contract, according to officials involved, called for completion of the project by November 25. It is now 19 days past that time and the job still has not been completed and there is no indication when all the filling work will be finished.

On several occasions, officials involved in the project have been asked when the job would be completed and the street made safe for traffic. Each time the reply has been—"only a few days longer." The few days continue to stretch on and on.

At first the excuse for the delay was given as a misunderstanding about the base width of the concrete and asphalt on each side of the ditch. Apparently, this was resolved. When the project still was not completed, weather conditions were given as the reason.

But the weather could not have been to blame for the delay either. Generally, during the period involved, the weather has been excellent, particularly for construction work.

What is the real reason for the delay? No one seems to know; at least if they do they are not talking.

However, one thing stands out clearly and emphatically; it is the responsibility of the Monroe Commissioner of Streets to see that the city streets are kept up and that projects involving them are completed on time.

In the Park Avenue project, the commissioner should have acted promptly to have the street repaired, regardless of what agency or group handled the original contract. After the work had been completed, the commissioner could have taken whatever recourse was necessary to collect the costs from the proper source.

This has not been the case in this project. As a result, many motorists who are forced to use Park Avenue have ridden daily with the possibility of a wreck which could have caused injury or perhaps death.

The commissioner owes it to the people of Monroe to see that this project is completed immediately. Then a full explanation on the cause of this unnecessary delay should be forthcoming.

Americans Can Do

"Americans are a can-do, will-do people. They believe in progress and growth. They believe in ever-higher income and earnings for all people. And they want tomorrow to be better than yesterday."

These are the words of an influential member of the United States senate.

If we are to have ever-higher income and earnings and if tomorrow is to be better than yesterday, we must have an expanding and improving economic machine. That means we must have tax policies that will encourage investment and risk-taking. It means that we must have a climate that is favorable to the growth of businesses of all kinds and sizes.

Whether we will have such a climate will depend in a large part on the actions and attitudes of the members of congress.

Objection To Disposal Of Nuclear Waste Predicted

Sooner or later the United States — and every other Nation engaged in nuclear activity — can expect to find growing opposition to the way it disposes of radioactive waste materials in the sea.

For the time being the amount of radioactive waste is negligible by comparison with what it will be when industry begins to rely more and more on this new pioneer source of power. Experts in the field who are not worried now believe considerably more research is essential before any additional radioactive waste is dumped into the sea.

The Atomic Energy Commission has established a set of standards for disposing of these materials which it insists completely meet the requirements of human safety. British standards are less rigid than ours. But Russia, on the other hand, takes the position that none of these waste should be cast into the sea.

AEC has already licensed six private firms to dump waste in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans and is about to grant the first license for sea disposal in the Gulf of Mexico. These licenses, it should be noted, provide only for getting rid of low - level waste — those which gives off extremely minor amounts of radiation.

Before such a license is granted interested parties can protest and ask for a hearing before the AEC. This has been done on two occasions — in California and in Connecticut. By voluntary agreement with the State of California AEC stipulates that no waste will be dumped in less than 12,000 feet of water. By contrast, a Houston, Texas, firm is being given a license to dispose of waste in 6,000 feet of water in the Gulf.

Under the AEC licenses these materials must be packaged in such a manner — usually in reinforced concrete — that they cannot float to the surface. But the commission does not force the licensee to guarantee that these packages won't break open their underwater graves at some future date. In fact, AEC believes this might be a good thing since it would allow the natural processes of diffusion and dilution to come into play and prevent any significant buildup of radioactivity.

At one time it was believed that 19 ocean "trenches" around the world — some over four and a half miles deep and thousands of miles long — might be the ideal burial grounds for radioactive waste. However, surveys have shown that these are not troughs of stagnant water and in many instances would be unsuitable for disposal of waste containing anything much stronger than low-level radioactivity.

Soviet Russia reported at the recent Geneva conference on peaceful uses of atomic energy that it found in a study of one such "trench" in the Pacific that even at the greatest depth a change of water takes place in as short a time as five years. As a result, the Russians claimed, dangerous materials with long - lived radioactivity, will be liable to break loose and escape upward into the upper water. It is the Soviet position that under these conditions marine life would become radioactively infected and form a biological chain reaction which would end up in the food of human beings.

This view is also supported to an extent by Dr. B. H. Ketchum of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution in this country who points out that there is a kind of biological elevator in the sea which could bring radioactive materials from the depths to the surface. Ketehum says sea organisms in the Bikini test area of the Pacific concentrate fission products to the point where some have beeen found to have 470 times more radioactivity than the water itself.

Under the British set of standards for disposal a pipe line simply carries radioactive liquid wastes two miles beyond the high water mark where it is spilled into the Irish Sea. These wastes are only mildly radioactive, however, and the main fission product wastes are concentrated and stored inland. Under their inspection program the British have marked and studied some 35,000 fish. In no case has there been found any increase in radioactivity which might cause concern.

While there is always the risk of an accident, even in peaceful uses of nuclear energy, experience so far has been exceptionally reassuring. The atomic energy industry, already employing hundreds of thousands of people, is the safest of all industries. Its accident rate so far is the lowest of any industry.

The most serious accident on record occurred when a reactor at a British plutonium factory "burned - out." There were no casualties and no one suffered ill effects.

Storage of radioactive materials is a big problem. The United States alone over the past 14 years has accumulated 60,000,000 gallons of radioactive elements stored in more than a hundred indestructible steel tanks. The cost so far has run to $65,000,000. Some of these elements will remain dangerous for decades, other for centuries. And in the case of plutonium, for at least 24,000 years.

It has been estimated that 42 years from now — on the basis of what world uses of peaceful atomic powers are expected to be in the year 2,000 — the amount of waste will require 100,000 acres a year as "burial grounds." And this holds true only where the most compact methods of disposal are used, such as fusing the waste in glass.

One scientist at Geneva put it this way, "The tombs of radioactive waste are becoming as elaborate and expensive as those for the mummies of the Pharaohs.

Soviet Officer Uses Soldiers In Big Swindle

MOSCOW (AP)—Red Star Saturday told the story of an army officer who reaped 200,00 rubles in a big swindle by using soldiers under his command for private work.

Worse still, said the army newspaper, the officer pulled the wool over the eyes of Communist party officials who visited the area by "pampering them with regal treatment."

The accused officer was identified only by the name Parkhomenko. The newspaper said he has been removed from his command and kicked out of the party. He was charged with using soldiers to do such things as build bridges, repair roads and cut timber for various organizations and stuffing the profits into his own pocket.

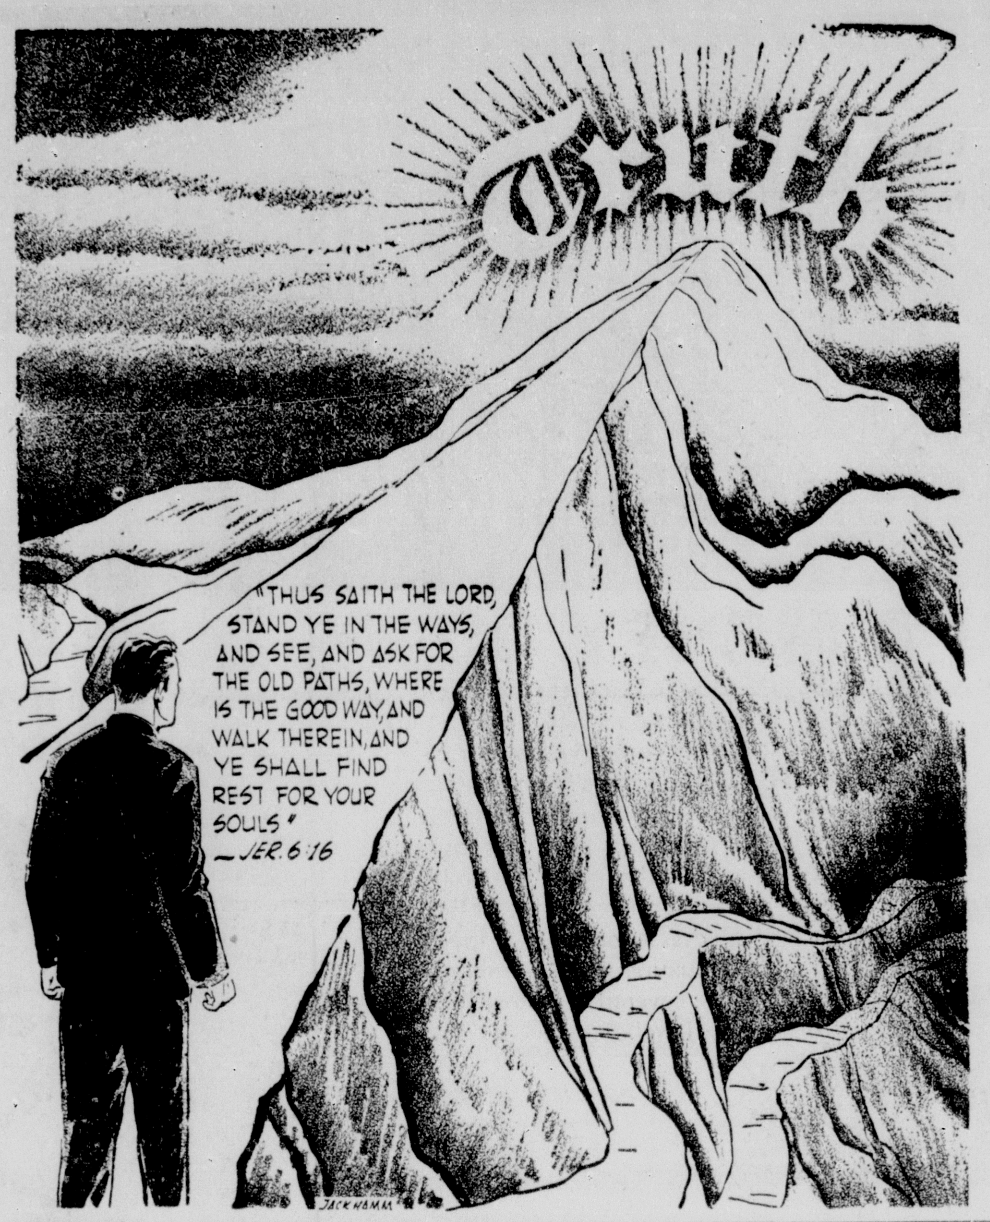
The Great Highway



GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Free Press Must Earn Without Taking Subsidy

The first essential of a free press is the ability for publications to earn expenses without depending upon subsidies. The moment a newspaper is forced to accept a subsidy from a political party or a government or a group of rich men for continued existence, then it ceases to be free. Except in those countries where the press depends upon advertising can it be politically and socially free, not because advertisers are idealists but because they cannot afford to mix their business with their product. Just as many Democrats use soap as Republicans and just as many Republicans use automobiles as Democrats. In fact, even Socialists wash their faces.

Thus, the logic of the situation rather than the virtue either of the advertiser or the newspaper publisher has kept our press singularly free of outside control. The great editors of the 19th and early 20th centuries, before the press faced radio and TV competition, William Randolph Hearst, Joseph Pulitzer, William Allen White, Henry Watterson and I could list dozens of others, would just as soon tell a heavy advertiser to jump into a lake as to take his check. They were men of singular independence and ran their newspapers as they chose without regard for official approval or social relationships.

Also, they were members of a proud calling, important in the affairs of the country and surprisingly unafraid. Their principal task was that of being a constant critic of the government. It was the newspapers which performed many of the tasks which congressional committees do today. Unafraid, their reporters were out to catch the thieves in public office and it was newspaper editors and newspaper cartoonists who exposed the sanctimonious stuffed shirts who posed as saints and robbed the poor. Tom Nast and F. B. Opper, to mention two great names, served America as any soldier in the field. Lincoln Steffens, Charles Edward Russell, Upton Sinclair and dozens of other daring men freely spoke their minds and saved human beings and the country.

That was a wholesome function of the press and still is, but to maintain this strong position the press must be financially independent. It must be able to say to an advertiser that if he does not care for the way the paper is managed, he can take his wares elsewhere. It must be possible for newspaper editors and publishers to avoid entangling friendships. It means that each newspaper group is a fraternity of men who respect each other's integrity and work for something more than their money pay.

If American newspapers do not seem to be as courageous as they used to be, there are reasons and the reasons are not far to seek:

1. The cost of operations of a newspaper has gone up beyond reason, principally because of labor costs and the cost of paper. Labor costs rise as the press is increasingly proletarized by labor unions which now dominate the working staff in all departments, including the editorial. Also, it has become increasingly difficult to fire employees which means that deadheads can continue to hold positions not because of ability but because of union protection. One of the most severe difficulties of current newspaper management is the inability of management to tell a reporter to go to some other newspaper where his wares would be more welcome. Perhaps that is why there are no newspaper writers of the brilliance of Edgar Allan Poe and O. Henry who did find editorial refuge in the old New York Sun. Today, such men would take their union pay, work 40 hours a week on a newspaper and spend the rest of the day being a press agent for some restaurant or a presumptive star.

2. Another difficulty is government censorship of news. Were there no columnists, daring, not afraid to be called liars, government officials would find ways of so manipulating the news as to make all publications, newspapers, magazines, radio and TV, creatures of government press agents The columnists still break through this very tight band which the government has set about the truth. This difficulty arises out of the permanent war during which government officials take advantage of public nervousness to protect their own errors and their own lies.

Bone Infections Are Revolutionized

Penicillin and the sulfonamides revolutionized the outcome of infection of the bone (osteomyelitis). This disease has not been eradicated but its victims no longer spend months in a hospital undergoing treatment or leave with disfiguring scars resulting from mutilating operations.

Osteomyelitis is caused by bacteria such as streptococci or staphylococci. In the past, many of the afflicted were children; the microbes reached the bone via the blood stream from infection elsewhere in the body. Nowadays accidents are the most common cause, particularly the compound fracture in which one end of the broken bone protrudes thru the skin.

The staphylococcus is the worst offender because it is capable of eating into and destroying a large area of this tissue. Shortly after the micro-organism's invasion, the individual develops chills, fever, rapid pulse, and prostration.

The source of trouble is suspected immediately because severe pain is felt over the end of the involved bone close to a joint. The area is exquisitely tender and the overlying skin swollen. Redness does not appear unless the infection spreads beyond the bone.

X-rays are not a reliable guide early in the course of the disease because bone destruction does not show up for a week or more after the onset of the disease. This was a handicap to the physician of old because the infection had an opportunity to spread widely before detection. The only treatment at that stage was extensive surgery.

Nowadays, antibiotics are used immediately. The surgeon is likely to make a small opening to allow the pus to escape so the infection can be brought under control before extensive bone destruction takes place. Blood transfusions and intravenous fluids may be needed to bolster strength and prevent dehydration. If the disease recurs or extensive scar tissue prevents healing, a more extensive operation may be required.

Now the president has appointed a committee to look in to foreign aid who no doubt come up with a request for more money. The President has already asked for an extra billion dollars for the new independent nations of Africa. His excuse is that he fear dictators. When Argentina ask you what reason he has to fear dictators, when Argentina was taken over by Peron, he immediately sent Milton Eisenhower on his way down there, thus giving him moral support as well as financial aid. Despite the fact that our public debt is 175 billion dollars and that we owe 39 billion more than the rest of the nations combined. We don't stand a chance of getting spending reduced in this session of Congress, especially foreign aid so long as it provides an excuse for senators, congressmen, state dept. officials and Ike's personal representative to go globe-trotting around the world, at the tax payers expense.

Sincerely
J. R. BLALOCK

Daily Devotion

Let your moderation be known to all men. The Lord is at hand. —Philippians 4:5.

We should come nearer to the Lord at Christmas time but, unfortunately, this season is apt to be one of secular celebration. Why the difference in attitude toward Easter and Christmas it is hard to tell —but to the layman, it does seem that Easter engenders a more reverent attitude. Maybe the difference in Christmas spirit is because we are "getting" as well as "giving" and that Christmas has become too mercenary. Without question the celebration of Christ's birth should awaken our deepest religious instincts and emotions.

Merciful God, our Father, help us to draw near to Thee and Thy Son as we celebrate Christmas. In Christs name we pray. Amen.

PORTRAITS

Sunday Void

NO SUNDAY ever is complete . . . With joy in every way . . . If we neglect or we forget . . . To go to church and pray . . . When we forget to go to church . . . Then we forget God too . . . And we are thinking only of . . . The pleasures we pursue . . . And when we purposely ignore . . . The church bell's call to prayer . . . It is the same as telling God . . . We simply do not care . . . That is a Sunday to regret . . . For it has left a void . . . Despite the fullness of the life . . . We feel we have enjoyed . . . Whatever worldly goal attained . . . However great a feat . . . Unless we worship God in church . . . No Sunday is complete.

Monkey 'Blazes Trail' In Space

sponse. The temperature and pressure in his capsule also were recorded.

The capsule and its occupant were placed in the Jupiter cone at 11 p.m. EST Friday night, five hours before the launching. Officials said Reliable's knees were drawn up to provide maximum resistance to the force of gravity at blastoff.

There was no attempt to put the soft, furry bright-eyed monkey into satellite orbit as Russia did with Laika the dog in Sputnik II. But the monkey, with more human-like biological and anatomical makeup and higher intelligence than Laika, was in this respect the most perfect "guinea pig" yet used in space experiments.

Scientists measuring the physiological reactions of the creature were jubilant. They said the "significant" date obtained would be invaluable in preparing man for eventual flights into space.

Monkeys have been shot into the earth's atmosphere previously in test rockets, but the one Saturday was the first to escape from the atmosphere in a space missile.

Scientists receiving radioed data from the monkey reported reactions similar to those reported by the Soviets from satellite-riding Laika. There was no significant adverse physiological changes. The shoot had only slight effect upon the breathing and heart action of the spaceman-clad simian.

The U.S. plans to send up monkeys and mice in satellite experiments early in 1959 in its program of launching artificial moons once a month from a Lampoc, Calif., base.

"Little Old Reliable," a forerunner of these experiments, was believed to have reached an altitude of 200 to 300 miles, beyond any appreciable pull of the earth's gravitational field. Scientists said that for a few moments the beast probably was actually weightless.

All the while, the intricate instruments attached to the animal sent back measurements on heart action, blood pressure, respiration, pulse and voice response.

"This data when completely evaluated will contribute materially to the ultimate flight of man in space," the Army said. It said space medicine experts hailed the experiment as a "necessary step in national programs for manned space flight."

But there were protests from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and from Britain's Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The groups deplored using any animals in such experiments.

Tot, 2, Tries Driving Auto Has Collision

Monroe Policeman Edward Maroney's two-year-old son gave his father some business yesterday morning — he tore up the family car.

Edward "Little Boy" Maroney was waiting in the car with the Negro maid, while Mrs. Maroney did some shopping at a Curb market at S. Second Street and the Winnsboro Road.

The toddler climbed to the floor of the car, turned the ignition and pushed the gas pedal before the maid could stop him.

Unwilling to be bothered he protested and pushed the automatic shift into low as the maid was lifting him up.

The car zoomed forward and struck the side of a house.

Shortly after the Russians put their dog, Laika, in orbit a New York firm catering to gumball machine operators was ready with its own miniature version of the Muttnick patched to the scene also was involved in an accident.

As the snow and cold spread across Dixie, weathermen reported 7 inches of snow at Dodge City, Kan., 10 inches at Pine Bluff, Ark., 2 inches at Greenwood, Miss., and one inch at Wichita Falls, Tex.

Atlanta, Ga , also reported light snow, and accumulations generally ranged from one to four inches of snow across Oklahoma, northeast Texas, Arkansas, southern Tennessee and the northern portions of Mississippi and Alabama.

Meanwhile, a technical state of emergency remained in effect in snow-stricken Oswego, N.Y., on the lee shore of Lake Ontario, where 6½ feet of snow fell during the past week. Despite warnings of heavy to moderate snow squall during the weekend, snow crews continued working to clear the city of its paralyzing snowfall.

Not much of the eastern two-thirds of the nation was escaping the cold arctic blasts, which plunged temperatures to freezing and below deep into Georgia and Alabama early Saturday dipping to 9 above at Amarillo, Tex.

MAIL DOUBLES

The volume of mail handled by U. S. post offices is twice as large as it was 15 years ago, and is expected to double again by 1985.

Curretn volume amounts to about 360 pieces of mail a year for each person in the nation, or an average of about a letter or a package a day for everybody.

highway department busy around Delhi and Tallulah salting down the bridges and overpasses, but snow was not seen by either town. Rayville had a little rain with freezing temperatures.

Jonesville had light misty rain, but no trace of snow or sleet with the mercury quivering around the 32 mark. A low 25 degrees was recorded by a Jonesboro correspondent who said there was no sleet, but faint snow flurries and freezing rain.

Three inches of snow were reported in El Dorado, Ark. with a temperature reading of 27 degrees. It also snowed in Magnolia, Ark. to the extent of two inches with a reading of 22 degrees in the afternoon. Camden, Ark. measured two and a half inches of snow with the temperature dropping to an icy 20 degrees.

Weather bureau officials reported a high of 33 in Shreveport yesterday, and at 9:30 p.m. a low of 26. The overnight low was expected to drop to 20 degrees. Shreveport reported precipitation of .05 of an inch yesterday, including a mixture of snow, freezing rain, sleet and drizzle.

The high for the day in New Orleans was 58, and low at 6 p.m. was 50. The mercury there was expected to drop to around 29 Sunday morning. A low of 15 was expected this morning at Little Rock, Ark.

The official forecast released last night from the U. S. Weather Bureau Station at Shreveport called for cloudy to partly cloudy and very cold Sunday in Louisiana and Mississippi. The Monday outlook is for cloudy and continued cold.

VERY COLD

For Arkansas partly cloudy and continued very cold Sunday and Monday was the outlook offered. The highest Sunday was expected to range around 24 to 32 degrees.

Wintery weather, slippery streets and misting rains caused a total of eight auto accidents here between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. yesterday. A West Monroe man was hospitalized and his 11-year-old son was slightly injured in one of the mishaps.

Edward Venable, 117 Stokes, West Monroe, was driving his 1957 Ford along the Jonesboro Highway, near the Paper Mill, when an auto driven by Lennie Sullivan of Rayville rammed him, at 8:30 a.m.

Smoke from the mill had obscured the highway, and Venable was proceeding at a slow rate of speed when the collision occurred.

He suffered muscle injuries to the neck and sides, and his son, Dennis, received a contusion to the right eye.

Both were rushed to St. Francis hospital by Hixson ambulance X-rays indicated that Venable had no broken bones, but he was hospitalized for the muscle injuries.

RELEASED

Dennis was treated and released.

The entire back end of the Venable car was caved in, and the front of the Sullivan car was damaged.

State Police investigated the mishap. Sullivan was charged with following the other car too closely.

At 8 a.m. ice caused an accident on the West Monroe side of the new bridge.

West Monroe Police who investigated said that George R. Williams, 1007 N. Fifth St., Monroe, was going west on the bridge when a vehicle driven by Louis B. Smart, 28, Negro of 71A Texas Ave. slid on ice. Smart's left rear fender hit the right side of the Williams car. No charges were filed.

Monroe Police charged Willie T. Holland, Negro, with reckless driving, after he collided with a Red Top cab on DeSiard St. at 9:05 a.m.

Holland, 44, of 625 DeSiard turned off North 11th St. onto DeSiard and collided with the cab, being driven east by Howard Harris, 38, Negro of 8 Cherry St., West Monroe.

Holland's car was towed away, with approximately $165 worth of damage. The cab's damages were estimated at $150.

COLLISION

Another rear-end collision occurred at 8:10 a.m., at the intersection of Louisville Avenue and N. Fifth Street. M. C. Powell, Negro, halted for a traffic light, Miss Lavella G. Humphries, travelling in back of him, applied her brakes, skidded, and hit the back of his car.

No charges were field by Monroe Police who investigated.

During the morning, Waymon S. Sawyer turned onto Jackson Street proceeded a few feet, and was struck by a car which pulled away from the curb. Miss Emalee A. Pickens hit the right front fender of Sawyer's vehicle.

At 9:30 a.m., T. O. Bancroft Jr. halted his jeep at the corner of Bry and St. John Streets, then pulled out into the intersection and collided with a car driven by A. H. Cloud.

Both later made out reports at the Monroe Police Station. Bancroft noted that it was misting at the time, and rain was freezing on the windshield. The bumper of his jeep was dented, and the left front fender and guard of Cloud's car were damaged.

Thirty minutes later, another accident occured at the corner of North Fifth and Louisville. William A. Moncrief applied his brakes, the car skidded, and his convertible rammed the back of a car driven by Charles E. Pittman Jr. of Clarkes.

Mrs. Earl J. Pehlps, 722 Lakeshore Dr., complained to Monroe police that another driver smashed into her back right rear fender, as she was leaving the parking lot in front of a Louisville store.

She added that the other driver, a woman, refused to stop or discuss the matter. Mrs. Phelps obtained the other car's license number.

Some 500 persons milled outside the music hall doors while squads of policemen searched th building. They weren't told that there was a bomb scare.

After the doors were opened, a number of small Confederate flags were noticed on coat lapels. Several persons passed up and down the aisles passing out "Faubus For President" hatbands and stickers.

Monkey 'Blazes Trail' In Space

sponse. The temperature and pressure in his capsule also were recorded.

The capsule and its occupant were placed in the Jupiter cone at 11 p.m. EST Friday night, five hours before the launching. Officials said Reliable's knees were drawn up to provide maximum resistance to the force of gravity at blastoff.

There was no attempt to put the soft, furry bright-eyed monkey into satellite orbit as Russia did with Laika the dog in Sputnik II. But the monkey, with more human-like biological and anatomical makeup and higher intelligence than Laika, was in this respect the most perfect "guinea pig" yet used in space experiments.

Scientists measuring the physiological reactions of the creature were jubilant. They said the "significant" date obtained would be invaluable in preparing man for eventual flights into space.

Monkeys have been shot into the earth's atmosphere previously in test rockets, but the one Saturday was the first to escape from the atmosphere in a space missile.

Scientists receiving radioed data from the monkey reported reactions similar to those reported by the Soviets from satellite-riding Laika. There was no significant adverse physiological changes. The shoot had only slight effect upon the breathing and heart action of the spaceman-clad simian.

The U.S. plans to send up monkeys and mice in satellite experiments early in 1959 in its program of launching artificial moons once a month from a Lampoc, Calif., base.

"Little Old Reliable," a forerunner of these experiments, was believed to have reached an altitude of 200 to 300 miles, beyond any appreciable pull of the earth's gravitational field. Scientists said that for a few moments the beast probably was actually weightless.

All the while, the intricate instruments attached to the animal sent back measurements on heart action, blood pressure, respiration, pulse and voice response.

"This data when completely evaluated will contribute materially to the ultimate flight of man in space," the Army said. It said space medicine experts hailed the experiment as a "necessary step in national programs for manned space flight."

But there were protests from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and from Britain's Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The groups deplored using any animals in such experiments.

Tot, 2, Tries Driving Auto Has Collision

Monroe Policeman Edward Maroney's two-year-old son gave his father some business yesterday morning — he tore up the family car.

Edward "Little Boy" Maroney was waiting in the car with the Negro maid, while Mrs. Maroney did some shopping at a Curb market at S. Second Street and the Winnsboro Road.

The toddler climbed to the floor of the car, turned the ignition and pushed the gas pedal before the maid could stop him.

Unwilling to be bothered he protested and pushed the automatic shift into low as the maid was lifting him up.

The car zoomed forward and struck the side of a house.

Shortly after the Russians put their dog, Laika, in orbit a New York firm catering to gumball machine operators was ready with its own miniature version of the Muttnick.

Wintery weather, slippery streets and misting rains caused a total of eight auto accidents here between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. yesterday. A West Monroe man was hospitalized and his 11-year-old son was slightly injured in one of the mishaps.

Edward Venable, 117 Stokes, West Monroe, was driving his 1957 Ford along the Jonesboro Highway, near the Paper Mill, when an auto driven by Lennie Sullivan of Rayville rammed him, at 8:30 a.m.

Smoke from the mill had obscured the highway, and Venable was proceeding at a slow rate of speed when the collision occurred.

He suffered muscle injuries to the neck and sides, and his son, Dennis, received a contusion to the right eye.

Both were rushed to St. Francis hospital by Hixson ambulance X-rays indicated that Venable had no broken bones, but he was hospitalized for the muscle injuries.

RELEASED

Dennis was treated and released.

The entire back end of the Venable car was caved in, and the front of the Sullivan car was damaged.

State Police investigated the mishap. Sullivan was charged with following the other car too closely.

At 8 a.m. ice caused an accident on the West Monroe side of the new bridge.

West Monroe Police who investigated said that George R. Williams, 1007 N. Fifth St., Monroe, was going west on the bridge when a vehicle driven by Louis B. Smart, 28, Negro of 71A Texas Ave. slid on ice. Smart's left rear fender hit the right side of the Williams car. No charges were filed.

Monroe Police charged Willie T. Holland, Negro, with reckless driving, after he collided with a Red Top cab on DeSiard St. at 9:05 a.m.

Holland, 44, of 625 DeSiard turned off North 11th St. onto DeSiard and collided with the cab, being driven east by Howard Harris, 38, Negro of 8 Cherry St., West Monroe.

Holland's car was towed away, with approximately $165 worth of damage. The cab's damages were estimated at $150.

COLLISION

Another rear-end collision occurred at 8:10 a.m., at the intersection of Louisville Avenue and N. Fifth Street. M. C. Powell, Negro, halted for a traffic light, Miss Lavella G. Humphries, travelling in back of him, applied her brakes, skidded, and hit the back of his car.

No charges were field by Monroe Police who investigated.

During the morning, Waymon S. Sawyer turned onto Jackson Street proceeded a few feet, and was struck by a car which pulled away from the curb. Miss Emalee A. Pickens hit the right front fender of Sawyer's vehicle.

At 9:30 a.m., T. O. Bancroft Jr. halted his jeep at the corner of Bry and St. John Streets, then pulled out into the intersection and collided with a car driven by A. H. Cloud.

Both later made out reports at the Monroe Police Station. Bancroft noted that it was misting at the time, and rain was freezing on the windshield. The bumper of his jeep was dented, and the left front fender and guard of Cloud's car were damaged.

Thirty minutes later, another accident occured at the corner of North Fifth and Louisville. William A. Moncrief applied his brakes, the car skidded, and his convertible rammed the back of a car driven by Charles E. Pittman Jr. of Clarkes.

Mrs. Earl J. Pehlps, 722 Lakeshore Dr., complained to Monroe police that another driver smashed into her back right rear fender, as she was leaving the parking lot in front of a Louisville store.

She added that the other driver, a woman, refused to stop or discuss the matter. Mrs. Phelps obtained the other car's license number.

As the snow and cold spread across Dixie, weathermen reported 7 inches of snow at Dodge City, Kan., 10 inches at Pine Bluff, Ark., 2 inches at Greenwood, Miss., and one inch at Wichita Falls, Tex.

Atlanta, Ga., also reported light snow, and accumulations generally ranged from one to four inches of snow across Oklahoma, northeast Texas, Arkansas, southern Tennessee and the northern portions of Mississippi and Alabama.

Meanwhile, a technical state of emergency remained in effect in snow-stricken Oswego, N.Y., on the lee shore of Lake Ontario, where 6½ feet of snow fell during the past week. Despite warnings of heavy to moderate snow squalls during the weekend, snow crews continued working to clear the city of its paralyzing snowfall.

Woman Hurt In Two-Car Wreck Here

A 27-year-old Negro was charged with reckless driving last night, after he collided with the side of an auto driven by a Morning-World reporter. The reporter's 20-year-old wife was rushed to St. Francis hospital.

Monroe police said that Dortie Moore, Negro, of 208 Cedar St., going east on Oak St., ran a stop sign at the intersection with St. John Street.

He smashed into the side of a 1955 Ford driven by James L. Calhoun, 23, of 1009 N. Third St., who was proceeding north on St. John.

Calhoun's pretty blonde wife, Mrs. Sue Calhoun, was taken to the hospital by a Mulhearn ambulance. She was shaken by the mishap and suffering from shock, but the extent of her injuries were not known at press time.

Both cars were extensively damaged. The impact swung Calhoun's car around into a street sign post, knocking the post down.

The sports reporter, returning from covering a Northeast State College game at the old Ouachita Parish gymnasium, was shaken up in the mishap and suffered muscle injuries, but continued on to the paper to write the sports story.

"The only good thing about the night was that Northeast won the game," remarked Calhoun, who is also a student at Northeast.

British Offer New Plan On Berlin Crisis

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Britain has drawn up a new plan aimed at settling the crisis over Berlin and Germany at a summit conference.

The compromise approach of Prime Minister Macmillan's government was described by authoritative sources Saturday night.

It came on the eve of a special meeting of four key Western foreign ministers in Paris to consider the disputed future of Berlin and Germany.

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and West German Foreign Minister Henrich von Brentano will discuss an answer to Russia's proposal to turn West Berlin into a so-called neutral free city.

The British project presumably will be among several to be examined. Its adoption is Allied policy would depend on U.S., French and West German approval. But the West Germans, who have had a preview of British thinking, thus far have shown no great enthusiasm for it.

Britain's idea, as described here, starts off with the premise that any peaceful settlement of the Berlin dispute must take into account:

1. That the Allies will reject Russia's free city plan and will refuse to discuss the future of Berlin alone.

2. That the Russians themselves will stand firm on their past refusals to participatè in ony Big Four conference on the reunification of Germany.

Accordingly Macmillan is understood to feel that it may be possible to arrange a summit conference on the problems of Europe in general including:

The Berlin question, a Germany peace treaty, a Continental security system, measures of disarmament and limited measures for the disengagement of East - West forces in Europe—but only after Germany is reunited.

He added that she has been gone from time to time before, but always took some clothing with her. This time, no clothing was taken.

She is described as short, weighing 110 pounds, wearing glasses and with dyed black hair.

Anyone knowing her whereabouts is requested to contact Monroe police or Guilkey.

Rescue Of Ugly Duckling Frozen In Ice Big Event

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Two police cars were dispatched to a lake here Saturday to rescue an ugly duckling that appeared to be frozen in the ice about 100 feet from shore.

The puzzled officers and a game warden called a rescue squad and the fire department - but both agencies claimed this type of work was out of their line.

Two members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals arrived, tied a rope to a car jack, and tossed it out several times in a futile effort to break the ice.

A Parks Commission employe then gingerly walked out on the ice. As he finally neared the stricken duck, he reached down and—much to his surprise—the web-footed created just waddled away.

Rescue Of Ugly Duckling Frozen In Ice Big Event

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Two police cars were dispatched to a lake here Saturday to rescue an ugly duckling that appeared to be frozen in the ice about 100 feet from shore.

The puzzled officers and a game warden called a rescue squad and the fire department – but both agencies claimed this type of work was out of their line.

Two members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals arrived, tied a rope to a car jack, and tossed it out several times in a futile effort to break the ice.

A Parks Commission employe then gingerly walked out on the ice. As he finally neared the stricken duck, he reached down and—much to his surprise—the web-footed created just waddled away.

AIR-MINDED U.S.

Domestic air lines in the U.S. last year flew about 25 billion passenger miles, computed by multiplying the total number of passengers times the miles they flew.

That is equivalent to a coast-to-coast round trip every six minutes all year for the largest passenger plane flying today, fully loaded.

Famed Kingfish Dies Of Illness

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Harry R. (Tim) Moore, 70, the Kingfish of the Amos 'n' Andy television series, died here Saturday after a lengthy illness.

MORE CRUDE OIL

Total world production of crude oil, which was 8 million barrels a day in 1947, increased to 16,144,000 barrels a day in 1957.

Production is expected to reach 28 million barrels a day by 1966. It is predicted that Middle East production, 3,500,000 barrels a day last year, will increase 150 per cent in 10 years.

Woman Hurt In Two-Car Wreck Here

A 27-year-old Negro was charged with reckless driving last night, after he collided with the side of an auto driven by a Morning-World reporter. The reporter's 20-year-old wife was rushed to St. Francis hospital.

Monroe police said that Dortie Moore, Negro, of 208 Cedar St., going east on Oak St., ran a stop sign at the intersection with St. John Street.

He smashed into the side of a 1955 Ford driven by James L. Calhoun, 23, of 1009 N. Third St., who was proceeding north on St. John.

Calhoun's pretty blonde wife, Mrs. Sue Calhoun, was taken to the hospital by a Mulhearn ambulance. She was shaken by the mishap and suffering from shock, but the extent of her injuries were not known at press time.

Both cars were extensively damaged. The impact swung Calhoun's car around into a street sign post, knocking the post down.

The sports reporter, returning from covering a Northeast State College game at the old Ouachita Parish gymnasium, was shaken up in the mishap and suffered muscle injuries, but continued on to the paper to write the sports story.

"The only good thing about the night was that Northeast won the game," remarked Calhoun, who is also a student at Northeast.

British Offer New Plan On Berlin Crisis

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Britain has drawn up a new plan aimed at settling the crisis over Berlin and Germany at a summit conference.

The compromise approach of Prime Minister Macmillan's government was described by authoritative sources Saturday night.

It came on the eve of a special meeting of four key Western foreign ministers in Paris to consider the disputed future of Berlin and Germany.

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville and West German Foreign Minister Henrich von Brentano will discuss an answer to Russia's proposal to turn West Berlin into a so-called neutral free city.

The British project presumably will be among several to be examined. Its adoption is Allied policy would depend on U.S., French and West German approval. But the West Germans, who have had a preview of British thinking, thus far have shown no great enthusiasm for it.

Britain's idea, as described here, starts off with the premise that any peaceful settlement of the Berlin dispute must take into account:

1. That the Allies will reject Russia's free city plan and will refuse to discuss the future of Berlin alone.

2. That the Russians themselves will stand firm on their past refusals to participate in ony Big Four conference on the reunification of Germany.

Accordingly Macmillan is understood to feel that it may be possible to arrange a summit conference on the problems of Europe in general including:

The Berlin question, a Germany peace treaty, a Continental security system, measures of disarmament and limited measures for the disengagement of East - West forces in Europe—but only after Germany is reunited.

Foot, Car Chase Precedes Arrest Of Suspect Here

A foot and car chase by West Monroe police resulted in the capture of a Shreveport man wanted on charges of issuing worthless checks early yesterday morning.

Melvin Tawater, 21 of 1115 Foster St. Shreveport, was apprehended in the storeroom of a garage apartment at 12:45 a.m.

He is charged on four counts of issuing worthless checks in West Monroe, and Monroe police have two other counts pending against him.

Police attempted to take Tawater into custody at a motel, but he broke and ran, with officers close behind. He eluded them and hid in a small storage room on the ground floor of a garage apartment.

Patrol cars checked the area, and officers apprehended the man. He was placed in the West Monroe city jail, pending a court appearance.

Monroe Woman, 34, Is Missing

An attractive 34-year-old Monroe mother has been missing from her home for one week. Police were called in yesterday to aid in the search for her.

T. B. Guilkey, 405 Ouachita, reported yesterday that his wife, Mrs. Elsie Guilkey, had been gone from home since Saturday, Dec. 6.

He added that she has been gone from time to time before, but always took some clothing with her. This time, no clothing was taken.

DOG HERO RETURNS—Big Ben, dog hero on verge of honors as research dog hero of 1958, is welcomed b Leslie, age 8, (left) and A. L. York, age 3, as he was returned home to the York family. Big Ben vanished a week ago on verge of being honored by the National Society for Medical Research for his noteworthy career as subject of numerous cancer studies at Tulane University Medical School. DOG BARKING

The Neighbor Barked Back

By IRA LURVEY

CHICAGO (UPI) — It was a wowzer of a hot day at Marathon, Tex., and hunter Jack Lourie crawled onto his station wagon's mattress for a quick nap—so the story was told.

Moments later, the sun's rays, passing through a gallon bottle of water, set the mattress afire, exploding a box of shotgun shells. Then one of the shells busted the water bottle, putting out the fire.

Lourie's luck—good and bad—was recounted by the National Safety Council's magazine, "Traffic Safety," in its annual odd accident roundup.

A sampling of 1958's leading weirdies turned up:

—"I was run over by a house," protested S. H. Burden, Knoxville, Tenn. He was moving the house up an incline and roped it to a stump. When the rope broke, the house slid over Burden, breaking his arm.

Driver Barks Back

—A neighbor's car backed surely and swiftly across the William Zaring's front lawn at Indianapolis, Ind. Zaring ran to the car, leaped in, and jammed on the brakes. Understandably annoyed, he barked at the driver. The driver barked back; it was the neighbor's dog.

—Comedian Bob Hope's brother Jack, telephoned Navy Chief Petty Officer Leroy Thomas about a show. The two scheduled a meeting, got together an hour early when their cars collided en route.

—Floyd and Gene Wilkins, Little Rock, Ark., also met on the highway—head on. Each rushed to the other to examine the damage. Earlier, they had swapped cars for the day.

—Hottest float in a Marine, Ill. homecoming parade was one sponsored by the town's fire department. It caught fire.

—George McCurdy, 81, fell and broke his knee at a Saturday night dance—sponsored by the Safety Always Club.

—Tommy Kline, 11, Three Rivers, Mich., rammed his bicycle into a moving car, explained: "I fell asleep at the handlebars."

Gives Snappy Salute

TO INVEST NEW CARDINALS

Pope John Ushers In New Church Era

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII ushers in a new era in the history of the Roman Catholic Church Dec. 15 by investing new cardinals in the first consistory of his reign.

The Pontiff will preside over a series of ceremonies glittering with all the color of ancient religious pageantry. His appointment of 23 new cardinals brought the Sacred College of Cardinals to an unprecedented 75, but one previously invested prince of the church has since died.

Never before has the "senate" of the church included such a high number of representatives. Twenty-seven nations will be represented, and the college is expected to enjoy increased international influence and prestige.

The consistory will evolve in four ceremonies in the Vatican and St. Peter's Basilica:

1.—The "secret consistory" Dec. 15 in the consistorial hall of the Apostolic Palace, attended by cardinals of previous elevation. Pope John reviews the situation of the church and announces his intention of creating new cardinals. He recites their names, and the old cardinals give their formal approval.

2.—An "intimate meeting" Dec. 17 attended only by the newly-appointed cardinals, who now have the full rank of office. The Pope personally gives them the scarlet biretta.

3.—The public consistory of Dec. 18 held in St. Peter's Basilica where the old and new cardinals mingle for the first time. The new princes carry out an act of "obedience," to the Pontiff, and, after receiving the red galero, pronounce an oath of fidelity to the church.

4.—The same day a second secret consistory takes place in the Vatican. The Pope bestows the cardinal's ring on each new prince and grants him a titular church in Rome.

Vatican sources believe that Pope John, in the first secret consistory, will stress that the new cardinals selected will further enhance the universality of the church.

The 23 new princes include 13 Italians, two Americans, two French and one each from Mexico, Uruguay, Great Britain, Spain, Australia and Germany.

The new college includes 45 foreigners as compared to 29 Italians.

Although the Pontiff already announced the names of the new cardinals on Nov. 17, he will go through the formality of notifying the old cardinals and ask their approval.

Woman Injured Two Years Ago Dies In Hospital

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Carolyn Chetta, 21-year-old woman wounded by a bullet two years and three months ago, died Saturday in a local hospital.

Miss Chetta was crippled hopelessly Sept. 9, 1956, in an accidental shooting. The bullet entered her right eye and damaged the brain.

The shooting also shattered Miss Chetta's hopes of being married and resulted in her fiance, Joseph Bergeron, being fired as a police officer.

Bergeron and Miss Chetto were inspecting a three-room apartment they planned to rent after marriage. Bergeron was unloading his .38 caliber revolver. Police said it discharged accidentally and the bullet struck Miss Chetta.

Miss Chetta was in a coma during the period.

Miss Chetta underwent physical therapy in a fight for life during her stay in the hospital, and members of her family kept a vigil at her bedside. But none of the family was present when she seemed to fall asleep as a nun washed her face. When members of the family reached her bedside, she was dead.

Smoker Who Quit At Age Of 100 Balks Over Diet

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Tom Reason quit smoking when he was 100 years old and hasn't had a cigarette for 9 years.

He doesn't especially miss tobacco, but the 109-year-old Kaufman County man is beginning to balk at the diet prescribed last spring by doctors.

Reason has always had good health until he began to have some heart and kidney trouble in March So a clinic banished salt, fats and all kinds of bread from his menu.

This cut out his beloved turnip greens and cornbread. It excluded butter and hot biscuits, which he used to eat with sorghum during the week and with ribbon cane sirup on Sundays.

"That diet is about to get the old man," Reason said. "I may quit it."

Reason at 109 reads the Bible without glasses. His hearing seems perfect. He said he was born in Louisiana Nov. 23, 1849, but has lived most of his life in Texas. He lives alone. His wife died 54 years ago.

U.S. Air Force Bomarc Missile Given New Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force shot another of its sleek Bomarc interceptor missiles over the Atlantic Saturday to "kill" a simulated enemy attack plane.

The 47-foot Boeing missile, capable of attacking at greater ranges than any other U.S. defense weapon, was launched in the wake of a daring Army effort to fire a small monkey into space and bring him back alive.

Shortly after Navy search vessels had abandoned the hunt for the monkey some 1,500 miles out to sea, the Bomarc was winging toward its target.

The mission was to intercept an F80 pilotless jet drone plane about 250 miles offshore after the Bomarc had been fired by remote control from an air defense center in Kingston, N.Y.

The Bomarc dives in on its target at three times the speed of sound and with amazing accuracy. For test purposes, however, a direct hit on the drone is not needed.

The missile was incorporated into the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment or SAGE system several months ago for test purposes. The Bomarc actually is launched by a big electronic computer at Kingston after target data is relayed from the cape.

Fourteen launching sites are being prepared for Bomarc across the country.

SOUNDS TOO EASY!

A thin but tough mat containing 3,500 grass seeds per square foot, between two webs of synthetic fibers, has been developed by a Midwest manufacturer as a new way to start a lawn.

The material is unrolled on the soil like a carpet. It clings to the ground, prevents soil erosion, keeps seed from washing or blowing away, and retards weeds, its makers claim.

TO INVEST NEW CARDINALS

Pope John Ushers In New Church Era

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII ushers in a new era in the history of the Roman Catholic Church Dec. 15 by investing new cardinals in the first consistory of his reign.

The Pontiff will preside over a series of ceremonies glittering with all the color of ancient religious pageantry. His appointment of 23 new cardinals brought the Sacred College of Cardinals to an unprecedented 75, but one previously invested prince of the church has since died.

Never before has the "senate" of the church included such a high number of representatives. Twenty-seven nations will be represented, and the college is expected to enjoy increased international influence and prestige.

The consistory will evolve in four ceremonies in the Vatican and St. Peter's Basilica:

1.—The "secret consistory" Dec. 15 in the consistorial hall of the Apostolic Palace, attended by cardinals of previous elevation. Mexico and Uruguay received cardinals for the first time in their history.

Woman Injured Two Years Ago Dies In Hospital

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Carolyn Chetta, 21-year-old woman wounded by a bullet two years and three months ago, died Saturday in a local hospital.

Miss Chetta was crippled hopelessly Sept. 9, 1956, in an accidental shooting. The bullet entered her right eye and damaged the brain.

The shooting also shattered Miss Chetta's hopes of being married and resulted in her fiance, Joseph Bergeron, being fired as a police officer.

Bergeron and Miss Chetto were inspecting a three-room apartment they planned to rent after marriage. Bergeron was unloading his .38 caliber revolver. Police said it discharged accidentally and the bullet struck Miss Chetta.

Miss Chetta was in a coma during the period.

Miss Chetta underwent physical therapy in a fight for life during her stay in the hospital, and members of her family kept a vigil at her bedside. But none of the family was present when she seemed to fall asleep as a nun washed her face. When members of the family reached her bedside, she was dead.

Smoker Who Quit At Age Of 100 Balks Over Diet

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Tom Reason quit smoking when he was 100 years old and hasn't had a cigarette for 9 years.

He doesn't especially miss tobacco, but the 109-year-old Kaufman County man is beginning to balk at the diet prescribed last spring by doctors.

Reason has always had good health until he began to have some heart and kidney trouble in March So a clinic banished salt, fats and all kinds of bread from his menu.

This cut out his beloved turnip greens and cornbread. It excluded butter and hot biscuits, which he used to eat with sorghum during the week and with ribbon cane sirup on Sundays.

"That diet is about to get the old man," Reason said. "I may quit it."

Reason at 109 reads the Bible without glasses. His hearing seems perfect. He said he was born in Louisiana Nov. 23, 1849, but has lived most of his life in Texas. He lives alone. His wife died 54 years ago.

U.S. Air Force Bomarc Missile Given New Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The Air Force shot another of its sleek Bomarc interceptor missiles over the Atlantic Saturday to "kill" a simulated enemy attack plane.

The 47-foot Boeing missile, capable of attacking at greater ranges than any other U.S. defense weapon, was launched in the wake of a daring Army effort to fire a small monkey into space and bring him back alive.

Shortly after Navy search vessels had abandoned the hunt for the monkey some 1,500 miles out to sea, the Bomarc was winging toward its target.

The mission was to intercept an F80 pilotless jet drone plane about 250 miles offshore after the Bomarc had been fired by remote control from an air defense center in Kingston, N.Y.

The Bomarc dives in on its target at three times the speed of sound and with amazing accuracy. For test purposes, however, a direct hit on the drone is not needed.

The missile was incorporated into the Semi-Automatic Ground Environment or SAGE system several months ago for test purposes. The Bomarc actually is launched by a big electronic computer at Kingston after target data is relayed from the cape.

Fourteen launching sites are being prepared for Bomarc across the country.

SOUNDS TOO EASY!

A thin but tough mat containing 3,500 grass seeds per square foot, between two webs of synthetic fibers, has been developed by a Midwest manufacturer as a new way to start a lawn.

The material is unrolled on the soil like a carpet. It clings to the ground, prevents soil erosion, keeps seed from washing or blowing away, and retards weeds, its makers claim.

MONITORS PLAN AUDIT

Beck To Get Bill For Union Funds

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teamsters Union monitors, armed with new cleanup powers, plan an audit to determine how much former union boss Dave Beck Sr. still owes the union. They then will present him with a bill.

Martin F. O'Donoghue, monitor chairman, said "We are going to have an outside auditing firm look into this."

O'Donoghue generally declined to go into monitor plans following a federal court ruling here that gave the monitors broad powers, backed by court enforcement, to engage in a general Teamsters union "housecleaning."

The monitor chairman did disclose the overseer group will again press for early ouster trials for Owen (Bert) Brennan of Detroit, a Teamsters national vice president, and Ray Cohen, Philadelphia union boss.

Beck, who once said he had taken about $400,000 in Teamsters funds but was paying it back, is on trial in Seattle for federal income tax evasion. Brennan and Cohen invoked the Fifth Amendment at Senate Rackets Committee hearings when asked about union fund expenditures.

O'Donoghue said he felt the court decision here means that the Teamster's own anti-racketeering commission, headed by ex-Sen. George H. Bender (R-Ohio), will fade out of business.

He said the Bender group has reported to Teamsters President James R. Hoffa the union is not infested with racketeers. The monitors don't agree. O'Donoghue said if the Bender group considered nothing was wrong about the Teamsters it would cease to function.

"Then, as I understand it, the Bender commission said if the court gave the monitors powers to function it wouldn't continue to function but leave the field clear to our monitors," O'Donoghue said.

In any event, O'Donoghue said, he doesn't believe the Bender group has much leeway since the court ruled the cleanup is wholly in the monitors' hands.

Bender declined to comment on how the new court decision may affect his group's future. The Bender commission was named by Hoffa to conduct an investigation. Bender wrote letters to all Teamsters locals asking if anything was wrong and, if so, to report it to his commission. Apparently all the locals replied negatively.

O'Donoghue has been asked to present to U.S. dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts for signature proposed orders embodying the court's opinion Thursday favoring the monitors. This will take a week or 10 days. Then, O'Donghue said, he plans to call the monitors together.

"We've got a job to do and we're going to do it," the monitor chief said.

NEAR PEAK OF SUMMER

Seven Above Zero Hot At South Pole

MCMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (AP)—The weather in this part of Antarctica is comparatively mild in the summer, which is approaching its peak here.

The average temperature during the past two Januarys was 26. Once, in January 1957, it went to 40. The minimum that month was 10.

At the South Pole, some 800 miles from here, it's a different story. Year before last, somebody at the pole recorded 102.1 below zero.

McMurdo is only a few feet above sea level. In the summer it is not uncommon to see men walking about camp here in wool shirts, light shoes and then caps with the ear flaps lose.

Even in summer, however, the wind can become a hostile intruder, snapping the warmth out of the air and piercing bare cheeks and ears.

In the winter, when the sun quits the sky altogether, McMurdo is invested with something less than a resort atmosphere. It was 47.9 below zero one day last August.

Nobody seems to know exactly how much it snows here. The stuff gets blown around so much it's difficult to measure. One guess is that the average is 15 inches a year — considerably less than in many parts of the United States.

What was, no doubt, the last troop camp of '58 was the overnight of Troop 32 at Pine Wood recently. For these fly - ups it was a first experience in making their own bedrolls, doing the cooking and other kapers by patrols. According to Mrs. J. E. Wood, leader, and Mrs. J. C. Nolan, who accompanied them, they did a good job and has fun along with all they did.

The cool evening made supper in front of the open fire more enjoyable because of the novelty. Singing and games filled the hour allotted for camp fire, and soon everyone was ready for bed. Sleeping in the cold on the porch made each girl snuggle down readily under her blankets, finding it not at all hard to get in the required hours of sleep. It's an old camping custom that no one stirs out of bed until the alarm goes off at the agreed-upon time. On a cold morning nobody wants to.

Shivering, the firebuilders dressed quickly, and soon had a big fire going at the designated cooking place. The warmth of the fire and the sunshine soon drew everyone out of the building, except the cook patrol, which mixed biscuit dough and made cocoa in the kitchen. When the fire had burned to coals, the girls cooked breadtwists on sticks, the favorite breakfast, as far as we can find out, of Girl Scout campers.

Hiking to the river, without which no camp would be complete, took the rest of the morning. It's fun to look for shells, to climb over the dead tree across the path, to learn some of the trees and plants along the way. Mostly it's fun just to be out of doors and to be able to run and play.

At noontime, after enjoying a one - pot meal cooked out of doors, the girls had birthday cake for dessert. Their leader baked the cake, placing two candles on it for the years the troop has been in existence. Registered recently in the troop are the following girls: Jane Brant, Omega Marie Christian, Linda Coates, Sandra Davis, Sherry Dickenhorst, Denise Duncan, Caroline Inabnett, Helen Keith, Gayle Nolan Mina Parrish, Kathryn Shaver, Donna Spargo, Sue Spight, Carol Ann Sugar, Diane Tomlinson, Karen Walker, Dottie Whitfield, Irma Wood, Sherry Wood. Mrs. M. H. Duncan, Mrs. J. S. Davis, Mrs. K. W. Inabnett serve on the troop committee.

At its meeting last week Troop 48 held a court of awards, the girls receiving the badges they had earned during the summer at camp and in special classes like pottery or cooking. Mrs. M. A. Denoux, leader, presented the following badges: Brenda Carso: Horsewoman, Adventurer, Conservation, Campcraft, Cooking. Marilyn Denoux: Sewing, Pottery, Conservation, Campcraft, Adventurer. Janet Kiper: Cook, Conservation. Pat Pickett: Three, Adventurer, Conservation. Mary Reynolds: Conservation. Kaki Stone: Pottery, Conservation, Campcraft, Adventurer. Dianne Womack: Cook, Adventurer, Campcraft, Conservation, Mary Alice Yeldell: Pottery, Conservation. Susie Wright: Cook, Pottery, Campcraft. Becky Wright: Cook, Pottery, Tree, Campcraft, Dianne Womack and Mary Alice Yeldell served cookies which they had baked. The meeting concluded with a friendship circle and "Taps."

One more week of school, and then the two weeks that every youngster looks forward to — Christmas.

Gen. De Gaulle Tosses Hat Into President Race

PARIS (UPI)—Gen Charles DeGaulle formally agreed Saturday to run for president of the fifth French republic he fathered. His election was regarded as certain.

All other major French political parties have announced they will support DeGaulle.

DeGaulle's decision to seek election as the first president of the new republic was announced by Rene Cassin, president of a three-man constitutional committee supervising the elections. Cassin met with DeGaulle for 30 minutes at the Premier's official residence, the Matignon Hotel.

"The general told me he agrees to run," Cassin told waiting newsmen.

The new chief executive will be elected in a secret vote by 75,000 grand electors — members of parliament and local assemblies and municipal councils. It was a foregone conclusion that DeGaulle would win easily.

As president, DeGaulle will hold executive powers vastly greater than any chief of state of France since the fall of Emperor Napoleon III in 1870. Among other things, he will hold the power to name his own prime ministers and ministers and to call new general elections if the National Assembly opposes his policies.

The president will be elected for seven years. Results of the vote next week will be announced officially early next month.

ABOMINABLE SNOWMEN EXIST

Priest Sheds Light On Legendary Sect

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—A missionary priest back from 13 years in the high Himalayas said Saturday the legendary abominable snowmen of the area actually are religious recluses dedicated to curing human ills.

The Reverend Father Franz Eichinger, who lived at a Roman Catholic mission during his stay in the mountains, said he met one of the hermits and had photographs of him.

In an interview with United Press International, the priest scoffed at reports that the 'abominable snowmen" are half-human, hairy beasts whose only trace are huge footprints in the snow. Stories of such creatures, called "yeti," have intrigued the world for years and an American-sponsored expedition currently is in the mountains of Nepal trying to fine one. Russian scientists have said they believe in the existence of Yeti.

But Father Eichinger said "these highly-religious hermits are definitely what are popularly known as abominable snowmen.

"Reports that these men are responsible for acts of cannibalism are absurd."

They are "just like normal human beings," he said, although they are very thin from fasting, live on strange plants and do seem to have powers that allow them to roam the mountains stark naked in below-freezing temperatures without apparent ill-effects.

"Their main calling is the curing of people, particularly children," the priest said.

He referred to them as "saints" in the areas they inhabit. When they visit villages they wear a loin cloth.

As for the huge footprints of snowmen." Father Eichinger said he believed the holy men make them.

"Naturally, when they walk with their bare feet on the snow, the snow melts around the print, making it larger," he said. "Then this print freezes and leads people to believe they are made by giants."

"The one I met spoke the native dialect and a little Chinese. He was the son of a blacksmith," the priest said.

"These holy recluses are capable of fasting and not moving for hours and even days as yogis.

"Somehow these people are not in normal contact with the earth. They live only from plants which grow in the lower regions. They do not feel the cold or other elements at all.

"Whenever someone is sick, they come to the villages and cure them with herb remedies."

He said the recluses have no more hair than normal.

Monkey Rocket Test Protested

LONDON (AP)—The National Canine Defense League protested today to U.S. ambassador John Hay Whitney the launching of a U.S. space rocket with a monkey aboard.

"The National Canine Defense League, which protested against Russia's launching of a dog into space, records its loathing of America's experiment with a monkey in this ghastly way," the telegram to Whitney said.

NORTH, SOUTH DEMOS JOIN FORCES

Solons Hoping To Make Bombings Federal Offense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Democratic senators, one from the North and one from the South, joined Saturday in an intersectional campaign for legislation to make school and church bombings a federal criminal offense.

The drive was launched by Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N. C.) in a letter to the other 96 senators urging support of their proposal when Congress reconvenes in January.

They said the legislation was needed to help curb the recent outbreak of dynamitings that has hit widely scattered communities, most heavily in the South. Their bill would provide the death penalty in some cases.

Kennedy introduced similar legislation in the last Congress. He and Ervin said this measure would be revised and reoffered next year with hopes that numerous other senators would join in sponsoring it.

One addition would spell out that the legislation would not deprive local authorities of any jurisdiction. This apparently was designed to meet objections that might be raised on states' rights grounds.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) an influential Southerner, has indicated he would support such legislation if a states' rights safeguard were included.

The Kennedy-Ervin letter noted that when Kennedy introduced his bill last May "there had been at least 47 instances in which lawless elements had attempted to intimidate communities in 10 different states."

"During the (congressional) recess," the senators said, "there have been new evidences of complete disregard of life and property to intimidate communities and businesses."

Some of the cases involved integrated schiols in the south. Kennedy and Ervin cited reports that the crimes were "interstate in character" but said the federal government lacked proof of this and could not act without it.

"In the last two bombings the FBI has assisted the local authorities, but it has been handicapped by lack of authority to initiate its own investigation," they said.

The Kennedy - Ervin bill would provide federal penalties for bombing of business establishments as well as schools, places of worship and community centers.

"Recent bombings in Tennessee, Georgia, West Virginia and Illinois give a new imperative to this legislation," Kennedy said in a statement. "This vicious defiance of law and order is directed at the whole community in each state."

The measure would provide a maximum fine of $1,000 and a one-year jail sentence for illegal transportation or use of explosives. It would call for the death sentence in cases where an individual was killed as the result of a bombing.

The bill also would make it a federal offense for a dynamiter to flee from a state to avoid prosecution.

Gen. De Gaulle Tosses Hat Into President Race

PARIS (UPI)—Gen Charles DeGaulle formally agreed Saturday to run for president of the fifth French republic he fathered. His election was regarded as certain.

DeGaulle's only opponent in the Dec. 21 elections is a little known Communist, Georges Marrange mayor of the Paris "Red belt" suburb of Ivr and a member of the Red party's politburo.

All other major French political parties have announced they will support DeGaulle.

DeGaulle's decision to seek election as the first president of the new republic was announced by Rene Cassin, president of a three-man constitutional committee supervising the elections. Cassin met with DeGaulle for 30 minutes at the Premier's official residence, the Matignon Hotel.

"The general told me he agrees to run," Cassin told waiting newsmen.

The new chief executive will be elected in a secret vote by 75,000 grand electors — members of parliament and local assemblies and municipal councils. It was a foregone conclusion that DeGaulle would win easily.

As president, DeGaulle will hold executive powers vastly greater than any chief of state of France since the fall of Emperor Napoleon III in 1870. Among other things, he will hold the power to name his own prime ministers and ministers and to call new general elections if the National Assembly opposes his policies.

The president will be elected for seven years. Results of the vote next week will be announced officially early next month.

ABOMINABLE SNOWMEN EXIST

Priest Sheds Light On Legendary Sect

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI)—A missionary priest back from 13 years in the high Himalayas said Saturday the legendary abominable snowmen of the area actually are religious recluses dedicated to curing human ills.

The Reverend Father Franz Eichinger, who lived at a Roman Catholic mission during his stay in the mountains, said he met one of the hermits and had photographs of him.

In an interview with United Press International, the priest scoffed at reports that the 'abominable snowmen" are half-human, hairy beasts whose only trace are huge footprints in the snow. Stories of such creatures, called "yeti," have intrigued the world for years and an American-sponsored expedition currently is in the mountains of Nepal trying to fine one. Russian scientists have said they believe in the existence of Yeti.

But Father Eichinger said "these highly-religious hermits are definitely what are popularly known as abominable snowmen.

"Reports that these men are responsible for acts of cannibalism are absurd."

They are "just like normal human beings," he said, although they are very thin from fasting, live on strange plants and do seem to have powers that allow them to roam the mountains stark naked in below-freezing temperatures without apparent ill-effects.

"Their main calling is the curing of people, particularly children," the priest said.

He referred to them as "saints" in the areas they inhabit. When they visit villages they wear a loin cloth.

As for the huge footprints of snowmen," Father Eichinger said he believed the holy men make them.

"Naturally, when they walk with their bare feet on the snow, the snow melts around the print, making it larger," he said. "Then this print freezes and leads people to believe they are made by giants."

"The one I met spoke the native dialect and a little Chinese. He was the son of a blacksmith," the priest said.

"These holy recluses are capable of fasting and not moving for hours and even days as yogis.

"Somehow these people are not in normal contact with the earth. They live only from plants which grow in the lower regions. They do not feel the cold or other elements at all.

"Whenever someone is sick, they come to the villages and cure them with herb remedies."

He said the recluses have no more hair than normal.

Monkey Rocket Test Protested

LONDON (AP)—The National Canine Defense League protested today to U.S. ambassador John Hay Whitney the launching of a U.S. space rocket with a monkey aboard.

"The National Canine Defense League, which protested against Russia's launching of a dog into space, records its loathing of America's experiment with a monkey in this ghastly way," the telegram to Whitney said.

NORTH, SOUTH DEMOS JOIN FORCES

Solons Hoping To Make Bombings Federal Offense

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Democratic senators, one from the North and one from the South, joined Saturday in an intersectional campaign for legislation to make school and church bombings a federal criminal offense.

The drive was launched by Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Sam J. Ervin Jr. (D-N. C.) in a letter to the other 96 senators urging support of their proposal when Congress reconvenes in January.

They said the legislation was needed to help curb the recent outbreak of dynamitings that has hit widely scattered communities, most heavily in the South. Their bill would provide the death penalty in some cases.

Kennedy introduced similar legislation in the last Congress. He and Ervin said this measure would be revised and reoffered next year with hopes that numerous other senators would join in sponsoring it.

One addition would spell out that the legislation would not deprive local authorities of any jurisdiction. This apparently was designed to meet objections that might be raised on states' rights grounds.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) an influential Southerner, has indicated he would support such legislation if a states' rights safeguard were included.

The Kennedy-Ervin letter noted that when Kennedy introduced his bill last May "there had been at least 47 instances in which lawless elements had attempted to intimidate communities in 10 different states."

"During the (congressional) recess," the senators said, "there have been new evidences of complete disregard of life and property to intimidate communities and businesses."

Some of the cases involved integrated schiols in the south. Kennedy and Ervin cited reports that the crimes were "interstate in character" but said the federal government lacked proof of this and could not act without it.

"In the last two bombings the FBI has assisted the local authorities, but it has been handicapped by lack of authority to initiate its own investigation," they said.

The Kennedy - Ervin bill would provide federal penalties for bombing of business establishments as well as schools, places of worship and community centers.

"Recent bombings in Tennessee, Georgia, West Virginia and Illinois give a new imperative to this legislation," Kennedy said in a statement. "This vicious defiance of law and order is directed at the whole community in each state."

The measure would provide a maximum fine of $1,000 and a one-year jail sentence for illegal transportation or use of explosives. It would call for the death sentence in cases where an individual was killed as the result of a bombing.

The bill also would make it a federal offense for a dynamiter to flee from a state to avoid prosecution.

Kidnap Plot Is Thwarted By Gun Play

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A fugitive member of a kidnap gang was hunted Saturday after a blazing gun battle in which one of his companions was slain and two others wounded and captured by police.

The intended victim of the kidnap - robbery plot was Felix Marchegiani, 61-year-old building contractor who was nicked by a bullet in the shooting fray which erupted at his modest home here late Friday night when the robbers walked into a police trap.

The stage was set for the pitched battle when FBI agents tipped off Washington police that the kidnap attempt was impending. They had learned that the gang planned to abduct Marchegiani from his home and force him to go to his office and open the safe.

Slain by detectives hidden in the house was Raleigh Morton, 30. Wounded and under police guard at a hospital were Charles Cross, 38, and Gene C. Smawley, 28. The fourth accomplice who fled the scene was also wounded, police believe.

Acting on the FBI tip, detectives had concealed themselves in Marchegiani's home while two squad cars deployed at vantage points outside.

At about the time police thought the attempt had been called off, four men showed up in two cars. One wore dark clothes which made him look like a policeman. The others, wearing stocking masks over their heads, went to the door.

Two were armed with pistols, the others with sawed-off shotguns.

The shooting began when one of the bandits caught a glimpse of a detective hidden behind a couch. Police outside said the entire house seemed to explode with gunfire.

Three of the intruders fell, hit by bullets. The fourth, believed wounded, escaped. Marchegiani was struck in the shoulder by a stray bullet. No police were wounded.

STRONG CONVICTIONS

Oklahoma Governor Says Integration Will Stay

By DAYTON BLAIR

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Heaven doesn't have any special outside rooms, the governor of this once - segregated state is telling the south.

A product of southern social standards himself, Gov. Raymond Gary has quietly preached his personal belief that integration is here to stay.

He says he has made friends wherever he has spoken.

He has made recent speeches on the subject in Macon, Ga., Tucson, Ariz., and Dallas. In each place he has said this nation must accept Christian principles. Although he doesn't mention integration directly, his implication is unmistakable. He has confirmed his meaning later.

Excerpts from the speeches:

"We are all God's children because God made us all in his image. I'm sure there are no special outside rooms in Heaven."

"You see a nation (the United States) whose convictions have not been strong enough in the past, and are apparently not strong enough today, to carry out this program of equal opportunities for all people without strife and bickering."

"God is no respector of persons. Prejudices, and we all have them, are contrary to the will of God. No nation can continue to be strong and to prosper in the sight of God whose people permit a wide gulf between the different religions and beliefs of a people."

"In order for a nation to survive materially, its people must be united together for a common cause. That cause should include respect for others, regardless of their religious beliefs, their habits or their backgrounds."

GOV. GARY — Battered Bible has prominent spot on his desk.

It was by his own insistence that Oklahoma quietly removed its historic prohibitions against integration in a 1955 statewide election. Since then 459 schools — not counting colleges — have opened their doors to Negroes. College barriers had been dropped previously.

Oklahoma's integration has been accomplished with virtually no opposition. The mixing is as general in southern counties, popularly termed "Little Dixie," as in northern areas bordering Kansas, Missouri and Colorado.

By Gary's estimate, the state is saving a million dollars a year through integration. In addition, better facilities are available where the cost of one set of schools has been eliminated.

Gary has lived all his life in traditionally - segregated southern Oklahoma. He taught school there and was a county superintendent of schools.

When he became governor, one of his first acts was to submit a constitutional amendment including a measure to abolish required separate schools. It carried by a heavy margin.

Gary, a 50 - year - old wholesale oil company owner, is an active layman in the Southern Baptist Church. He was Sunday school superintendent in his own church at Madill for any years before he became governor and moved to Oklahoma City.

The governor is reluctant about voicing his opinions on integration publicly. He doesn't want to stir opposition that might result from misinterpretation.

But he believes, and is saying more frequently, that integration is here to stay and it is only a matter of time until it is accepted throughout the nation. Oklahoma is an example, Gary says, of what can be done when persons in high places begin working toward the change rather than attempting to prevent any change.

BLASTS 'EISENHOWERISM'

Author Blames Ike For GOP Losses

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (UPI) — Clarence Budington Kelland, author and former executive director of the Republican National Committee, blamed President Eisenhower Saturday for the Republican losses in nationwide elections last month.

Kelland, in a letter to Republican National Chairman Meade Alcorn, said Eisenhower's pursuit of "a thing called new Republicanism" has betrayed every principle of the GOP.

"The blame for the disgraceful Republican defeat on election day should be placed squarely where it belongs—on the lap of President Dwight Eisenhower," Kelland wrote.

He said neither of Eisenhower's two presidential victories was a victory for the Republican Party. He termed each as "a curious phenomenon resulting from an unreasoning hallucination that he possessed qualities of leadership which would lift us out of the slough of socialism and statism into which we had been plunged by Roosevelt and Truman."

"As a matter of tragic fact," Kelland said, "Dwight Eisenhower was a facade with no solid structure behind it. Like a stage set on a motion picture lot he presented an attractive and impressive picture; but you opened any door in the scenery and found yourself in a vacant lot.

"The public, for a time, was in the grip of hysterical infatuation for an idealized personage who never existed, save in its hopeful imagination."

Kelland characterized Eisenhower as a military man who, after six years in office, still does not know whether he is a Republican or Democrat.

He charged that under the regime of former White House assistant "cold, austere, self-righteous" Sherman Adams, the Republican Party all but ceased to exist. He accused Eisenhower of delegating his theoretical political thinking to "his devious, dangerous, left wing brother Milton and others of that subversive ilk."

Kelland said Eisenhower had made incredibly stupid appointments chief of which was that of Earl Warren as chief justice of the United States.

Two Parachute To Safety From U.S. Jet Plane

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—An Air Force RB-57 jet reconnaissance plane crashed at nearby Holtville Saturday. The two occupants parachuted safely to the ground after two engines in the craft stopped burning and lost power.

The Michigan Air National Guard craft from Kellogg Air Force Base, Fla., Maxwell Air Force Base officer said.

Elmore County Sheriff Lester Holley said the aircraft hit in a clearing about 200 feet from the diary of J. H. Nolan and the wreckage was scattered over a large area.

No one was hit and no property damage was reported, Holley said.

Names of the occupants of the plane were not immediately available.

'Redskins' To Open At NLSC Monday Night

Dress rehearsal tonight will climax a week of preparation for tomorrow's opening of "Redskins on Parade," student variety show at Northeast State. Curtain time is 8 p.m. and the show will have a two-night run in Brown Auditorium on the campus.

"Redskins" is a student council sponsored project, which has become one of Northeast's traditional events.

The show seems to be running in top condition, according to Norman Jones, director. Campus groups have displayed fine interest in the performance by preparing acts for the production, he said. Work on the sets has been going at full speed, and preparations as a whole indicate a full evening of entertainment is in store.

Master of ceremonies will be Bill Norris, a speech education major and announcer for a local radio station. The stage crew, which has had its hands full with countless props, costumes, and materials, is doing an excellent job, the director said.

14 ACTS

Fourteen acts marked by enough variety to appeal to an audience of different interests are scheduled. The program will be on the musical side with humor also coming in for a big share of entertainment. "Redskins" will represent the cream of Northeast's campus talent, according to the director.

Opening the performance will be a new feature presented by the "Redskins Girls," one from each department of the college. Other acts will include a medley of songs from "South Pacific," vocal solos, pantomines, a fire baton specialty, presentation of the history of jazz, a take-off on the Ed Sullivan Show, a skit emphasizing "Julius Caesar," and satire on "Dance to Autumn."

A colorful dance sequence will be given by one of the clubs, the Pershing Rifles will present a musical act with its vocal group and an intricate drill performance will be given by the ROTC drill unit.

The numbers are scheduled to illustrate variety in showmanship, which has been traditional of "Redskins" performances.

Bootlegger Asks To Be Baptized

PARIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Convicted bootlegger Marlon Hawks will attend services at the Maplewood Baptist Church here Sunday in company with Henry County Sheriff Hortie Hutson.

Hawks, a 30-year-old native of Humboldt, Tenn., is serving a four-months sentence for illegally hauling whisky into the county.

Hawks asked Hutson for permission to be baptized Sunday at the church, saying Hutson's appointment of the Rev. Boyd Lecroy as jail chaplain and Lecroy's Sunday afternoon services at the jail made him decide to join the church.

"I'm a changed man now," Hawks said.

Hawks will be returned to jail after his baptism.

Tech Registers 1,807 Vehicles

RUSTON, (Special) — On the campus of Louisiana Tech are 1,807 automobiles registered in the safety division of the college, Security Officer M. E. McFadden has announced.

This total includes cars operated by both faculty members and students.

"The number of cars at Tech is growing all the time," McFadden said, "and we expect the total to pass 2,000 in the spring semester."

MOTHER, FOUR CHILDREN SLAIN

Officers Pressing Wide Search For Brutal Killer

By CLARENCE RAWLINGS
United Press International

EL CAJON, Calif. (UPI) — Police and sheriff's deputies manned roadblocks in this area and authorities in the entire West were alerted Saturday in a massive manhunt for an 18-year-old boy who they believe shot a mother to death and then fatally slashed her four small children.

The hunt for the suspect, a youth whom the family had befriended, was touched off when the father, Thomas Pendergast, came home to find the bodies of his wife and four children strewn about in one of the bloodiest mass slayings in California history.

Pendergast said when he arrived home from work Friday, the youth who has given his name as Charles Harrison and said he was from Rochester, N. Y., met him at the door with a pistol in his hand and forced him to drive to downtown San Diego, 20 miles to the west. Pendergast managed to wrest the pistol from the youth who fled on foot.

It was then that Pendergast, an aircraft worker, went back to his home to find the carnage.

Discovres Family Dead

He was not long in learning the horrible truth. His 37 - year - old wife, Lois, lay in the hallway of their home. She had been shot to death.

Then in other parts of the house and the garage he found his children, their throats slashed and two of them disemboweled.

The children were Allen, 2, and Diana, 4, found in the bathroom with their throats cut; Thomas, 6, found in a bedroom with his throat slashed and his abdomen ripped open; and David, 9, the eldest, found in a bathroom in the garage, also disemboweled and with his throat cut.

Police Sgt. Frank Le Count, one of the first investigators on the scene, said "It was like a slaughterhouse — the most sickening thing I've ever seen. Blood was everywhere."

NO STRUGGLE

He said the victims apparently fell without a struggle although David may have seen what was going on an tried to take refuge in the garage where his killer cornered him and slashed the little boy to death.

Le Count said there was no immediate evidence of any sexual molestation although the coroner would make tests along that line.

The shocked father was taken to the psychiatric ward at the county hospital for his own protection. Police said he was almost insane with grief and feared he might attempt to take his own life.

Police were fearful that the killer might strike again if he remained at large for any length of time and roadblocks were set at the U. S. - Mexico border and at the Arizona-California border.

Pendergast brought Harrison into his home Nov. 2 after picking him up as the youth was hitchhiking.

Harrison is tall and lanky in build — about six feet four inches in height and weighing between 150 and 160 pounds. The official police bulletin described him as "pimply - faced, slender build, with a large nose, and brown hair in a crew cut."

He was last seen by Pendergast and believed to be wearing a gray silk shirt and brown trousers —garments he had taken from his benefactor.

St. Le Count said the murder rampage apparently took place between 2 and 3 o'clock Friday afternoon and added that the youth in leisurely fashion changed his clothes and awaited the arrival of Pendergast.

When he fled from Pendergast he left behind a suitcase which contained a few personal belongings including two hunting knives —one six - inches long and the other 10 inches. Police said the 10-inch knife was blood - stained and may have been the weapon which took the lives of the four children.

Executive Jobs Often Are Hinging On Wives

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A bright young executive recently signed a five - year contract, at a large salary, to become vice president in charge of sales for an old and well established firm located in a small Midwestern community.

The young executive, however, did not give up his New York apartment nor did he move his attractive wife and two children to a new home close to his job. Instead, he chose to commute back to New York for weekends with his family, and set up bachelor quarters near his office in which he lived the other five days of the week.

"This proved he was really bright," remarked the head of the executive recruitment firm which had placed him with the company. "He liked the job, he liked the money, but he had met the top officials of the firm and their wives — and he realized that the presence of his own wife in the community would mean nothing but trouble for him."

Mrs. Executive, however, neither ate with her knife nor turned abusive on her third martini. She was, in fact, attractive, extremely chic, well - read, a charming hostess and considered very witty.

"The social life of the company officials and their wives was as carefully organized as that of an Army post," continued the placement man. "the president and his top executives were all self-made men who had married young. Their wives were older, comfortable — and not the least bit sophisticated and smart. They would have loathed — and been frightened by — our man's wife. They wouldn't have tried to compete with her, but they could have and would have made things so difficult with their husbands that her husband wouldn't have lasted a year in the job.

His arrangement is working out beautifully. During the week, he keeps up his social end — and everybody loves having an extra man for dinners. He is doing a splendid job and he apparently is reconciled to weekly plane trips."

The bright young executive actually pulled a reverse switch on what is gradually becoming standard operating procedure in employment offices. In many, if not most, of the higher echelons of hiring, the little woman is getting almost as close a scrutiny as her husband before a firm job offer comes through.

Because more and more businesses think of themselves in family terms, it is often no longer enough that John Jones, candidate for sales manager, is ideally equipped for the job. A yardstick — usually quietly but sometimes obviously — is more and more frequently being used to measure Mrs. Jones as the prospective sales manager's wife. Is she a good hostess? How is her English? Are her clothes in good tastes? What kind of a home does she run? Is she a nag, a hypochondriac? Is shecatty, a gossip, a potential trouble-maker?

In the nation's business community, where today's trend is toward bigger and bigger organizations, employers often are enlisting the help of psychologists and psychological tests to cue them on a man's abilities and potentials. No longer is it enough for a position - seeker to turn up for an interview with an employer dressed in his best blue serge suit and white shirt. Today he is likely to sit down to a long test which is designed to reveal whether he is happy, adjusted, stable and would fit into a company pattern. And because a man's private life and his home life are increasingly considered to be part of his business life, his wife is often required to submit to some probings, too.

The move toward the psychological testing of prospective employees has in recent years come under sporadic fire from critics who hold that such tests in many cases constitute an invasion of privacy, that the tests themselves were originally developed for clinical use and contain many questions more nosy than useful, and that results often prove more about the adjustment of the person who grades the test than about the subject.

When it was learned that one company was enlarging its psychological scope to include wives, more thunder came from the opponents of testing techniques.

NEW HAZARD

"You could destroy a marriage with a test like that," remarked the head of one big firm of management consultants. "If a man thought he was in line for a good job and never heard anything more about it after his wife took a test, both the man and his wife might well believe that he lost his big chance because of her. And if she were shy, or insecure, or even normally sensitive, this could have dreadful results in a marriage."

"You don't need psychological tests to learn about people," said another man who specializes in executive man - hunts for large corporations. "If you know what to look for, you can find out just about anything you want to know about a man and his wife by spending a few hours with them—including some at their home."

IF VOTE FILES NOT PRODUCED

Alabama Judge May Go To Jail

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — An Alabama judge and five other public officials may go to jail, perhaps for months, unless they abandon their refusal to produce evidence about Negro voter registration.

A federal judge noted as a courtroom disciplinarian has instructed them to surrender contested records to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission next Friday and submit to questioning about registration in their counties.

Despite their protests of judicial immunity, the officials could be put behind bars and kept there even while appealing the sentence to higher courts.

Both surviving members of the Macon Board of Registrars — the third member died last month—resigned in protest against the civil rights hearing at which they and registrars in two other counties refused to testify.

The resignation of Chairman E. P. Livingston and Grady Rogers left prospective voters with no way to register in the county where Negroes outnumber white residents nearly 6-1.

Livingston and Rigers refused to testify under oath at the two-day hearing in Montgomery, protesting that they are judicial officers whose official conduct cannot be challenged. So did registrars W. A. Stokes and J. W. Spencer in Barbour County and M. T. Evans in Bullock.

They also appeared without their registration files explaining they had been impounded by state authorities. The same strategy likewise kept the commission from getting records in Dallas, Lowndes and Wilcox counties, but the refusal to testify did not extend to registrars in those counties.

The voting files in Barbour and Bullock were impounded by Circuit Judge George Wallace even before the commission subpoenaed them. Wallace ignored a demand to produce them at the hearing and refused even to appears himself.

Wallace and the five silent registration officials were all included in the federal court order issued Thursday by U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. in Montgomery.

Atty. Gen. John Patterson, Alabama's governor-elect who directed the resistance at the hearing, has promised to resist the court order. He contends the commission had no right to subpoena the voter registration records or question the official acts of the board members.

He said he will ask Johnson for a hearing next week to give him the chance to raise the legal issues before the Friday afternoon deadline. If he could do that, then appeal to higher courts if turned down by the judge here, the question could be settled before reaching the point of a contempt citation.

But Johnson may not agree to that. He may wait until Friday and then cite the defiant officials if they fail to produce the requested evidence.

If the federal judge pursues that course, he will give the defendants a chance then to show why they shouldn't be punished for defiance of his order. They might convince him that they had a legal right to refuse to testify or to produce their records.

If they failed, Johnson could send them to jail and keep them there until they agree to comply with the commission's demands, no matter how long it might be. He could even refuse to release them on bond pending an appeal to higher courts.

Passman Says Rule Changes To Be Opposed

WASHINGTON — Proposals by proponents of stronger "so-called civil rights" legislation seeking to change some of the rules of procedure of the U. S. House of Representatives will be "tenaciously opposed, and probably successfully so," by most members of Congress from the South—as well as by others who "believe in safeguarding the rights of the states and the people" — Congressman Otto E. Passman of Monroe, La., asserted in a statement.

He termed Southern political unity as being of the "utmost importance" in carrying on this fight.

"Southern congressmen who stand firm for principles and truth face the most difficult legislative battles imaginable," said Passman. "And the runaway trend toward ever - increasing federal spending has complicated tremendously the task ahead of us."

He added: "We have permitted outselves to surrender many of our most important rights in return for more and more federal handouts. Controls inevitably follow the money, which is a regrettable fact that cannot be successfully contradicted."

More than 25 per cent of all funds now received by the state government in Louisiana, he pointed out, is from federal sources.

"But we must hope, in continuing the struggle for the people to remain the sovereigns of these United States," the congressman said, "that the good sense of all the American people is beginning to bring them to understand that the undermining of the Constitution is one of our most pressing problems.

"In brief," he concluded, "if we are to check this trend and stabilize conditions, we need to hold fast to the belief that ultimately we shall do so."

World's Tots Think Santa Is American

NEW YORK (AP)—Some children around the world appear confident that Santa Claus is an American, or at least that he lives in New York.

More than 50 of 3,000 "Santa Claus" letters already received at the post office here came from children in foreign countries.

Those from across the sea bore addresses such as "Santa Claus, North Pole, New York City" and "Dear Father Christmas, New York."

They came from countries including Germany, Italy, England, Ireland, France, Cuba and New Zealand.

But whether from at home or abroad, the letters have the same tone of simple faith that Santa will not forget. Some are poignant.

Eileen, a cerebral palsey sufferer on New York's lower East Side, wants a doll, but she wants to walk, too.

"This year I have improved a lot," she wrote. "I am walking better since I get exercises every day. The doctor said I will soon be walking better if I try. I sure want to walk.

SAC Maintains Continued Vigil

By JAMES C. WEBSTER

OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE, Neb. (UPI) — The Strategic Air Command, nearing the end of missile year 1, refused to be dissuaded from its mission—keeping the free world safe.

Its planners maintained the command's mighty bomber force, strong enough to wipe out much of Russia, to convince the Kremlin it would be unwise to attack.

But at the same time, SAC stride with giant steps in its new responsibility to train and maintain crews to fire the nation's intercontinental and intermediate range ballistic missiles.

SAC entered this year a mere two months after it was given the responsibility, watched the first Atlas ICBM fired successfully, and geared to fire its own. That is expected soon after the first of the year.

NEW SOLDIER TRAINED

While the 1st Missile Division was busy getting on its feet and training a new kind of soldier — the missile man — SAC began spreading the missiles over the United States and the government found some overseas bases.

Francis E. Warren AFB, Wyo., the nation's first ICBM base, went under construction and additional launching bases were marked off around Offutt, Fairchild AFB. Wash., and Forbes AFB, Kan.

Lowry AFB, Colo., was handed a Titan ICBM base while Presque Isle AFB, Maine, was earmarked for a squadron of Snark operators.

The Department of Defense designated the command to train Royal Air Force crews in operating the Atlas and handed the British government a supply of the sleek and successful missiles. The RAF crews are in training at Vandenberg AFB, Calif.

TO FLY TO ITALY

Defense officials flew to Italy last week to discuss deployment of an unannounced IRBM. SAC would not say, but it was assumed Italian crews would be trained and given the missiles outright instead of basing SAC crews there.

The command meanwhile began watching its missile arsenal grow as government announcements assigned more weapons to SAC.

The Goose, a new intercontinental but non - ballistic missile used for a decoy, was earmarked for launching sites near Duluth, Minn., and Burlington, Vt.

But the future of the Goose was still in the air because Defense Department and congressional officials were dickering over money for the program.

Two smaller missiles, both air-to-ground, were given to the command as soon as it is capable of using them. They are the Quail, a decoy missile, and the hush-hush Hunddog, believed to be a missile with quite a bit of power and range.

Sister Of Boston Archbishop Dies Of Heart Attack

BOSTON (AP)—Miss Elizabeth Cushing, 66, eldest sister of Archbishop Richard J. Cushing who is in Rome for his formal induction into the Sacred College of Cardinals, died Saturday. Death apparently was due to a heart attack.

Miss Cushing's brother, John, with whom she lived, also is in Rome for the consistory.

A neighbor found the body lying on the floor of the three-story house.

IF VOTE FILES NOT PRODUCED

Alabama Judge May Go To Jail

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — An Alabama judge and five other public officials may go to jail, perhaps for months, unless they abandon their refusal to produce evidence about Negro voter registration.

A federal judge noted as a courtroom disciplinarian has instructed them to surrender contested records to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission next Friday and submit to questioning about registration in their counties.

Despite their protests of judicial immunity, the officials could be put behind bars and kept there even while appealing the sentence to higher courts.

Both surviving members of the Macon Board of Registrars — the third member died last month—resigned in protest against the civil rights hearing at which they and registrars in two other counties refused to testify.

The resignation of Chairman E. P. Livingston and Grady Rogers left prospective voters with no way to register in the county where Negroes outnumber white residents nearly 6-1.

Livingston and Rigers refused to testify under oath at the two-day hearing in Montgomery, protesting that they are judicial officers whose official conduct can not be challenged. So did registrars W. A. Stokes and J. W. Spencer in Barbour County and M. T. Evans in Bullock.

They also appeared without their registration files explaining they had been impounded by state authorities. The same strategy likewise kept the commission from getting records in Dallas, Lowndes and Wilcox counties, but the refusal to testify did not extend to registrars in those counties.

The voting files in Barbour and Bullock were impounded by Circuit Judge George Wallace even before the commission subpoenaed them. Wallace ignored a demand to produce them at the hearing and refused even to appears himself.

Wallace and the five silent registration officials were all included in the federal court order issued Thursday by U.S. Dist. Judge Frank M. Johnson Jr. in Montgomery.

Atty. Gen. John Patterson, Alabama's governor-elect who directed the resistance at the hearing, has promised to resist the court order. He contends the commission had no right to subpoena the voter registration records or question the official acts of the board members.

He said he will ask Johnson for a hearing next week to give him the chance to raise the legal issues before the Friday afternoon deadline. If he could do that, then appeal to higher courts if turned down by the judge here, the question could be settled before reaching the point of a contempt citation.

But Johnson may not agree to that. He may wait until Friday and then cite the defiant officials if they fail to produce the requested evidence.

If the federal judge pursues that course, he will give the defendants a chance then to show why they shouldn't be punished for defiance of his order. They might convince him that they had a legal right to refuse to testify or to produce their records.

If they failed, Johnson could send them to jail and keep them there until they agree to comply with the commission's demands, no matter how long it might be. He could even refuse to release them on bond pending an appeal to higher courts.

Paul Martin
Looks 'Em Over

Nearly twenty years ago Gus Kallio, a native of Finland who came to the United States as a youth to become the world's undisputed middleweight wrestling champion, set up shop as a wrestling and boxing promoter in Monroe. Now he is rounding out his last year as a promoter. The Walnut street arena will be under new management in 1959.

Kallio made wrestling pay in the Twin Cities at a time when friends and business leaders were advising him that the mat game was a risky venture and wouldn't be profitable. But Kallio, who had ruled the middleweight ranks for ten years before losing his crown in 1939 in Mexico City, is now ready to retire, however reluctantly, on the advice of his physician and friends. Over a year ago he disposed of his skating rink. Now he is selling his wrestling interests.

August Baumgartner of West Monroe, who was reared in Missouri, married a Wisconsin lady, and came to Louisiana from Illinois ten years ago, is acquiring Kallio's interests and plans to continue uninterrupted promotion of wrestling for the Twin Cities.

Baumgartner, who had purchased Kallio's skating interests on October 17, 1957, operating at the same Walnut street arena except on the nights of mat and boxing shows, yesterday declared his intentions to "try to do as good as Mr. Kallio has done."

"I don't know of anyone who can do as good a job as Mr. Kallio when it comes to promoting wrestling cards, but it is my intention to try my best to give wrestling fans here as near as possible the kind of shows they have been used to expecting."

For eight years Baumgartner operated a skating rink at Bastrop. He operated the rinks there and here until about six months ago when he sold his Bastrop rink to George Perry.

Mr. and Mrs. Baumgartner and their two daughters, Beth, age 16, and Mary, 14, are making their home at 1407 Trenton street, West Monroe.

Kallio, as the licensed promoter here for 1958, will continue as promoter until Baumgartner secures the 1959 license from the Louisiana Boxing and Wrestling Commission. Dave Silverstein, district commissioner of the LBWC, has already assisted Baumgartner in making his license application.

Coming to this country from Finland as a teenager, Kallio remained to become one of the nation's best known wrestlers during the 1920s and 1930s. He became a promoter here in 1939 within a few weeks after losing his middleweight crown. Last month he suffered a mild stroke, spent several days in St. Francis Hospital, is now at his home and plans to take things easy for a while, rest, and visit with friends. He may take a vacation to Canada to visit his brother, Isaac, who was here for a few days recently. Kallio's brother lives at Toronto, and vows he will get Gus north for some of the "fine fishing in our lakes."

Sale of his wrestling business has been a hard decision for Kallio to make. He loves the sport, loves people and the roar of the crowd even when the cheers and jeers have been for somebody else in the latter years. He would rather keep right on with the hustle and bustle, but knows it must now be otherwise.

It was a great night for northeast Louisiana football teams Friday night — Coach "Racer" Holstead's Tallulah Trojans sacked their second straight state Class A championship, while Neville of Monroe and Holly Ridge advanced to the state finals in double-A and Class B respectively.

The Cinderella Neville Tigers, continuing to make the experts look bad, are headed for the state title finals after their 20-13 triumph over Natchitoches, and, as usual, Coach Bill Ruple's lads expected to be the less favored in their battle with Reserve here Friday.

Coach Elmo Martin's Eagles didn't let Oberlin's awesome weight bother them too much and came from behind with just two minutes left to beat the southwestern Louisiana gridders, 7 to 6. The win advanced the Richland parish boys to the Class B final with Greensburg.

Joe Driskill, Reynolds On All-Star Team

LAKE CHARLES, La. — Northwestern State and Louisiana Tech dominated the 1958 Gulf States conference all - star football team — just as they dominated the season just ended.

The Demons and the Bulldogs, who tied for first place in the championship race, each landed three first place berths on the all-star team selected by the Louisiana Sports Writers association from a poll of sports writers, sports casters and coaches.

Charley Tolar, Northwestern fullback dubbed "Mister Medium Tank" by admiring fellow students led the Demons' all-star trio. The other Demons landing first-team berths were end Billy Booth and tackle Bert Heckel.

For Louisiana Tech, tackle Henry Deloney, center Charles Stewart and halfback Paul Hynes were named.

Northeast State's Indians won two places, and the three second-division teams — McNeese, Southeastern and SLI, each earned one first-place spot.

Northeast end Joe Driskill was an easy winner at his post, but Indian quarterback Everett Reynolds edged out Northwestern's Dale Hoffpauir for the quarterback spot in the closest race on the ballot. Only one first-place and one-second-place ballot separated the two prize signal callers.

C. J. Alexander, Southeastern halfback; John Fuller, McNeese guard; and Linden Bercegeay, SLI guard, rounded out the first team.

Tolar was the only unanimous choice, and was a shoo-in for the "Outstanding Player" award. The 5-feet-7 Demon bulldogger was the conference's leading scorer, with 79 points; and was the circuit's top ball carrier, gaining 713 yards in 90 carries for an average of 7.92 yards per try over the nine-game full - season route. He also caught eight passes for 107 yards, and added 175 yards in kick returns.

Booth was the circuit's leading pass receiver, nabbing 23 aerials for 445 yards and five touchdowns. He was also a strong defensive player. Heckel, a 220-pounder was perhaps the circuit's best tackle since the days of Pat and Tommy Hinton, and won his berth without serious opposition.

All three of Northwestern's all-stars are juniors, as is Hoffpauir, who was barely nudged out of a first - place berth.

Reynolds was a smooth, smart quarterback who was the key performer in the Northeast offense all year long. Without him, the Tribe hardly would have been able to count an offense at all He was a nifty passer, an able ball carrier, a competent punter and was an artist at faking the ball.

Even so, only a hair separated him from Hoffpauir. Hoffpauir had the best full - season record, but Reynolds shaded him on conference game figures. Hoffpauir did not run with the ball, since Demon coaches did not want to take a chance of his incurring an injury.

Driskill was another outstanding performer for the Indians. He was one of the strongest defensive players in the circuit, a good blocker, and a clever pass receiver. He caught 12 passes for 316 yards and three touchdowns during the season.

A pair of defensive stalwarts—tackle Deloney and center Stewart — added their bulk to the all-star line. The two Tech aces, weighing 205 and 195 respectively, consistently led their team on defense throughout the season.

Hynes, Tech's third representative, gained 633 yards in 96 carries for a 6.59 average. He shared in his team's punting duties, was a dangerous kick returner and a strong defensive player.

Rounding out the all-star line were two unsung players on second division teams. Linden Bercegeay, a senior guard for cellar-dwelling SLI, played consistently high - class football all year. "I dont' think he has ever been outcharged in a game," said SLI Coach Jim Hoggatt. Evidently the experts agreed, because he gave him the top vote of any guard.

Fuller, a 215 - pounder who played tackle last year, was one of the strong men in the McNeese line. His weight, his experience, and his defensive ability gave him the edge over Tech's Doyan Foster and Southeastern's Art Pebetaz.

C. J. Alexander, Southeastern's hard-running halfback, rounds out a stunning backfield. Alexander was his team's offensive leader, gaining 576 yards rushing, caught five passes for 64 yards, returned 16 kicks for 358 yards, and was the top Lion scorer with 50 points.

Most of the first - team members won their posts by a wide margin on a point system based on five points for a first - team vote and three points for a second-team vote.

Closest balloting occurred between Reynolds and Hoffpauir, followed by Deloney and McNeese's Coy Scott at tackle, and Tech's Stewart and McNeese's Will Zimmerman at center.

Coaches Faring Ill In Wisconsin

By CHUCK CAPALDO

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Shakespeare had a phrase for the perils and pitfalls confronting coaches and team officials in Wisconsin these wintry days.

"Tis not my speeches that you do mislike," penned the Bard of Avon. "But 'tis my presence that doth trouble you."

Two coaches, an athletic director and a general manager are all in varying degrees of hot water.

They are Bud Foster, basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin; Scooter McLean, coach of the Green Bay Packers; Moon Mullins, athletic director of Marquette University; and Verne Lewellen, Packers' general manager.

Foster, whose teams have lost 11 straight games over the last two seasons, including all three starts this year, was hanged in effigy on the campus in Madison Friday night.

Wisconsin finished 10th in the Big Ten last season. Then Foster got together with the athletic board amid rumors that it really would be "Good Bye, Bud."

McLean and Lewellen, now in Los Angeles where the Packers close the ledger Sunday on their worst showing in the National Football League in 40 years, have been under fire at home for the last few weeks.

Petitions and auto stickers demanding the return of Curly Lambeau are being circulated in Green Bay and other cities. Lambeau managed the Packers and served as coach and general manager for 31 years.

He quit in 1949 after blasting the club's 45-man board of directors for meddling. He has said he would return if he were given a free hand.

McLean is said to have a 50-50 chance of gaining another year's contract if the Packers give a creditable account of themselves Sunday.

Only Friday, Mullins was the target of an unsuccessful drive by an alumni group who wanted him relieved of his duties. The university rejected the proposal, but there are signs he isn't out of the woods yet. Mullins is en route to Rome to attend the ordination of a son and the wedding of a daughter.

Meanwhile, the hunt continues at Marquette for a successor to Johnny Druze, who quit two weeks ago as football coach after three defeat-filled years.

Ouachita Teams To Host Neville

Ouachita boys and girls will host Neville Tuesday night in the first regular season meeting of old rivals.

Neville girls are the defending class AA state champions while Ouachita girls were runners-up in class AAA last season. Ouachita boys won the district 1-AAA championship last year. Neville boys beat previously-undefeated Fort Necessity in the finals of the Neville tourney Saturday.

Holly Ridge, Baskin Take Meet Crowns

BASKIN, La. (Special) —Baskin boys trounced Winnsboro, 67-51, and Holly Ridge girls outdefensed Mangham, 30-21, for the Championships of the Baskin Basketball Tournament here Saturday night.

Charles Mercer scored 29 points, best production of the day in the boys division, to lead Baskin over Winnsboro with 20 points.

Moton scored half her team's total, 15 points, to lead Holly Ridge over Mangham in the girls finals. Johns led Mangham with 9 tallies.

Holly Ridge whipped Crowville, 36-28, in the semi-finals with Moton scoring 18 while Cassidy got 13 for Crowville. Mangham went into the finals by whipping Central of Delhi, 50-42. Johns scored 31 points for Mangham and Pepper got 26 for Mangham.

Winnsboro edged Columbia, 60-59, in the semi-finals. Walker scored 19 for the winners and Lawrence was best for Columbia with 21. Baskin defeated Central in the other boys semi-final, 59-54. Mercer got 20 for Baskin and Doughdrill scored 21 for Central.

Indians Rally To Beat Lamar Tech

Northeast's Indians, dwarfed by the lanky invaders, bounced back from a ragged first half effort to tumble the Lamar Tech quintet, 65-61, for their fourth straight victory.

The Indians, held without a field goal for the first eleven minutes of the first half, found the mark in the final stanza to pull the game out. Hustling John Freeman, of Bismark, Mo., and Ronald Doyle, Calvert City, Ky., junior, sparked the Northeast quint in the second-half surge.

Doyle pumped in four quick goals after intermission, the last of which knotted the score at 39-39 after the Indians trailed by ten points at halftime. The ball-hawking Freeman, stole the ball away from the invaders repeatedly and swept 10 rebounds off the boards.

The 5-11 Freeman also tied for high point honors with teammate Sid Bradley. Both racked up 16 markers.

The Northeast club went into the lead for the first time with 12:40 remaining in the game when big Billy May scored on a tip in to make it 41-39. The score was tied five times after that.

Then with four minutes left in the game Mickey Kitchens put Northeast ahead to stay with a short jump shot. Freeman added four foul shots and a field goal in the last two minutes to clinch the win.

Johnny Johnston, a 6-5 center, topped the visitors with 17 points and held the high-scoring May to 11. Jim Mellard tossed in 15 more for Lamar.

Northeast had a pitful shooting percentage of 13 per cent in the first half, while the Techmen hit on 43 per cent of their shots.

Before Tulane reached the turning point, it appeared the tall Texans were about to hand the Green Wave its first loss of the season. Texas led 28-27 at the half.

Al Amanza led the Texas attack with 20 points. Texas connected for 47 per cent of its floor attempts but had only nine chances from the free throw line and made good on three of them.

Two Redskins On All-GSC

Paul Martin Looks 'Em Over

Nearly twenty years ago Gus Kallio, a native of Finland who came to the United States as a youth to become the world's undisputed middleweight wrestling champion, set up shop as a wrestling and boxing promoter in Monroe. Now he is rounding out his last year as a promoter. The Walnut street arena will be under new management in 1959.

Kallio made wrestling pay in the Twin Cities at a time when friends and business leaders were advising him that the mat game was a risky venture and wouldn't be profitable. But Kallio, who had ruled the middleweight ranks for ten years before losing his crown in 1939 in Mexico City, is now ready to retire, however reluctantly, on the advice of his physician and friends. Over a year ago he disposed of his skating rink. Now he is selling his wrestling interests.

August Baumgartner of West Monroe, who was reared in Missouri, married a Wisconsin lady, and came to Louisiana from Illinois ten years ago, is acquiring Kallio's interests and plans to continue uninterrupted promotion of wrestling for the Twin Cities.

Baumgartner, who had purchased Kallio's skating interests on October 17, 1957, operating at the same Walnut street arena except on the nights of mat and boxing shows, yesterday declared his intentions to "try to do as good as Mr. Kallio has done."

"I don't know of anyone who can do as good a job as Mr. Kallio when it comes to promoting wrestling cards, but it is my intention to try my best to give wrestling fans here as near as possible the kind of shows they have been used to expecting."

For eight years Baumgartner operated a skating rink at Bastrop. He operated the rinks there and here until about six months ago when he sold his Bastrop rink to George Perry.

Mr. and Mrs. Baumgartner and their two daughters, Beth, age 16, and Mary, 14, are making their home at 1407 Trenton street, West Monroe.

Kallio, as the licensed promoter here for 1958, will continue as promoter until Baumgartner secures the 1959 license from the Louisiana Boxing and Wrestling Commission. Dave Silverstein, district commissioner of the LBWC, has already assisted Baumgartner in making his license application.

Coming to this country from Finland as a teenager, Kallio remained to become one of the nation's best known wrestlers during the 1920s and 1930s. He became a promoter here in 1939 within a few weeks after losing his middleweight crown. Last month he suffered a mild stroke, spent several days in St. Francis Hospital, is now at his home and plans to take things easy for a while, rest, and visit with friends. He may take a vacation to Canada to visit his brother, Isaac, who was here for a few days recently. Kallio's brother lives at Toronto, and vows he will get Gus north for some of the "fine fishing in our lakes."

Sale of his wrestling business has been a hard decision for Kallio to make. He loves the sport, loves people and the roar of the crowd even when the cheers and jeers have been for somebody else in the latter years. He would rather keep right on with the hustle and bustle, but knows it must now be otherwise.

It was a great night for northeast Louiisana football teams Friday night — Coach "Racer" Holstead's Tallulah Trojans sacked their second straight state Class A championship, while Neville of Monroe and Holly Ridge advanced to the state finals in double-A and Class B respectively.

The Cinderella Neville Tigers, continuing to make the experts look bad, are headed for the state title finals after their 20-13 triumph over Natchitoches, and, as usual, Coach Bill Ruple's lads expected to be the less favored in their battle with Reserve here Friday.

Coach Elmo Martin's Eagles didn't let Oberlin's awesome weight bother them too much and came from behind with just two minutes left to beat the southwestern Louisiana gridders, 7 to 6. The win advanced the Richland parish boys to the Class B final with Greensburg.

Joe Driskill, Reynolds On All-Star Team

LAKE CHARLES, La. — Northwestern State and Louisiana Tech dominated the 1958 Gulf States conference all - star football team — just as they dominated the season just ended.

The Demons and the Bulldogs, who tied .or first place in the championship race, each landed three first place berths on the all-star team selected by the Louisiana Sports Writers association from a poll of sports writers, sports casters and coaches.

Charley Tolar, Northwestern fullback dubbed "Mister Medium Tank" by admiring fellow students led the Demons' all-star trio. The other Demons landing first-team berths were end Billy Booth and tackle Bert Heckel.

For Louisiana Tech, tackle Henry Deloney, center Charles Stewart and halfback Paul Hynes were named.

Northeast State's Indians won two places, and the three second-division teams — McNeese, Southeastern and SLI, each earned one first-place spot.

Northeast end Joe Driskill was an easy winner at his post, but Indian quarterback Everett Reynolds edged out Northwestern's Dale Hoffpauir for the quarterback spot in the closest race on the ballot. Only one first-place and one-second-place ballot separated the two prize signal callers.

C. J. Alexander, Southeastern halfback; John Fuller, McNeese guard; and Linden Bercegeay, SLI guard, rounded out the first team.

Tolar was the only unanimous choice, and was a shoo-in for the "Outstanding Player" award. The 5-feet-7 Demon buldogger was the conference's leading scorer, with 79 points; and was the circuit's top ball carrier, gaining 713 yards in 90 carries for an average of 7.92 yards per try over the nine-game full - season route. He also caught eight passes for 107 yards, and added 175 yards in kick returns.

Booth was the circuit's leading pass receiver, nabbing 23 aerials for 445 yards and five touchdowns. He was also a strong defensive player. Heckel, a 220-pounder was perhaps the circuit's best tackle since the days of Pat and Tommy Hinton, and won his berth without serious opposition.

All three of Northwestern's all-stars are juniors, as is Hoffpauir, who was barely nudged out of a first - place berth.

Reynolds was a smooth, smart quarterback who was the key performer in the Northeast offense all year long. Without him, the Tribe hardly would have been able to count an offense at all He was a nifty passer, an able ball carrier, a competent punter and was an artist at faking the ball.

Even so, only a hair separated him from Hoffpauir. Hoffpauir had the best full - season record, but Reynolds shaded him on conference game figures. Hoffpauir did not run with the ball, since Demon coaches did not want to take a chance of his incurring an injury.

Driskill was another outstanding performer for the Indians. He was one of the strongest defensive players in the circuit, a good blocker, and a clever pass receiver. He caught 12 passes for 316 yards and three touchdowns during the season.

A pair of defensive stalwarts—tackle Deloney and center Stewart — added their bulk to the all-star line. The two Tech aces, weighing 205 and 195 respectively, consistently led their team on defense throughout the season.

Hynes, Tech's third representative, gained 633 yards in 96 carries for a 6.59 average. He shared in his team's punting duties, was a dangerous kick returner and a strong defensive player.

Rounding out the all-star line were two unsung players on second division teams. Linden Bercegeay, a senior guard for cellar-dwelling SLI, played consistently high - class football all year. "I dont' think he has ever been outcharged in any game," said SLI Coach Jim Hoggatt. Evidently the experts agreed, because he gave him the top vote of any guard.

Fuller, a 215 - pounder who played tackle last year, was one of the strong men in the McNeese line. His weight, his experience, and his defensive ability gave him the edge over Tech's Doyan Foster and Southeastern's Art Pebetaz.

C. J. Alexander, Southeastern's hard-running halfback, rounds out a stunning backfield. Alexander was his team's offensive leader, gaining 576 yards rushing, caught five passes for 64 yards, returned 16 kicks for 358 yards, and was the top Lion scorer with 50 points.

Most of the first - team members won their posts by a wide margin on a point system based on five points for a first - team vote and three points for a second team vote.

Closest balloting occurred between Reynolds and Hollpauir, followed by Deloney and McNeese's Coy Scott at tackle, and Tech's Stewart and McNeese's Will Zimmerman at center.

Coaches Faring Ill In Wisconsin

By CHUCK CAPALDO

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Shakespeare had a phrase for the perils and pitfalls confronting coaches and team officials in Wisconsin these wintry days.

"'Tis not my speeches that you do mislike," penned the Bard of Avon. "But 'tis my presence that doth trouble you."

Two coaches, an athletic director and a general manager are all in varying degrees of hot water.

They are Bud Foster, basketball coach at the University of Wisconsin; Scooter McLean, coach of the Green Bay Packers; Moon Mullins, athletic director of Marquette University; and Verne Lewellen, Packers' general manager.

Foster, whose teams have lost 11 straight games over the last two seasons, including all three starts this year, was hanged in effigy on the campus in Madison Friday night.

Wisconsin finished 10th in the Big Ten last season. Then Foster got together with the athletic board amid rumors that it really would be "Good Bye, Bud."

McLean and Lewellen, now in Los Angeles where the Packers close the ledger Sunday on their worst showing in the National Football League in 40 years, have been under fire at home for the last few weeks.

Petitions and auto stickers demanding the return of Curly Lambeau are being circulated in Green Bay and other cities. Lambeau founded the Packers and served as coach and general manager for 31 years.

He quit in 1949 after blasting the club's 45-man board of directors for meddling. He has said he would return if he were given a free hand.

McLean is said to have a 50-50 chance of gaining another year's contract if the Packers give a creditable account of themselves Sunday.

Only Friday, Mullins was the target of an unsuccessful drive by an alumni group who wanted him relieved of his duties. The university rejected the proposal, but there are signs he isn't out of the woods yet. Mullins is en route to Rome to attend the ordination of a son and the wedding of a daughter.

Meanwhile, the hunt continues at Marquette for a successor to Johnny Druze, who quit two weeks ago as football coach after three defeat-filled years.

Indians Rally To Beat Lamar Tech

Northeast's Indians, dwarfed by the lanky invaders, bounced back from a ragged first half effort to tumble the Lamar Tech quintet, 65-61, for their fourth straight victory.

The Indians, held without a field goal for the first eleven minutes of the first half, found the mark in the final stanza to pull the game out. Hustling John Freeman, of Bismark, Mo., and Ronald Doyle, Calvert City, Ky., junior, sparked the Northeast quint in the second-half surge.

Doyle pumped in four quick goals after intermission, the last of which knotted the score at 39-39 after the Indians trailed by ten points at halftime. The ball-hawking Freeman, stole the ball away from the invaders repeatedly and swept 10 rebounds off the boards.

The 5-11 Freeman also tied for team high point honors with teammate Sid Bradley. Both racked up 16 markers.

The Northeast club went into the lead for the first time with 12:40 remaining in the game when big Billy May scored on a tip in to make it 41-39. The score was tied five times after that.

Then with four minutes left in the game Mickey Kitchens put Northeast ahead to stay with a short jump shot. Freeman added four foul shots and a field goal in the last two minutes to clinch the win.

Johnny Johnston, a 6-5 center, topped the visitors with 17 points and held the high-scoring May to 11. Jim Mellard tossed in 15 more for Lamar.

Northeast garnered 30 rebounds and Lamar 38, with Freeman's 10 high for the game.

Northeast had a pitful shooting percentage of 13 per cent in the first half, while the Techmen hit on 43 per cent of their shots.

Oklahoma State Beats Seminoles

By JOHN G. DIETRICH

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Oklahoma State's hard - riding band of Cowboys, led by halfback Duane Wood, bucked their way to a pair of touchdowns, then turned back a last-period passing threat to beat Florida State 15-6, Saturday on a frozen field in the first Blue Grass Bowl football game.

Wood accounted for all but one of Oklahoma State's 15 points as he burst 17 yards off tackle on the second play of the second period for the first touchdown, bucked over from the one-foot line in the third period, and took a pass from quarterback Dick

Soergel for the two-point conversion. End Jim Wood, no relation, booted the conversion after the first cowpoke touchdown.

The Cowboys played possession football for the most part, sending Wood, Jim Wiggins and fullback Tom Campbell driving inside and outside the tackles to beat down the vastly outweighed Seminoles.

Florida State displayed a daring and determined offense, but it failed to click until the final period when quarterback Joe Majors, middle brother of the famous Tennessee football family, came in to throw a 38-yard scoring pass to halfback Carl Meyers.

Fred Pickard, the devastating 180-pound dot in Florida State's "T" formation, sparked the Seminoles on two first period drives that carried deep into Oklahoma State territory, but both efforts wound up in too-short field goal attempts by Jack Sheppard—one from the 26 and one from the 13.

After that, the Cowboys took control. A pass from Soergel to Wiggins carried them 31 yards to the Seminole 22 on the final play of the first period, and two plays later Wood streaked off tackle for his first touchdown.

The Cowpokes wrapped it up late in the third period, moving 39 yards after tackle Gerry Benn recovered a Pickard fumble.

Wood slashed for 10 yards, and Wiggins went wide on a pitchout for 17 to the five-yard line. A penalty moved the ball back out to the 16, but Duane Wood took a flareout pass from Soergel to the one foot line, then fell over for the score from there on fourth down.

Majors gave the childblained crowd of 5,000 a warming thrill with his last period passing attack that scored one touchdown on the throw to Meyer and just missed another when a 41-yard pass play to Bobby Renn carried to the Oklahoma State five. That threat ended when Wood intercepted another Majors pass in the end zone and ran it out to the 18 yard line.

HOLLY RIDGE, La. (Special)—Holly Ridge and Greensburg will meet here at 8 o'clock Friday night for the state class B high school football championship, Holly Ridge principal Edgar Upton announced last night.

Holly Ridge won the toss of a coin in a meeting of officials of the two schools at Natchez, Miss., Saturday afternoon to earn the home field advantage.

Holly Ridge edged Oberlin, 7-6, here Friday night in a semi-final clash while Greensburg beat St. James on first downs in a game that ended in a 7-7 tie.

Graham May Accept Post At Marquette

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Otto Graham, former all-pro quarterback of the Cleveland Browns, said Saturday Marquette University officials want to talk with him regarding their vacant head football coaching job.

Reached in Cleveland, Graham said he was not at home when a university representative phoned him but that he would return the call.

Graham said he would only be interested in a long term contract.

He said he had "more or less of a change of heart" about coaching after helping to tutor the College All-Stars and now would be interested in such a job if the terms were right.

Graham, now in the insurance business, said his idea of coaching would be to win if he could "but that's not everything. "Of course there are some schools who want you to win, or else," he added.

Johnny Druze resigned as Marquette's head coach the day before Thanksgiving after a disappointing three-year term during which his teams posted a record of 2-25-1.

Clemson Drills For Sugar Clash

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — The Clemson football team, preparing for the Sugar Bowl clash with Louisiana State, went through a two - hour drill in near freezing temperatures and a light drizzle Saturday.

The Tiger quarterbacks thawed out their pitching arms long enough to work in a pass offense drill, and Clemson's fourth and fifth teams ran LSU plays against the first three units.

The linemen had a rought day as Coach Frank Howard sought to toughen up his forward wall.

LAYNE PASSES

Steelers In Rout Over Cards, 38-21

By GIB STALEY

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The pass wizardry of quarterback Bobby Layne and the pass thievery of teammate Dean Derby gave the Pittsburgh Steelers a 38-21 victory over the Chicago Cardinals in a National Football League game on the frozen turf of Pitt Stadium Saturday.

Layne pitched two touchdown passes to Jimmy Orr and Derby intercepted three Chicago passes as the teams wound up their seasons before a chilled crowd of 16,660 and a national television audience.

Two of Derby's interceptions touched off Steeler touchdown drives and the other a 13-yard field goal by Tom Miner. Halfback Tom Tracy, who gained only 35 yards rushing, nevertheless set a Steelers season record of 714 yards. His biggest play was a spectacular 72-yard touchdown pass that found Orr in the clear with an easy track to the goal line.

For the day, the Steelers piled up 692 yards gained second only to the Los Angeles Rams — NFL —record of 735 yards in 1951 against the New York Yankees.

Layne hit on 23 of 49 pass attempts, gaining a total of 409 yards and once, fading to pass, he found a clear route and ran 17 yards for a touchdown.

Ollie Matson, the great Chicago halfback, scored two of the Cardinals' TDs — one on a 92-yard kickoff runback. His second score, a one-yard plunge, gave him 10 for this season, surpassing his previous mark of nine.

The victory gave the Steelers, who earlier had nailed down third place in the Eastern Conference, a 7-4-1 record. And for the final seven games they have six victories and one tie. The loss was the ninth for the Cardinals, having one of the worst seasons in their record. The Chicago team won only two games and tied one.

After a scoreless first period the Steelers took a 7-0 lead on a 36-yard pass from Layne to Orr, climaxing an 80-yard drive.

The Cardinals bounced back to tie on the ensuing kickoff. Matson caught the ball on his 8 and threaded through a maze of tacklers for the score.

At 11:49 of the period the Steelers went ahead to stay on Tom Miner's 13-yard field goal set up by a Derby interception on the Cardinal 38.

Derby also started the Steelers' toward their second touchdown by intercepting a pass on the Pittsburgh 13.

The Cards got back into contention in the third quarter on a 40-yard touchdown pass from M. C. Reynolds to Bobby Watkins. A short time later, another interception by Derby started the Steelers to an 87-yard touchdown drive, the payoff on Layne's 17-yard pass to Orr.

Chicago came back with a 47-yard scoring drive, Matson hitting the end zone from one yard out. The Steelers then scored two more touchdowns on a 72-yard pass play from Tracy to Orr and a 5-yard run by Bill Reynolds.

Detroit Job Won't Go To Otto Graham

DETROIT (AP) — The Faculty Committee on Athletic Affairs for the University of Detroit decided Saturday not to offer the job of head football coach to Otto Graham.

John R. Mulroy, a vice president of the university and chairman of the faculty committee, said the decision was reached following a meeting with officials of the Gus Dorais Foundation who had recommended the former Cleveland Brown ace quarterback be hired to replace Wally Fromhart.

Mulroy gave no reason for the decision. He said the committee was impressed with the recommendations Graham had received from the foundation and other interested parties.

Graham never made a formal application for the job, Mulroy said. He met with the Gus Dorais group last week. At that time a foundation spokesman said Graham was "interested." The foundation, while having no official status with the university, has considerable influence in athletic affairs.

The head coach job fell vacant at the university when Fromhart was fired Dec. 2 following a disappointing football season.

Funds Asked For Neville Trip To Bowl

Monroe Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard said yesterday a total of $800 is needed to finance the trip and only $150 has been collected.

Spider Webb Gets Bid To Fight Mims

BALTIMORE (AP)—A pitch to Spider Webb to fight Holly Mims in Baltimore in February was made Saturday.

The challenge to Webb, second ranking middleweight was issued by Nick Trotta, manager of Mims who is sixth in the latest rankings by the National Boxing Assn.

After beating Terry Downes, British middleweight champ, in London Tuesday, Webb offered to take on "any middleweight in the world."

"If he's serious about fighting anybody," Trotta said Saturday, "we'll give him a guarantee or 40 per cent of the gate if he'll meet Mims here in February.

"With the television money, we can do $35,000, which is a better gate than Webb is going to get anywhere else right now."

Akins Handed Suspension For Injuries In Bout

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The California Athletic Commission Saturday announced it had suspended former welterweight boxing champ Virgil Akins indefinitely as the result of injuries suffered in his unsuccessful title defense last week.

The commission said the suspension—to last a minimum of 30 days—became effective Dec. 5, when Akins was badly cut under the eye while losing his title to Don Jordan in Los Angeles.

The 30-year-old St. Louis boxer must pass a physical examination before being allowed to fight in California again, the commission said.

10-MAN BACKFIELD

Oliveaux, Smith Make AP Class B All State Squad

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were so many fine backs in Louisiana Class B football this season The Associated Press all-state team named Saturday showed a 10-man backfield.

Usually, eight backs are named to the honor squad, but sportswriters of Associated Press newspapers in the state were unable to trim the field and accolades went to the ten.

The power pair of Port Barre's Don Stafford and Ken Mistric lead the parade of backfield talent, along with Shelton Babin of Dutchtown and Sammy Russo of Morgan City.

Others named to the backfield included Bo-Dick Smith of Bernice; Clyde Heurtin of Louisiana School for the Deaf; Danny Brabham of Greensburg; Billy Cormier of Erath; Glenn Talbert of Gillis and Sammy Means of Port Sulphur.

Truls Bjerke of St. Martin's in New Orleans anchors the all-state line and is the only holdover from the 1957 squad. Bjerke was named to a tackle berth, along with a pair of 215-pounders, Leroy Cook of Dutchtown and G. C. Sheppard of Cotton Valley, and Charles DeJean of Port Barre.

Port Barre also landed James Chaisson on the team. He shared the guard berths with Glenn Decoteau of Dutchtown, Joe Richard of St. Michael's of Crowley and Butch Chaney of Zachary.

Wilbur Reon of Welsh was everybody's choice for a post while the other terminal spots went to Wayne Bennett of Zachary, Dale Adams of Woodlawn and Earl Oliveaux of Mangham.

The backfield contains all the coaching punch a coach could want. Stafford gained 1,059 yards and tallied 129 points while Mistric piled up 1,074 yards and 73 points.

Russo showed 1,189 yards and 106 points for his season's work, Brabham went over 800 yards and 90 points while Smith accounted for 986 yards and 106 points. Babin was in the 1,000-yard class, going 40 yards over the magi figure and Gillis punctured enemy goal lines for 131 points.

Nats Take 6th Straight, 115-100

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The Syracuse Nationals racked up their sixth straight National Basketball Assn. victory with a 115-100 victory over the slumping Philadelphia Warriors Saturday night.

UP 5.41 PER CENT

College Football Crowds Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — College football teams played before more than 19 million fans in 1958, with the Big Ten, Southeastern, Southwest, Pacific Coast and Big Eight conferences contributing more than half the total.

The total attendance of 19,280,709 for 2,586 games played by 618 teams represented a 5.41 per cent increase over the 1957 total of 18,290,724. The total was the second highest in collegiate history and the over-all game average of 31,199 was the highest ever.

Figures were made available to The Associated Press by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, which has been responsible for continuing study of attendance for the NCAA Television Committee.

Although it's average dropped just under 3 per cent, from 55,227 to 53,673 a game, the Big Ten again led the list with 2,737,348 followed by the Southeastern, which topped the 2-million mark for the first time, playing before 2,000,404 fans.

The Southwest Conference was next with 1,364,891. Then came the Pacific Coast, in its last season under its present form, with 1,332,710 and the Big Eight with 1,172,404.

The survey broke the teams into two groups, "major" and "other." Majors were teams averaging 10,000 or more each game, and the others those under 10,000.

The 108 major teams, including conference and independents, totalled 13,758,962 for 538 games — an average of 25,574, a 2.82 per cent increase. The 510 other teams played 2,048 games and drew 5,521,747. The total was up 12.48 per cent, but the average change was not comparable because there were 87 more games in this group this year than last.

Ohio State's Buckeyes, although beaten once and tied twice, pulled ahead of Michigan in their annual race to lead the nation in spectator appeal. Ohio State drew 499,352 for six home games for an average of 83,225, up about 2,500 over a year ago when the Bucks won the Big Ten title.

Michigan, suffering one of its poorest years, lost nearly 100,000 fans — dropping its average from 84,159 in 1957 to 67,519 this year. The Wolverines' nosedive, performance and attendance-wise, was mainly responsible for the drop incurred by the conference.

Michigan's total — and average — still was the second largest of all the teams, followed by national champion Louisiana State, which increased its home game average from 49,659 last year to 59,315 during '58.

Others to record a 50,000 or better average were Michigan State, Minnesota, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Rice, Iowa, and Wisconsin, the only newcomer in the group.

Oklahoma was an oddity. Playing six home games this year compared to five a season ago, the Sooners compiled exactly the same average — 55,934.

The East and the Pacific Coast were the only sections to show decreases in average game turnouts. The East was down 4.72 per cent. The Pacific area showed a 2.63 drop.

Attendance on a per game basis was up 2.63 in the south, 0.80 in the Midwest, 11.95 in the Missouri Valley, 2.93 in the southwest, and a whopping 26.45 in the Rocky Mountain area.

Player Requires Elbow Surgery For Bone Chip

JOHANNESBURG (AP)— Gary Player, South Africa's leading money winner in professional golf had a bone chip removed from his right elbow in Johannesburg Hospital Saturday.

Player, who regularly competes on the American pro circuit, will be unable to play for at least six weeks.

His father, Harry Player, said a surgeon advised that Gary's golfing career would have ended in two years if the chip had not been removed.

Oklahoma State Beats Seminoles

Wood accounted for all but one of Oklahoma State's 15 points as he burst 17 yards off tackle on the second play of the second period for the first touchdown, bucked over from the one-foot line in the third period, and took a pass from quarterback Dick Soergel for the two-point conversion. End Jim Wood, no relation, booted the conversion after the first cowpoke touchdown.

The Cowboys played possession football for the most part, sending Wood, Jim Wiggins and fullback Tom Campbell driving inside and outside the tackles to beat down the vastly outweighed Seminoles.

Florida State displayed a daring and determined offense, but it failed to click until the final period when quarterback Joe Majors, middle brother of the famous Tennessee football family, came in to throw a 38-yard scoring pass to halfback Carl Meyers.

Fred Pickard, the devastating 160-pound dot on Florida State's "I" formation, sparked the Seminoles on two first period drives that carried deep into Oklahoma State territory, but both efforts wound up in too-short field goal attempts by Jack Sheppard—one from the 26 and one from the 13.

After that, the Cowboys took control. A pass from Soergel to Wiggins carried them 31 yards to the Seminole 22 on the final play of the first period, and two plays later Wood streaked off tackle for his first touchdown.

The Cowpokes wrapped it up late in the third period, moving 39 yards after tackle Gerry Benn recovered a Pickard fumble.

Wood slashed for 10 yards, and Wiggins went wide on a pitchout for 17 to the five-yard line. A penalty moved the ball back out to the 16, but Duane Wood took a flareout pass from Soergel to the one foot line, then fell over for the score from there on fourth down.

Majors gave the chilblained crowd of 5,000 a warming thrill with his last period passing attack that scored one touchdown on the throw to Meyer and just missed another when a 41-yard pass play to Bobby Renn carried to the Oklahoma State five. That threat ended when Wood intercepted another Majors pass in the end zone and ran it out to the 18 yard line.

Oklahoma State	0	7	8	0—15
Florida State	0	0	0	6—6

Holly Ridge To Host State Grid Finals

HOLLY RIDGE, La. (Special)—Holly Ridge and Greensburg will meet here at 8 o'clock Friday night for the state class B high school football championship, Holly Ridge principal Edgar Upton announced last night.

Holly Ridge won the toss of a coin in a meeting of officials of the two schools at Natchez, Miss., Saturday afternoon to earn the home field advantage.

Holly Ridge edged Oberlin, 7-6, here Friday night in a semi-final clash while Greensburg beat St. James on first downs in a game that ended in a 7-7 tie.

Graham May Accept Post At Marquette

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Otto Graham, former all-pro quarterback of the Cleveland Browns, said Saturday Marquette University officials want to talk with him regarding their vacant head football coaching job.

Reached in Cleveland, Graham said he was not at home when a university representative phoned him but that he would return the call.

Graham said he would only be interested in a long term contract.

He said he had "more or less of a change of heart" about coaching after helping to tutor the College All-Stars and now would be interested in such a job if the terms were right.

Graham, now in the insurance business, said his idea of coaching would be to win if he could "but that's not everything. "Of course there are some schools who want you to win, or else," he added.

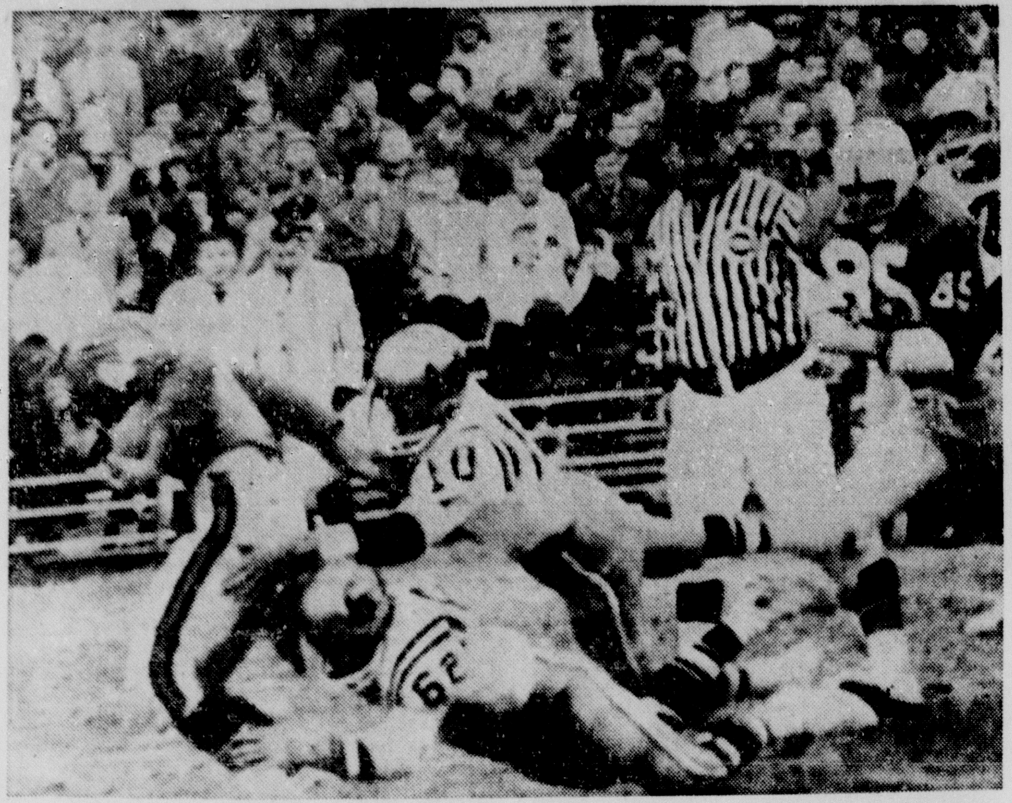
Johnny Druze resigned as Marquette's head coach the day before Thanksgiving after a disappointing three-year term during which his teams posted a record of 2-25-1.

Clemson Drills For Sugar Clash

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — The Clemson football team, preparing for the Sugar Bowl clash with Louisiana State, went through a two - hour drill in near freezing temperatures and a light drizzle Saturday.

The Tiger quarterbacks thawed out their pitching arms long enough to work in a pass offense drill, and Clemson's fourth and fifth teams ran LSU plays against the first three units.

The linemen had a rough day as Coach Frank Howard sought to toughen up his forward wall.



COWBOY CORRALED — Florida State's Al Ulmer (62) and Vic Prinzi (10) bring down Oklahoma State's Duane Wood (44), but not until he gained 22 yards on a pitchout in the second quarter of yesterday's Bluegrass Bowl. OSU's Jim Wood (85) and FSU's Bob Swoszowski (71) follow the play. (AP Wirephoto)

LAYNE PASSES

Steelers In Rout Over Cards, 38-21

By GIB STALEY

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The pass wizardry of quarterback Bobby Layne and the pass thievery of teammate Dean Derby gave the Pittsburgh Steelers a 38-21 victory over the Chicago Cardinals in a National Football League game on the frozen turf of Pitt Stadium Saturday.

Layne pitched two touchdown passes to Jimmy Orr and Derby intercepted three Chicago passes as the teams wound up their seasons before a chilled crowd of 16,660 and a national television audience.

Two of Derby's interceptions touched off Steeler touchdown drives and the other a 13-yard field goal by Tom Miner. Halfback Tom Tracy, who gained only 35 yards rushing, nevertheless set a Steelers season record of 714 yards. His biggest play was a spectacular 72-yard pass touchdown play that found Orr in the clear with an easy track to the goal line.

For the day, the Steelers piled up 692 yards gained second only to the Los Angeles Rams — NFL —record of 735 yards in 1951 against the New York Yankees.

Layne hit on 23 of 49 pass attempts, gaining a total of 409 yards and once, fading to pass, he found a clear route and ran 17 yards for a touchdown.

Ollie Matson, the great Chicago halfback, scored two of the Cardinals' TDs — one on a 92-yard kickoff runback. His second score, a one-yard plunge, gave him 10 for this season, surpassing his previous mark of nine.

The victory gave the Steelers, who earlier had nailed down third place in the Eastern Conference, a 7-4-1 record. And for the final seven games they have six victories and one tie. The loss was the ninth for the Cardinals, having one of the worst seasons in their history. The Chicago team won only two games and tied one.

After a scoreless first period the Steelers took a 7-0 lead on a 36-yard pass from Layne to Orr, climaxing an 80-yard drive.

The Cardinals bounced back to tie on the ensuing kickoff. Matson caught the ball on his 8 and threaded through a maze of tacklers for the score.

At 11:49 of the period the Steelers went ahead to stay on Tom Miner's 13-yard field goal set up by a Derby interception on the Cardinal 38.

Derby also started the Steelers' toward their second touchdown by intercepting a pass on the Pittsburgh 13.

The Cards got back into contention in the third quarter on a 40-yard touchdown pass from M. C. Reynolds to Bobby Watkins. A short time later, another interception by Derby started the Steelers to an 87-yard touchdown drive, the payoff on Layne's 17-yard pass to Orr.

Chicago came back with a 47-yard scoring drive, Matson hitting the end zone from one yard out. The Steelers then scored two more touchdowns on a 72-yard pass play from Tracy to Orr and a 5-yard run by Bill Reynolds.

Detroit Job Won't Go To Otto Graham

DETROIT (AP) — The Faculty Committee on Athletic Affairs for the University of Detroit decided Saturday not to offer the job of head football coach to Otto Graham.

John R. Mulroy, a vice president of the university and chairman of the faculty committee, said the decision was reached following a meeting with officials of the Gus Dorais Foundation who had recommended the former Cleveland Brown ace quarterback be hired to replace Wally Fromhart.

Mulroy gave no reason for the decision. He said the committee was impressed with the recommendations Graham had received from the foundation and other interested parties.

Graham never made a formal application for the job, Mulroy said. He met with the Gus Dorais group last week. At that time a foundation spokesman said Graham was "interested." The foundation, while having no official status with the university, has considerable influence in athletic affairs.

The head coach job fell vacant at the university when Fromhart was fired Dec. 2 following a disappointing football season.

Funds Asked For Neville Trip To Bowl

Monroe Mayor W. L. "Jack" Howard said yesterday a total of $800 is needed to finance the trip and only $150 has been collected.

Spider Webb Gets Bid To Fight Mims

BALTIMORE (AP)—A pitch to Spider Webb to fight Holly Mims in Baltimore in February was made Saturday.

The challenge to Webb, second ranking middleweight was issued by Nick Trotta, manager of Mims who is sixth in the latest rankings by the National Boxing Assn.

The 29-year-old Mims decisioned Webb last March 12 in Fort Wayne, Ind.

After beating Terry Downes, British middleweight champ, in London Tuesday, Webb offered to take on "any middleweight in the world."

"If he's serious about fighting anybody," Trotta said Saturday, "we'll give him a guarantee or 40 per cent of the gate if he'll meet Mims here in February.

"With the television money, we can do $35,000, which is a better gate than Webb is going to get anywhere else right now."

Akins Handed Suspension For Injuries In Bout

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The California Athletic Commission Saturday announced it had suspended former welterweight boxing champ Virgil Akins indefinitely as the result of injuries suffered in his unsuccessful title defense last week.

The commission said the suspension—to last a minimum of 30 days—became effective Dec. 5, when Akins was badly cut under the eye while losing his title to Don Jordan in Los Angeles.

The 30-year-old St. Louis boxer must pass a physical examination before being allowed to fight in California again, the commission said.

10-MAN BACKFIELD

Oliveaux, Smith Make AP Class B All State Squad

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There were so many fine backs in Louisiana Class B football this season The Associated Press all-state team named Saturday showed a 10-man backfield.

Usually, eight backs are named to the honor squad; but sportswriters of Associated Press newspapers in the state were unable to trim the field and accolades went to the ten.

The power pair of Port Barre's Don Stafford and Ken Mistric lead the parade of backfield talent, along with Shelton Babin of Dutchtown and Sammy Russo of Morgan City.

Others named to the backfield included Bo-Dick Smith of Bernice; Clyde Heurtin of Louisiana School for the Deaf; Danny Brabham of Greensburg; Billy Cormier of Erath; Glenn Talbert of Gillis and Sammy Means of Port Sulphur.

Truls Bjerke of St. Martin's in New Orleans anchors the all-state line and is the only holdover from the 1957 squad. Bjerke was named to a tackle berth, along with a pair of 215-pounders, Leroy Cook of Dutchtown and G. C. Sheppard of Cotton Valley, and Charles DeJean of Port Barre.

Port Barre also landed James Chaisson on the team. He shared the guard berths with Glenn Decoteau of Dutchtown, Joe Richard of St. Michael's of Crowley and Butch Chaney of Zachary.

Wilbur Reon of Welsh was everybody's choice for a post while the other terminal spots went to Wayne Bennett of Zachary, Dale Adams of Woodlawn and Earl Oliveaux of Mangham.

The backfield contains all the coaching punch a coach could want. Stafford gained 1,059 yards and tallied 129 points while Mistric piled up 1,074 yards and 73 points.

Russo showed 1,189 yards and 106 points for his season's work, Brabham went over 800 yards and 90 points while Smith accounted for 986 yards and 106 points. Babin was in the 1,000-yard class, going 40 yards over the magi figure and Gillis punctured enemy goal lines for 131 points.

Nats Take 6th Straight, 115-100

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The Syracuse Nationals racked up their sixth straight National Basketball Assn. victory with a 115-100 victory over the slumping Philadelphia Warriors Saturday night.

UP 5.41 PER CENT

College Football Crowds Increase

NEW YORK (AP) — College football teams played before more than 19 million fans in 1958, with the Big Ten, Southeastern, Southwest, Pacific Coast and Big Eight conferences contributing more than half the total.

The total attendance of 19,280,709 for 2,586 games played by 618 teams represented a 5.41 per cent increase over the 1957 total of 18,290,724. The total was the second highest in collegiate history and the over-all game average of 31,199 was the highest ever.

Figures were made available to The Associated Press by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau, which has been conducting a continuing study of attendance for the NCAA Television Committee.

Although it's average dropped just under 3 per cent, from 55,227 to 53,673 a game, the Big Ten again led the list with 2,737,348 followed by the Southeastern, which topped the 2-million mark for the first time, playing before 2,000,404 fans.

The Southwest Conference was next with 1,364,891. Then came the Pacific Coast, in its last season under its present form, with 1,332,710 and the Big Eight with 1,172,404.

The survey broke the teams into two groups, "major" and "other." Majors were teams averaging 10,000 or more each game, and the others those under 10,000.

The 108 major teams, including conference and independents, totalled 13,758,962 for 538 games — an average of 25,574, a 2.82 per cent increase. The 510 other teams played 2,048 games and drew 5,521,747. The total was up 12.48 per cent, but the average change was not comparable because there were 87 more games in this group this year than last.

Ohio State's Buckeyes, although beaten once and tied twice, pulled ahead of Michigan in their annual race to lead the nation in spectator appeal. Ohio State drew 499,352 for six home games for an average of 83,225, up about 2,500 over a year ago when the Bucks won the Big Ten title.

Michigan, suffering one of its poorest years, lost nearly 100,000 fans — dropping its average from 84,159 in 1957 to 67,519 this year. The Wolverines' nosedive, performance and attendance-wise, was mainly responsible for the drop incurred by the conference.

Michigan's total — and average — still was the second largest of all the teams, followed by national champion Louisiana State, which increased its home game average from 49,659 last year to 59,315 during '58.

Others to record a 50,000 or better average were Michigan State, Minnesota, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Rice, Iowa, and Wisconsin, the only newcomer in the group.

Oklahoma was an oddity. Playing six home games this year compared to five a season ago, the Sooners compiled exactly the same average — 55,934.

The East and the Pacific Coast were the only sections to show decreases in average game turnouts. The East was dowr 4.72 per cent. The Pacific area showed a 2.63 drop.

Attendance on a per game basis was up 2.63 in the south, 0.80 in the Midwest, 11.95 in the Missouri Valley, 2.93 in the southwest, and a whopping 26.45 in the Rocky Mountain area.

Player Requires Elbow Surgery For Bone Chip

JOHANNESBURG (AP)— Gary Player, South Africa's leading money winner in professional golf, had a bone chip removed from his right elbow in Johannesburg Hospital Saturday.

Player, who regularly competes on the American pro circuit, will be unable to play for at least six weeks.

His father, Harry Player, said a surgeon advised that Gary's golfing career would have ended in two years if the chip had not been removed.

70,000 EXPECTED

Giants-Browns Battle Tops Final Pro Football Slate

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

More than 70,000 spectators are expected to pack Yankee Stadium Sunday to see whether the New York Giants can climax an almost season - long struggle to catch the Cleveland Browns in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League.

This game is the most important of five on the final program of the regular season.

A victory for the Giants would put them in a 9-3 deadlock with the Browns for first place. This would necessitate a playoff in New York next Sunday for the right to meet the Baltimore Colts, Western Conference titleholders, Dec. 28.

The Colts wind up their season schedule against the San Francisco 49ers. In the other games, the Green Bay Packers are at Los Angeles, Philadelphia at Washington and Detroit at the Chicago Bears.

Pittsburgh and the Chicago Cards met Saturday.

The Giants will be bucking Cleveland's perfect (5-0) road record.

To win Sunday, New York probably will have to get another superlative effort from veteran quarterback Charley Conerly. He was the outstanding performer when the Giants beat the Browns 21-17 in Cleveland Nov. 2.

Second place in the Western Conference rests on the results of the Bears-Lions and Rams-Packers games. Los Angeles and the Bears are tied for second place. The Rams already hold a 20-7 decision over the Packers this season. The Bears beat the Lions earlier by the same score.

High-scoring Baltimore, which clinched the Western crown two weeks ago, will attempt to repeat an early season triumph over San Francisco. The Colts won that one with a fine second half rally that overcame a 27-7 half-time deficit.

Johnny Unitas, Baltimore's quarterback, will be pitching to extend the NFL record set last week when he threw a touchdown pass in his 24th consecutive game.

3 SUB-PAR ROUNDS

Bayer Leads In Sanford Tourney

By WHITNEY MARTIN

SANFORD, Fla. (AP)—Shooting a two-under-par 69 for his third straight sub-par round, George Bayer of Glen Eagles, Ill., took the undisputed lead at the three-quarter mark of the Sanford Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a total of 204.

Two strokes back in second place was Wes Ellis Jr., of Aldecress, N.J., who started the day three strokes behind and came in with a 68 to add to his previous rounds of 68 and 70.

Jay Hebert of Sanford with a five-under-par 66; Bo Wininger of Odessa, Tex.; Chick Harbert of Northville, Mich.; Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla., and National Open Champion Tommy Bolt of Paradise, Fla., were deadlocked for third place at 107.

Nineteen players were 210 or better for three rounds, assuring a real battle down the stretch Sunday.

Young Bob Keller, Eglin Air Force Base pro who was tied with Bayer at 135 starting Saturday's play, blew to a 75 and dropped back to the 210 bracket.

Bayer sprayed his shots on occasion and had to do a little scrambling on the first nine, but his putter usually came to his rescue. He had his second bogey in three rounds on the fourth hole where his long tee shot rolled into a water pipe and he got a bad lie when he dropped the ball out.

To give an idea of his distance, he was on the green of the 530-yard 14th in two but three putted for a par. He sank a 15-footer on No. 5 for one of his three birdies.

Ellis, currently on a hot streak, had an erratic 37-31 for his 68, the round including three deuces.

CHASE UNANIMOUS CHOICE

Waterproof Puts Five On District 3-B All-Star 11

By BOB ANDERSON
Monroe World
(Written for Louisiana Sports Writers Association)

Waterproof's powerful Tigers, holders of the district's best overall record, an 8-2 mark, placed five players on the all - district 3-B team selected by loop coaches in co - operation with the Louisiana Sports Writers Association.

Block of Jonesville placed two men on the all - star eleven while district champion Crowville had one representative but had three gridders on the second team and three on the honorable mention list. Wisner, Newellton and Vidalia each placed one man on the team.

The all - star team has Waterproof's Louis Testa, a consistent offensive and defensive standout, and Wisner''s Jerry Ensminger, a fine pass - catcher who took three catches over for touchdowns, at the ends.

Crowville's big Jimmy Ray Hoover, half of the best tackle duo in the district, and Waterproof's Coye Pace, an excellent blocker, man the tackle posts.

Kermit Keyes of Waterproof, an aggressive 155 - pounder, and Block's Stanford Richardson, a speedy four - year letterman, are the guards and Waterproof's Thomas Taylor, the team's only sophomore, is the center.

Waterproof quarterback Edgar Chase received unanimous backing from all the coaches participating in the poll to lead the all-star backfield. He's joined by Block's Clarence Richard, the district's leading scorer with 121 points, Newellton's Milford McVay, an outstanding back on a losing team, and Vidalia's Bill McDonough, the league's second top scorer with 73 points.

Chase was the only unanimous choice. The league coaches were in close agreement on the backfield choices but practically all the line berths were closely contested.

Testa was a solid choice at one of the end positions while Ensminger won the other over Block's Clarence Mayes by a second - team vote.

The first team tackles, Pace and Hoover, won their positions in a close fight with Crowville's Don Payne, who was only one first - team vote behind the two leaders. Sicily Island's Tommy Wells and Davidson's Buddy Tanner also received strong support to make the tackle positions the most hotly contested on the team.

Block's Richardson and Waterproof's Keyes won the guard positions in somewhat easier fashion with the toughest opposition coming from Wisner's Phillip Morgan.

McVay is the only repeater from the 1957 all - district team. Hoover, Richardson, Chase and Richard advanced from last year's second team while Keyes and McDonough were on the honorable mention list in 1957.

SEC Recruiting Gets Clean Bill

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Southeastern Conference Commissioner Bernie Moore gave a clean report Saturday on recruiting of 1958 high school stars by SEC schools.

Any rumors that any SEC school is in difficulties are "ridiculous," he said. "I can't understand people who put out trash like that."

Moore didn't say what if any rumors have been spread. But during recruiting season there always are vague reports that some school or alumnus has offered illegal inducements to enroll an outstanding prep athlete.

"We haven't had one single complaint about a recruiting violation," Moore said. "Since that's the case, we're conducting no investigations.

"There are no old cases on the books, either, that haven't been considered.

" 've had occasion this week to talk with most of our schools—11 of them—on one matter or another. If there had been a suspected violation by another member you can bet your life I'd have heard about it.

"The coaches and athletic directors and faculty people with whom I've chatted about recruiting generally agreed with me that this has been the cleanest season we've ever had. I'm happy to report that."

Moore said the National Collegiate Athletic Assn., has no pending action against SEC members "either old stuff or new."

"If it has," he added, "I know nothing about it—and I believe I would. NCAA procedure is to notify both a school and its conference office before it even begins an investigation.

Good Prelims On Tuesday Program

"No matter how important are the names of the main event fighters, you have to have good preliminaries if the fans are to be satisfied." That was the word given out today by Ray Kruger, matchmaker at Kallio's Arena in Monroe under whose banner Clarence Cook and Al Boudreaux clash for ten rounds on Tuesday, Dec. 16.

In supporting his opinion, Kruger has signed some of the most popular local and area boxers, all over the four round route. Ladell Pate of West Monroe, considered one of the finest fistic prospects to come along in many a year, will meet tough James Boyer of Bastrop in one of the preliminaries.

A second bout will feature Dewayne Garris, fast filling out to heavyweight stature, who always gives a pleasing performance. Garris will be pitted against Charles King, a promising young Jena battler who will be making his Monroe debut. King asked specifically for the Garris fight and the latter was glad to oblige.

Third bout on the card will feature heavyweights in the person of big Bill De Soto of Shreveport and Jack Dalton of Algiers. These two were to have met before, but Dalton was unable to appear. De Soto lost to Dewayne Garris in a wild and wooly tussle several weeks ago.

Joe Knighten, the West Monroe backer of amateurs, will have two more of his promising lads put on an exhibition bout, thus giving the boys a chance to appear before the public. These exhibitions in the past have turned out to be rugged affairs.

Popular prices will prevail for the Cook-Boudreaux card, with ringside seats being scaled at $2.50; general admission, $1.25 and children 60 cents. Tickets will be on sale in Monroe at Fink's Mens' Shop on DeSaird St. and in Bastrop at Arlie's Cafe and the Enterprise Stationery store. They may also be ordered by mail from Ray Kruger at the Bastrop Daily Enterprise.

70,000 EXPECTED

Giants-Browns Battle Tops Final Pro Football Slate

By JACK CLARY
Associated Press Sports Writer

More than 70,000 spectators are expected to pack Yankee Stadium Sunday to see whether the New York Giants can climax an almost season-long struggle to catch the Cleveland Browns in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League.

This game is the most important of five on the final program of the regular season.

A victory for the Giants would put them in a 9-3 deadlock with the Browns for first place. This would necessitate a playoff in New York next Sunday for the right to meet the Baltimore Colts, Western Conference titleholders, Dec. 28.

The Colts wind up their season schedule against the San Francisco 49ers. In the other games, the Green Bay Packers are at Los Angeles, Philadelphia at Washington and Detroit at the Chicago Bears.

Pittsburgh and the Chicago Cards met Saturday.

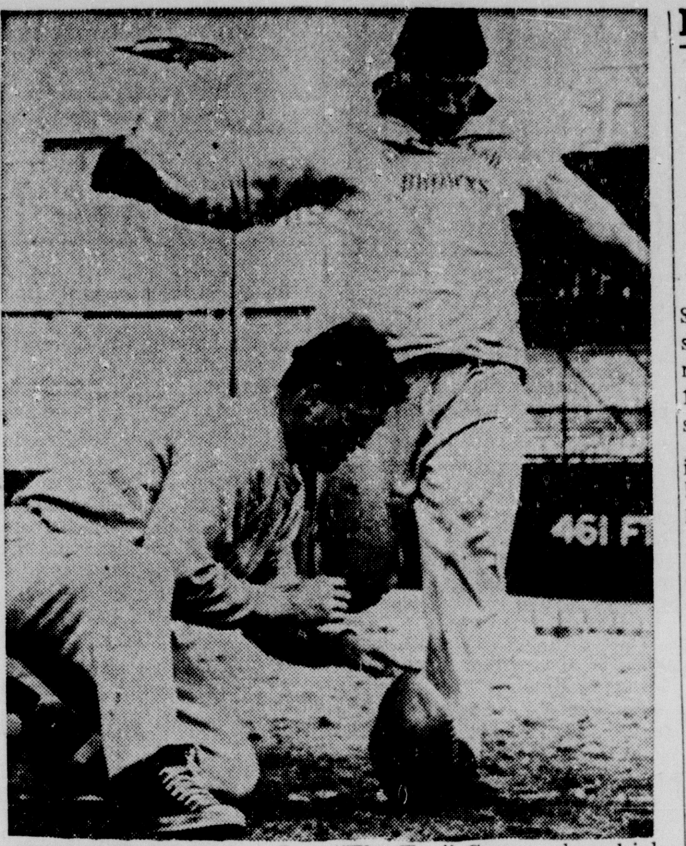
The Giants will be bucking Cleveland's perfect (5-0) road record.

To win Sunday, New York probably will have to get another superlative effort from veteran quarterback Charley Conerly. He was the outstanding performer when the Giants beat the Browns 21-17 in Cleveland Nov. 2.

Second place in the Western Conference rests on the results of the Bears-Lions and Rams-Packers games. Los Angeles and the Bears are tied for second place. The Rams already hold a 20-7 decision over the Packers this season. The Bears beat the Lions earlier by the same score.

High-scoring Baltimore, which clinched the Western crown two weeks ago, will attempt to repeat an early season triumph over San Francisco. The Colts won that one with a fine second half rally that overcame a 27-7 half-time deficit.

Johnny Unitas, Baltimore's quarterback, will be pitching to extend the NFL record set last week when he threw a touchdown pass in his 24th consecutive game.



JUST FOR KICKS — Lou "The Toe" Groza, place kick specialist of the Cleveland Browns, moves up to boot ball during workout at Yankee Stadium yesterday. Holding is back Bobby Freeman. Browns are aiming for the National Football League eastern division championship today, with victory over the New York Giants. Giants need a victory over Cleveland to force a playoff with the Browns for the title. (AP Wirephoto)

SIX RETURNEES

1-A All-Star Team Sports Explosive Backs, Vet Line

By BILL McINTYRE
Shreveport Times
(Written for La. Sports Writers Association)

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) —One of the most explosive backfields in Louisana prep football history and a veteran, battle-scarred forward wall combine forces to add a touch of distinction to the annual District 1-A football and eleven for 1958.

The six-team Class A circuit, spread throughout North and Central Louisiana, lists six returning all-stars from the 1957 line up along with three Coushatta standouts who made the District 1-B club a year ago. In all, 9 of the 11 all-district players earned similar honors prior to this year.

The two first-team ends, John Norman of Coushatta and Jack Womack of LaSalle in Olla, are the only helmeted troops making their first appearance on a post-season squad.

Coushatta, the District 1-B champion in 1956-57 before moving into Class A, and Mansfield, a power in area football for the past two years, dominate the 1-A roster with four selections apiece.

The Choctaws, 5-0 in the district standings and 10-1 for the season, landed Norman, guard Gerald Yarbrough, halfback Donnie Kelly and fullback Raymond Eddy on the team. The Wolverines, runner-up in the league with a 4-1 slate and 7-2 for the year, placed tackle Alex Monsour, center Frankie Lollar, quarterback Gary Moore and halfback Karl Hemphill.

Third-place LaSalle (2-2-1 and 6-3-1) grabbed two spots with Womack and guard C. C. Wright and Winnfield (2-3 and 2-7-1) copped the solo position with tackle Darrell Mayes.

Farmerville and Many, two second division entries, failed to scratch a post out of the top eleven. The Farmers, 1-3-1 and 3-6-1, managed a pair of honorable mention spots, two less than the Tigers (0-5 and 1-8).

Five of the all-district players—Monsour and Yarbrough in the line and Eddy, Kelly and Hemphill in the backfield —were unanimous choices of the six-man board; made up of coaches Gene Knecht of Coushatta, John Thompson of Mansfield, Phil White of LaSalle, Charles Newman of Winnfield, Childs Carpenter of Farmerville and Earl Haynes of Many.

LaSalle's twosome of Womack and Wright missed unanimous backing by only one vote apiece. The closest balloting took place at quarterback where Moore barely edged Coushatta's Al Self and LaSalle's Gary Russell, a pair of superior field generals.

LaSalle, confined to two positions this season, took over four berths in 1957 but a pair of Bengals failed to put in repeat appearances. Tiger fullback Bob Albritton lost out to Eddy in this year's line-busting role and had to settle for honorable mention and Everett Brooks, 1st season's 1-A quarterback, did his pigskin pitching for Istrouma of Baton Rouge this time around.

Albritton, one of only three players ever to appear on more than one 1-A squad until this year, was trying for an unprecedented third straight all-district rating. And then along came Eddy.

Albritton, Brooks and Many's Doyle Scaife (1956-57) are now joined on the two time list by Hemphill, Moore, Monsour and Lollar of Mansfield, Mayes of Winnfield and Wright of LaSalle. Moore and Mayes are in new positions —Gary was an all-district end in '57 and Mayes was a guard.

Writers Elect Paul Dietzel Coach Of Year

Tagged for another average year, Dietzel brought his Tigers through undefeated, put them in the Sugar Bowl game and took the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press poll, symbolic of the national title.

Thirty-two coaches were nominated in the writers' poll, with Dietzel dominating the balloting. More than 600 writers voted and Dietzel's total was in excess of 200 votes.

Veteran Paces Kentucky To 76-57 Victory

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Johnny Cox, holdover from Kentucky's NCAA champions, fired in 27 points to lead the nation's No. 2 basketball team to a 76-57 romp over ninth ranked St. Louis Saturday.

Kentucky had to call on all of its resources before it was able to shake the taller Billikens and pull away in the last eight minutes.

St. Louis led only once and trailed by only 34-30 at halftime. But it was unable to stand off Kentucky's stretch drive as a partisan crowd of 11,400 roared approval.

The ace for St. Louis was 6-foot-8 Bob Ferry who poured through 23 points and gave the Kentuckians plenty of anxiety, particularly at times when the St. Louis tactics forced Kentucky's little men to try and stop the big senior center.

Kentucky, at a disadvantage in size, battled St. Louis even on the boards and helped itself with a terrific 50 per cent shooting performance in the first half.

The score was tied six times the first half and Kentucky held the advantage most of the way by one to four points. St. Louis led at only one stage, 12-11, and fell off the pace in the closing minutes after Ferry went out for a rest with a cut over his eye, suffered in the scrambling on a rebound.

Coming back in the last half, the Billikens never came closer than two points and saw their opportunities fade when they attempted to press the Wildcats with the score at 52-48 and about eight minutes left to play.

OVER "MISMATCH"

Dietzel Says Howard's Job A Cinch Because Of Uproar

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana State's Paul Dietzel said Saturday the uproar about an alleged Sugar Bowl "mismatch" with national champion LSU made Clemson Coach Frank Howard's job a cinch.

"That kind of newspaper publicity has got his boys thinking LSU is insulting them," Dietzel said. "They'll be made—so fired up by New Year's Day they might just run us off the field."

LSU's undefeated football team begins work Monday for the game in New Orleans. The boys have worked out in sweat clothes but haven't had a formal drill since thumping Tulane 62-0 Nov. 22 in their 10th straight victory.

With its first perfect season in 50 years, the Southeastern Conference and national championships already in the bag, LSU is heavily favored to win its first Sugar Bowl title after four failures.

Clemson, Atlantic Coast Conference champion, had an 8-2 mark. The South Carolina team ranked 12th in the final Associated Press poll.

"They're awfully big and awfully tough," Dietzel said. "My coaches think they're a very fine football team. They look something like Florida—the toughest team we played—and something like Duke, which pushed us around pretty good in the first quarter.

"Clemson has two good quarterbacks. They pass the ball well and have a very sound football team. They are not fancy, but don't make make many mistakes.

"They have a lot better team than anyone has given them credit for."

LSU's light, fast team, led by All-America halfback Billy Cannon, ran its foes ragged with a 33-man first team, divided into White, Go and Chinese bandit units.

The White team, made up of the best 11 players, played about half the time, the Go offensive team and Bandit defensive unit divided up the remainder of playing time.

After wearing the other team down, the hustling Tigers eagerly took advantage of mistakes, piling up 275 points in 10 games while foes tallied only 54.

Clemson uses a two-team system, Dietzel said, "and they used three teams in their last game against Furman. They have plenty of depth. We won't wear them down."

LSU will end its pre-Christmas drills with a morning workout Dec. 23. The squad comes back Dec. 26 for a late drill.

Dietzel plans to complete pre-game drills in Baton Rouge, traveling to New Orleans by bus the day of the game.

"We've never gotten a team ready for a bowl before," he said. "We're going to have to play this thing by ear.

"I don't know just how much rough work we'll do. We'll just have to see how they shape up as the workouts go along"

Dietzel plans to dress out his entire 55-man squad for the Sugar Bowl game. Only about 36 players made road trips, but practically everybody who dressed for games played.

The squad figures to be in top condition, with the single exception of Darryl Jenkins, quarterback for the Chinese Bandits. Jenkins received a back injury Nov. 15 against Mississippi State.

National Puts Eight Men On All-Star Team

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An 11-man all-star baseball team for 1958 announced Saturday by the Sporting News shows eight National League players. Milwaukee's pennant-winning Braves placed three men.

Four all-stars are repeaters from 1957—Ted Williams of Boston, Stan Musial of St. Louis, Willie Mays of San Francisco and Warrer Spahn of Milwaukee.

It was the 14th time that Williams is a member of the team and the 12th time for Musial.

Ernie Banks, Chicago Cubs shortstop and the most valuable player in the National League this year, was the top vote-getter with 180 ballots. Musial was second with 131. Last year Musial led the voting.

Braves To Play All Grapefruit Games In Fla.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The National League champion Milwaukee Braves will play all of their 31 spring training games in Florida next year instead of taking their usual barnstorming trip.

In past years, the Braves have traveled through the Southwest, and the Middle West, arriving in Milwaukee a day before the opening of the regular season.

The 1959 Grapefruit League schedule will open Saturday, March 7, when the Braves meet the Pittsburgh Pirates at Fort Myers, Fla. The same clubs meet at Bradenton, the Braves' training base, the following day.

Milwaukee will play 16 of its exhibition games at Bradenton. It will meet the world champion New York Yankees four times, including a pair of games at Miami, March 19 and 20.

WRESTLING

Tag Title Scrap On Monday Card

A double main event wrestling card that features a tag team title tussle heads tomorrow night's wrestling show at Gus Kallio's Arena here as Promoter Gus Kallio nears the conclusion of his promotional career.

Jack Curtis, the old favorite with Twin Cities fans, and his son, Jack Jr., claimants to the southeastern United States tag team championship, are risking crown against the challenge of Jack LaRue and "Pretty Boy" Collins.

The companion feature pits Rocky "Sputnik" Monroe against Earl Guess.

Promoter Kallio, recovering at his home from a recent illness, has announced that he is selling his wrestling interests, and that the new year will start with August Baumgartner, already operator of the skating rink at the Walnut street arena, will be ready to take complete charge. Baumgartner will be on the scene tomorrow, getting familiar with his new venture.

Collins, paired in the relay bout as LaRue's partner, is a newcomer to the southern mat circuit. Partner LaRue is an old favorite who had been absent from the arena for a long time until his return last week.

Meanwhile, Bill Barney, the West Monroe automobile mechanic who claims the Louisiana heavyweight mat title, has made no reply to the challenge of Phil Brummett of Alexandria. Brummett climbed in the ring here last week to challenge for Barney's title, said Bill was dodging a match and in his opinion that the West Monroe grappler "is a coward." Barney has had a week to think it over. Maybe Brummett will get his answer tomorrow.

Tournament At Mangham Opens Dec. 18

MANGHAM, La. (Special) —Fifteen high school basketball teams have accepted invitations to play in Mangham December 18, 19 and 20 in the annual basketball tournament hosted by the Mangham School.

According to boys coach Embry Pickett, girls coach Roy McKay and Principal Bennie M. Hixon, every effort is being made to have the welcome mat out for the comfort of the guest teams, their coaches, principals and wives of the coaches and school principals.

A suite of rooms has been made ready and will be equipped with facilities where players may rest between games. A similar arrangement has been made for the men and ladies who will accompany the players, with coffee and other refreshments available.

The tournament will be given an official name, chosen from names submitted by the student body of Mangham High School, and the name chosen will be announced on Monday night at the game between Mangham and Baskin. The student submitting the winning name will be given a pass to the tournament.

Trophys will be awarded to the 1st place girls team; the 1st place boys team; the 2nd place girls team; the 2nd place boys team; and the 3rd place girls team and the 3rd place boys team.

A trophy will also be awarded for sportsmanship to a girls team and a boys team.

The all-tournament team will be chosen when 6 girls and 5 boys will be selected to make up the teams.

High on the list of favorites, due to outstanding season records, are in the boys division, Fort Necessity, always a power with a record of two tournament wins and Epps and Baskin.

In the girls division Pioneer, Holly Ridge, Mangham and Crowville have impressive records.

Havana Team Of Int. League May Be Moved

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Star reports that because of Cuba's internal situation, the International League has worked out an emergency plan to move the Havana Sugar Kings baseball franchise to another city if necessary.

Arrangements were worked out during the recent Washington baseball convention, the newspaper added.

"We'll not be caught napping. At this time we can't make any statement that might impair the status of Roberto Maduro (owner of the Havana club) politically or financially. He definitely wants to stay in the league."

The league met in emergency session over the threat of political unrest in Cuba last April, but decided against moving the Havana franchise.

The others signed are tackle Billy Kellum of Terregonne High of Houma, Wayne Cooper of Jennings and Jimmy Willis of Fair Park High at Shreveport.

MANGHAM, La. (Special) —Fifteen high school basketball teams have accepted invitations to play in Mangham December 18, 19 and 20 in the annual basketball tournament hosted by the Mangham School.

According to boys coach Embry Pickett, girls coach Roy McKay and Principal Bennie M. Hixon, every effort is being made to have the welcome mat out for the comfort of the guest teams, their coaches, principals and wives of the coaches and school principals.

A suite of rooms has been made ready and will be equipped with facilities where players may rest between games. A similar arrangement has been made for the men and ladies who will accompany the players, with coffee and other refreshments available.

The tournament will be given an official name, chosen from names submitted by the student body of Mangham High School, and the name chosen will be announced on Monday night at the game between Mangham and Baskin. The student submitting the winning name will be given a pass to the tournament.

Trophys will be awarded to the 1st place girls team; the 1st place boys team; the 2nd place girls team; the 2nd place boys team; and the 3rd place girls team and the 3rd place boys team.

A trophy will also be awarded for sportsmanship to a girls team and a boys team.

The all-tournament team will be chosen when 6 girls and 5 boys will be selected to make up the teams.

High on the list of favorites, due to outstanding season records, are in the boys division, Fort Necessity, always a power with a record of two tournament wins and Epps and Baskin.

In the girls division Pioneer, Holly Ridge, Mangham and Crowville have impressive records.

Havana Team Of Int. League May Be Moved

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Star reports that because of Cuba's internal situation, the International League has worked out an emergency plan to move the Havana Sugar Kings baseball franchise to another city if necessary.

Arrangements were worked out during the recent Washington baseball convention, the newspaper added.

"We'll not be caught napping. At this time we can't make any statement that might impair the status of Roberto Maduro (owner of the Havana club) politically or financially. He definitely wants to stay in the league."

The league met in emergency session over the threat of political unrest in Cuba last April, but decided against moving the Havana franchise.

LSU Added To Volunteer Slate

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Tennessee had added Louisiana State, the 1958 national champs, to its 1959 football schedule. The 10-contest slate announced Saturday:

Writers Elect Paul Dietzel Coach Of Year

Tagged for another average year, Dietzel brought his Tigers through undefeated, put them in the Sugar Bowl game and took the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press poll, symbolic of the national title.

Thirty-two coaches were nominated in the writers' poll, with Dietzel dominating the balloting. More than 600 writers voted and Dietzel's total was in excess of 200 votes.

Veteran Paces Kentucky To 76-57 Victory

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Johnny Cox, holdover from Kentucky's NCAA champions, fired in 27 points to lead the nation's No. 2 basketball team to a 76-57 romp over ninth ranked St. Louis Saturday.

Kentucky had to call on all of its resources before it was able to shake the taller Billikens and pull away in the last eight minutes.

St. Louis led only once and trailed by only 34-30 at halftime. But it was unable to stand off Kentucky's stretch drive as a partisan crowd of 11,400 roared approval.

The ace for St. Louis was 6-foot-8 Bob Ferry who poured through 23 points and gave the Kentuckians plenty of anxiety, particularly at times when the St. Louis tactics forced Kentucky's little men to try and stop the big senior center.

Kentucky, at a disadvantage in size, battled St. Louis even on the boards and helped itself with a terrific 50 per cent shooting performance in the first half.

The score was tied six times the first half and Kentucky held the advantage most of the way by one to four points. St. Louis led at only one stage, 12-11, and fell off the pace in the closing minutes after Ferry went out for a rest with a cut over his eye, suffered in the scrambling on a rebound.

Coming back in the last half, the Billikens never came closer than two points and saw their opportunities fade when they attempted to press the Wildcats with the score at 52-48 and about eight minutes left to play.

Greenies Sign 6 Grid Players

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Coach Andy Pilney announced Saturday the signing of six additional high school gridders to grants-in-aid at Tulane.

Three of the new signers are from the Jesuit High team which won the New Orleans Catholic championship this fall and three from other sections of the state.

The others signed are tackle Billy Kellum of Terregonne High of Houma, Wayne Cooper of Jennings and Jimmy Willis of Fair Park High at Shreveport.

OVER "MISMATCH"

Dietzel Says Howard's Job A Cinch Because Of Uproar

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana State's Paul Dietzel said Saturday the uproar about an alleged Sugar Bowl "mismatch" with national champion LSU made Clemson Coach Frank Howard's job a cinch.

"That kind of newspaper publicity has got his boys thinking LSU is insulting them," Dietzel said. "They'll be made—so fired up by New Year's Day they might just run us off the field."

LSU's undefeated football team begins work Monday for the game in New Orleans. The boys have worked out in sweat clothes but haven't had a formal drill since thumping Tulane 62-0 Nov. 22 in their 10th straight victory.

With its first perfect season in 50 years, the Southeastern Conference and national championships already in the bag, LSU is heavily favored to win its first Sugar Bowl title after four failures.

Clemson, Atlantic Coast Conference champion, had an 8-2 mark. The South Carolina team ranked 12th in the final Associated Press poll.

"They're awfully big and awfully tough," Dietzel said. "My coaches think they're a very fine football team. They look something like Florida—the toughest team we played—and something like Duke, which pushed us around pretty good in the first quarter.

"Clemson has two good quarterbacks. They pass the ball well and have a very sound football team. They are not fancy, but don't make make many mistakes.

"They have a lot better team than anyone has given them credit for."

LSU's light, fast team, led by All-America halfback Billy Cannon, ran its foes ragged with a 33-man first team, divided into White, Go and Chinese bandit units.

The White team, made up of the best 11 players, played about half the time, the Go offensive team and Bandit defensive unit divided up the remainder of playing time.

After wearing the other team down, the hustling Tigers eagerly took advantage of mistakes, piling up 275 points in 10 games while foes tallied only 54.

Clemson uses a two-team system, Dietzel said, "and they used three teams in their last game against Furman. They have plenty of depth. We won't wear them down."

LSU will end its pre-Christmas drills with a morning workout Dec. 23. The squad comes back Dec. 26 for a late drill.

Dietzel plans to complete pregame drills in Baton Rouge, traveling to New Orleans by bus the day of the game.

"We've never gotten a team ready for a bowl before," he said. "We're going to have to play this thing by ear.

"I don't know just how much rough work we'll do. We'll just have to see how they shape up as the workouts go along"

Dietzel plans to dress out his entire 55-man squad for the Sugar Bowl game. Only about 36 players made road trips, but practically everybody who dressed for games played.

The squad figures to be in top condition, with the single exception of Darryl Jenkins, quarterback for the Chinese Bandits. Jenkins received a back injury Nov. 15 against Mississippi State.

National Puts Eight Men On All-Star Team

ST. LOUIS (AP) — An 11-man all-star baseball team for 1958 announced Saturday by the Sporting News shows eight National League players. Milwaukee's pennant-winning Braves placed three men.

Four all-stars are repeaters from 1957—Ted Williams of Boston, Stan Musial of St. Louis, Willie Mays of San Francisco and Warrer Spahn of Milwaukee.

It was the 14th time that Williams is a member of the team and the 12th time for Musial.

Ernie Banks, Chicago Cubs shortstop and the most valuable player in the National League this year, was the top vote-getter with 180 ballots. Musial was second with 131. Last year Musial led the voting.

The team:

Braves To Play All Grapefruit Games In Fla.

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The National League champion Milwaukee Braves will play all of their 31 spring training games in Florida next year instead of taking their usual barnstorming trip.

In past years, the Braves have traveled through the Southwest and the Middle West, arriving in Milwaukee a day before the opening of the regular season.

The 1959 Grapefruit League schedule will open Saturday, March 7, when the Braves meet the Pittsburgh Pirates at Fort Myers, Fla. The same clubs meet at Bradenton, the Braves' training base, the following day.

Milwaukee will play 16 of its exhibition games at Bradenton. It will meet the world champion New York Yankees four times, including a pair of games at Miami, March 19 and 20.

SOMETHING FROM EVERYWHERE — Visitors prowl through the aisles of the U.N. gift shop, which carries an off-beat stock ranging from Australian boomerangs to an African chief's throne.

AT U. N. GIFT CENTER

World's Handicraft Is Shown For Sale

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) —For that loved one who wants something different this Christmas, here's a place whose wares range from an Indian lucky bean for 25 cents to a French Cameroons chief's throne for $160.

Tucked away in the basement of the General Assembly building, the U. N. Gift Shop has been taking in more than $2,000 a day since the Christmas season began by selling the handicraft of some 70 nations.

The store's wide variety of stock runs the gamut from the exquisite to the grotesque. It brings in an annual gross of more than a half million dollars.

The offbeat display lures some 750,000 visitors a year including collectores, tourists and a sprinkling of jaded kleptomaniacs.

A number of celebrities frequent the little shop which has been operating since 1952. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt buys many of her Christmas presents here. So do conductor Leopold Stokowski and movie star Irene Dunne.

Transactions vary from a few pennies handed over the counter by small fry tourists to a recent order for more than $3,000 in Christmas presents placed by a Western industrialist.

"We import nearly 90 per cent of our stock from the place of origin," said Lloyd Glasgow, manager of the gift shop. "We insist that it be indigenous to the country concerned and, where possible, that it be handcrafted."

This passion for authenticity has brought in some rather bizarre items, but most of them eventually find a buyer.

Glasgow recently imported — with some trepidation — a batch of tooled leather camel saddles from Egypt to retail for $45 each. It was soon discovered that camel saddles make good seats for television viewers and the lot sold like hot cakes.

There has been a smilar run on Canadian Eskimo soapstone carvings flown in from the Arctic Circle by bush pilots and priced from $10 to $80.

Silk stoles from India for $60 are big sellers. So are illustrated lacquer boxes from Russia for $45.

Collectors are among the store's best customers.

"Last summer an international doll collectors' convention met in New York and got word that we had a stock of dolls from nearly every nation in the world priced from 50 cents to $100," Glasgow said. "They nearly bought us out."

The shop with its open counters and general air of confusion attracts a number of kleptomaniacs and small time pilferers.

"They used to get away with $15,000 in stock a year, but we've cut it down to around $5,000," Glasgow said. "When we spot them we stop them at the door and politely suggest that they forgot to pay for an article concealed in their pocket. It usually works."

Aside from the perennial Christmas rush, the store derives a comfortable, steady income that goes into the United Nations general fund.

World events can bring a sudden boom, however.

When the Middle East crisis broke last August and the General Assembly went into emergency session, the gift shop did a land office business.

Young Brothers Drown In River

LODI, N.J. (AP)—Two brothers, 2 and 4, drowned in icy Saddle River Saturday when they apparently toppled off their sled while coasting and fell into the water.

Skindivers retrieved the bodies of Michael Barthold, 2, and his brother Frank, 4. Attempts to revive them failed.

The boys had been coasting on a slope in the backyard of their home.

Their mother, Mrs. Frank Barthold, noticed them missing. Then she spotted the sled by the river bank and a hat of one of her sons floating in the river. She called police.

1959 To Be Year Of Decision For The 'Princess'

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON — (UPI) — The year 1959 will be one of decision for Princess Margaret. On Aug. 21, she will enter her 30th year.

If she is not engaged or married by then — and the chances are that she won't be — she will be regarded by practically everyone in these sceptred isles as a spinster.

Already, the little princess is being referred to as such in circles close to the royal court. These people have believed for some time that because of the dearth of eligible men in her age group the sister of Queen Elizabeth will never marry.

This belief is coupled with the cheerless argument that spinsterhood for royal princesses is not the same as for ordinary people. It is pointed out for example that Princess Victoria, sister of King George V, managed to live a full and important life as a spinster.

As though to bear out this argument Princess Margaret is seemingly being guided to more significant public duties. Her overseas tours to the West Indies, Africa and Canada have given her an awareness of the Commonwealth and the duties of the Crown toward it. If she passes 30 unmarried it is possible she may be given a governor generalship.

But Britons would much rather that the tiny (five-foot) princess fall in love, marry and raise a family. They have followed her escorts for years and there has been much disappointment at the breakfast tables as first one then another eligible married elsewhere.

Few princesses in modern times could have had so many chances —the rich Earl of Dalkeith, the handsome Lord Ogilvy, the dashing Earl of Westmoreland, the gay Duke of Rutland, Lord Portchester, the Marquess of Blandford, Lord Carnegie—the list is long. All briefly appeared in the spotlight with her, and departed.

Now only two or three regualr escorts are still about and they are not marital prospects, according to court circles. Chief among them is millionaire Billy Wallace who has not been in good health for a long time.

If the Princess does find a mate it will probably be someone she does not know now, or knows only casually. Possibly a much older man.

There remains Group Captain Peter Townsend with whom she was once in love. Buckingham Palace sources say that marriage with Townsend is out of the question and, in any event, the Princess is no longer in love with him.

The Princess' public engagements for 1959 have not yet been fixed but it is possible she will make at least one overseas trip and one or two journeys to the Continent. She is still eager to visit the United States but it is doubtful if it will be arranged this year.

In between her many public engagements, the Princess still like parties and night clubs. She has many dancing companions, as distinct from marriage eligibles, and occasionally goes out with some of her married friends.

The prospect of approaching spinsterhood may be worrying her people but it doesn't seem to disturb the Princess. On her recent night club jaunts, she has never looked happier.

Ike Readies His Program For Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower completed spade work Saturday on a legislative program he will submit to a predominantly Democratic Congress next month.

In preparation for a strategy meeting with Republican congressional leaders Monday, he spent two hours with White House staff members who are working on details of his program.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the Monday conference will be an all-day affair. The President will meet with GOP House and Senate leaders at 8:30 a.m. E.S.T. and work straight through the day except for a lunch break.

The chief executive has met every year with the legislative chieftains but this year he is confronted with a Congress that is more firmly controlled by Democrats than at any time since he entered the White House.

He will meet with both Democratic and Republican leaders before Congress convenes Jan. 7 on foreign policy and defense programs which are usually kept in the realm of bipartisanship.

Monday's meeting with the Republicans will be devoted essentially to domestic issues.

Spending vs. inflation will undoubtedly be the biggest issue in the coming session of the 86th Congress. The President is determined to cut the budget where possible. Leaders of both parties have been warning of inflationary dangers. But many Democrats feel their sweeping victory in November stemmed from voter belief that more should be done in government aid programs.

Eisenhower is also reported ready to ask Congress to write tougher civil rights legislation. A new farm program also may be in the works. Both could stir controversy.

Legislation to curb labor racketeering is also believed on the President's list. Efforts to pass a bill collapsed in the House last year amid political wrangling. In addition, Hawaiian statehood will receive high priority as a result of Alaska's admission to the union.

CALUMET BACK AGAIN

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Calumet Farm, owned by Mrs. Gene Markey, will seek its fourth straight Hialeah title this winter. The Lexington stable set a Florida record at the 1958 meeting, winning $251,460.

LONDON — (UPI) — The year 1959 will be one of decision for Princess Margaret. On Aug. 21, she will enter her 30th year.

If she is not engaged or married by then — and the chances are that she won't be — she will be regarded by practically everyone in these sceptred isles as a spinster.

Already, the little princess is being referred to as such in circles close to the royal court. These people have believed for some time that because of the dearth of eligible men in her age group the sister of Queen Elizabeth will never marry.

This belief is coupled with the cheerless argument that spinsterhood for royal princesses is not the same as for ordinary people. It is pointed out for example that Princess Victoria, sister of King George V, managed to live a full and important life as a spinster.

As though to bear out this argument Princess Margaret is seemingly being guided to more significant public duties. Her overseas tours to the West Indies, Africa and Canada have given her an awareness of the Commonwealth and the duties of the Crown toward it. If she passes 30 unmarried it is possible she may be given a governor generalship.

But Britons would much rather that the tiny (five-foot) princess fall in love, marry and raise a family. They have followed her escorts for years and there has been much disappointment at the breakfast tables as first one then another eligible married elsewhere.

Few princesses in modern times could have had so many chances —the rich Earl of Dalkeith, the handsome Lord Ogilvy, the dashing Earl of Westmoreland, the gay Duke of Rutland, Lord Portchester, the Marquess of Blandford, Lord Carnegie—the list is long. All briefly appeared in the spotlight with her, and departed.

Now only two or three regualr escorts are still about and they are not marital prospects, according to court circles. Chief among them is millionaire Billy Wallace who has not been in good health for a long time.

If the Princess does find a mate it will probably be someone she does not know now, or knows only casually. Possibly a much older man.

There remains Group Captain Peter Townsend with whom she was once in love. Buckingham Palace sources say that marriage with Townsend is out of the question and, in any event, the Princess is no longer in love with him.

The Princess' public engagements for 1959 have not yet been fixed but it is possible she will make at least one overseas trip and one or two journeys to the Continent. She is still eager to visit the United States but it is doubtful if it will be arranged this year.

In between her many public engagements, the Princess still like parties and night clubs. She has many dancing companions, as distinct from marriage eligibles, and occasionally goes out with some of her married friends.

The prospect of approaching spinsterhood may be worrying her people but it doesn't seem to disturb the Princess. On her recent night club jaunts, she has never looked happier.

Ike Readies His Program For Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Eisenhower completed spade work Saturday on a legislative program he will submit to a predominantly Democratic Congress next month.

In preparation for a strategy meeting with Republican congressional leaders Monday, he spent two hours with White House staff members who are working on details of his program.

Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said the Monday conference will be an all-day affair. The President will meet with GOP House and Senate leaders at 8:30 a.m. E.S.T. and work straight through the day except for a lunch break.

The chief executive has met every year with the legislative chieftains but this year he is confronted with a Congress that is more firmly controlled by Democrats than at any time since he entered the White House.

He will meet with both Democratic and Republican leaders before Congress convenes Jan. 7 on foreign policy and defense programs which are usually kept in the realm of bipartisanship.

Monday's meeting with the Republicans will be devoted essentially to domestic issues.

Spending vs. inflation will undoubtedly be the biggest issue in the coming session of the 86th Congress. The President is determined to cut the budget where possible. Leaders of both parties have been warning of inflationary dangers. But many Democrats feel their sweeping victory in November stemmed from voter belief that more should be done in government aid programs.

Eisenhower is also reported ready to ask Congress to write tougher civil rights legislation. A new farm program also may be in the works. Both could stir controversy.

Legislation to curb labor racketeering is also believed on the President's list. Efforts to pass a bill collapsed in the House last year amid political wrangling. In addition, Hawaiian statehood will receive high priority as a result of Alaska's admission to the union.

CALENDER ARTISTS

Make Living By Drawing Girls

By JACK MACKAY

ST. PAUL (AP) — What's a man's idea of a pretty girl:

That's a puzzler that has consumed as much time as any question since the days of the caveman. Here at Brown & Bigelow — the world's largest calendar house — a gallery of professional artists make very good livings painting answers.

B&B tries each year to keep a jump ahead of the nation's taste in girls in order to keep their calendars on the walls in millions of business houses.

The gal who traps you in an advertisement, turns your head to a magazine cover on the newsstand, or smiles from the billboard is a striking miss but her lifetime is short.

A calendar girl, on the other hand, must not only attract immediate attention but must hold your interest all year. To make it even tougher, the calendars now being distributed for 1959 were on the artists' easels back in 1957. The girls now being painted won't occupy wall space until 1960.

Pretty? A calendar girl must be that, but what is "pretty"? Clair Fry, B&B director, knows how beauty standards change. The dream girl of the '30s is much different than the public's dream today — even though historians say women remain pretty much the same through the centuries.

"You just can't take fairly rigid specifications for eyes, nose, mouth and shape and working within these limits, create the gals who stand out as beautiful," Fry says. And he has personally painted hundreds and looked at thousands.

The artist must juggle proportions with such close tolerances that it becomes a feeling rather than a measurement.

"The gal on the calendar can't be aggressive and her manner can't be blatant," Fry warns.

"The girl must be youthful, innocent, and yet blessed with desirable qualifications. The same poses, the same gestures, are successful each year with just a little artful trick or touch to add the pictorial equivalent of pepper and salt for a slightly different flavor. These poses are extremely limited and must be used over and over with a disguise to keep them fresh," Fry explains.

In selecting his model, the artist looks for basic structure of head and figure rather than detail. Whimsey enters into calendar art and the model must be an expert actress to convey the feeling of kidding without being ridiculous.

There is a market for the racy girl but there is a far greater market for the sweet type that anyone would be proud to have for a daughter or sister. . . .

Each year, Brown & Bigelow offers 12 major girl subjects. Each girl has an exact amount of spice for a carefully evaluated segment of the market.

In fact, each picture in the entire B&B calendar line is created for an area of taste and specialized interest determined through experience and research. The appeal of the pretty girl is perennial and universal, Fry contends.

Artists keep abreast of subtle changes in taste and have to anticipate styles that will be in vogue two years from the time of actual painting. Each picture must hit a special taste and a special market potential.

WHO ME?—That's Brown & Bigelow's title for this demure miss who will decorate thousands of 1959 calendars. B&B offers 12 major girl subjects on its calendars every year, each with a precise amount of spice and aimed at a carefully defined market.

Home Economic Majors At NLSC Attend Meeting

Two Northeast students, Lou Sheppard of Fort Necessity and Flora Claunch of Grayson, accompanied by Miss Robie Lee Coxe, instructor in home economics, attended a meeting of the state Executive Council of the Louisiana Home Economics Club at Alexandria Saturday.

Miss Sheppard is president of the Northeast Home Economics Club and Miss Coxe serves as faculty adviser. Miss Claunch is president of the state organization of college students.

Among the business to the undertaken was the nomination of a candidate for national vice-president and plans for the state convention meeting in Alexandria, March 13-14.

Donna Holdeman and Bonnie Defee, both of Monroe, have been named voting delegates from the Northeast club to the state meeting.

Forty three home economics majors from Northeast visited the United Gas Company Exhibit on the state fair grounds at Shreveport Thursday. The group was shown model kitchens, styled and equipped by the company.

Turkey Rebellion Being Staged By Jail Prisoners

MADISON, Wis (AP)—Sheriff Fred Goff suspects that the unprecedented number of requests by jail prisoners to spend Christmas Day on the outside amounts to a turkey rebellion.

He thinks that what the inmates have in mind is some nice, juicy hamburgers rather than the turkey dinner planned for the day. But the sheriff, with an eye on food costs, says it will be turkey, complaints or no complaints.

Admittedly, said the sheriff, turkey has been on the jail menu pretty often this fall. But, he added, turkey "is one of the most economical dishes we can serve; it's even cheaper than hamburger."

As for Christmas furloughs, they're out, says Goff. "We have 90 prisoners here, and if we made one exception we'd have to let them all out."

THE YEAR 1987

It Should Be A Real Dilly

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) —The year 1987—what is it going to be like?

Pocket telephones for everybody bread that never goes stale, common international language, woven fabric as cheap and disposable as a paper towel, and homes heated and cooled by solar energy.

Maybe all of thise things and some not even thought of, say some of America's top echelon industrial and business leaders.

Their predictions of the world three decades from now were placed in two time capsules that were part of the dedication of the new 2¼-million-dollar Look Magazine building here today.

Gardner Cowles, president of Cowles Magazines, Inc., and editor of Look, placed the time capsules in the lobby of the building. They will be opened in January 1987, when Look will be 50 years old.

These leaders did not foresee a disastrous world conflict between now and 1987.

Among the other things they predicted were:

Foolproof electronic controls that will eliminate highway accidents, autos made of steel-hard plastic and which will become private airplanes by sprouting wings at the push of a button, virtual elimination of cancer heart disease, polio and even the common cold, treatment of mental ills by pills and shots, and a life expectancy of 80 years or more.

Among those predicting the future included:

Charles E. Wilson, former secretary of defense, who said the Communist states and free nations would continue in conflict in one form or another throughout the next 30 years.

Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, who estimated a population for this country of 275 million by 1987 and said such growth would give "a new expression to the concept of a 'people's capitalism.' "

Don G. Mitchell, chairman of the board of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., who prophesied that "not only will a man be able to see and talk to another man in any part of the world, but electronic devices will also modify language differences."

Space Age Toys Require High IQ

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Writer

Like everyone else, I'd like to be a child again at Christmas, but frankly I just don't have the IQ for it any more.

Toddlers today, as any department store toy catalogue plainly shows, are so far ahead of the rest of us intellectually that parents need a cram course at the Institute for Advanced Study to set the toys out under the tree.

It was bad enough in the old days trying to assemble junior's scooter and sister's doll carriage on the night before Christmas, when all that was needed was the brains of an Edison or a Marconi. But how are you going to contend with the 266-piece, four-foot-long atomic cannon that actually fires and Alpha 1 ballistic missile with its rocket motor, remote control adjustable launcher and its nontoxic, nonflammable oxidizer and fuel load?

The Navy tried for two years to get a satellite into orbit—mere child's play, according to the toy manufacturers, that any 6-year-old can manage with ease. A big toy item this year is a "fastinating two-stage rocket that uses water as fuel, completely safe, with fuel supply tank and air injection pump."

The first stage, so the catalogue promises, "soars up to 300 feet, then the second stage goes even higher." They don't say how much higher, but presumably there's a gaping hole left in the ceiling to launch more advanced toys like the four-stage moon rocket and the ICBM Vanguard, made of "high impact plastic," which launches a satellite and tracks it on a miniature radar screen.

Youngsters who tire of extracting the square root of 3 on rainy afternoons can set up their own "Cape Canaveral rocket research center." It's complete with "two secret rocket launching areas, two polyethylene satellites, all necessary research equipment and a staff of 22 plastic men in characteristic poses."

Whether the "characteristic poses" include shrugs of frustration after a firing fizzle the catalogue blurb doesn't say. Anyhow Junior can always remedy a launching failure by putting in more time with his chemistry set, which now includes "a real sample of uranium ore."

D. C. Church Has Laymen Give Sermons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. Charles D. Kean, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Epiphany in downtown Washington, believes "it isn't necessary for a man to wear his collar backwards to proclaim the work of God in our age."

A number of well-known Washington officials are helping him prove this point.

Dr. Kean's church, in the middle of Washington's shopping district a few blocks from the White House conducts worship services at noon each weekday during the pre-Christmas advent season. Guest preachers are usually featured.

Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare in President Eisenhower's cabinet, led the way with a Dec. 4 sermon entitled "in defense of the dogooder."

Other prominent laymen who have delivered advent sermons at Epiphany include:

Dr. Robert H. Felix, noted psychiatrist who is director of the National Institute of Mental Health.

Boyd Leedom, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board.

Dr. Leonard E. Elstad, president of Gallaudet College for the Deaf.

Scheduled to speak next week are Wendell B. Barnes, head of the Small Business Administration, and True D. Morse, undersecretary of agriculture.

Flemming and Leedom are Methodists. Morse is a member of the Disciples of Chris denomination. Felix, Elstad and Barnes are Episcopalians.

Church records indicate it is the first time in the 116-year history of the famous church that laymen have occupied the pulpit for regular worship services.

Kean regards the experiment as a complete success.

"A devoted Christian layman can often be more effective than a clergyman in communicating the gospel's message," he said. "A layman uses fresh, non-theological language, and he brings valuable insights from his own experience to the task of preaching.

"We've already decided to call on laymen for preachers again next Advent."

THE YEAR 1987

It Should Be A Real Dilly

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) —The year 1987—what is it going to be like?

Pocket telephones for everybody bread that never goes stale, common international language, woven fabric as cheap and disposable as a paper towel, and homes heated and cooled by solar energy.

Maybe all of thise things and some not even thought of, say some of America's top echelon industrial and business leaders.

Their predictions of the world three decades from now were placed in two time capsules that were part of the dedication of the new 2¼-million-dollar Look Magazine building here today.

Gardner Cowles, president of Cowles Magazines, Inc., and editor of Look, placed the time capsules in the lobby of the building. They will be opened in January 1987, when Look will be 50 years old.

These leaders did not foresee a disastrous world conflict between now and 1987.

Among the other things they predicted were:

Foolproof electronic controls that will eliminate highway accidents, autos made of steel-hard plastic and which will become private airplanes by sprouting wings at the push of a button. virtual elimination of cancer heart disease, polio and even the common cold, treatment of mental ills by pills and shots, and a life expectancy of 80 years or more.

Among those predicting the future included:

Charles E. Wilson, former secretary of defense, who said the Communist states and free nations would continue in conflict in one form or another throughout the next 30 years.

Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, who estimated a population for this country of 275 million by 1987 and said such growth would give "a new expression to the concept of a 'people's capitalism.' "

Don G. Mitchell, chairman of the board of Sylvania Electric Products, Inc., who prophesied that "not only will a man be able to see and talk to another man in any part of the world, but electronic devices will also modify language differences."

Space Age Toys Require High IQ

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Writer

Like everyone else, I'd like to be a child again at Christmas, but frankly I just don't have the IQ for it any more.

Toddlers today, as any department store toy catalogue plainly shows, are so far ahead of the rest of us intellectually that parents need a cram course at the Institute for Advanced Study to set the toys out under the tree.

It was bad enough in the old days trying to assemble junior's scooter and sister's doll carriage on the night before Christmas, when all that was needed was the brains of an Edison or a Marconi. But how are you going to contend with the 266-piece, four-foot-long atomic cannon that actually fires and Alpha 1 ballistic missile with its rocket motor, remote control adjustable launcher and its nontoxic, nonflammable oxidizer and fuel load?

The Navy tried for two years to get a satellite into orbit—mere child's play, according to the toy manufacturers, that any 6-year-old can manage with ease. A big toy item this year is a "fastinating two-stage rocket that uses water as fuel, completely safe, with fuel supply tank and air injection pump."

The first stage, so the catalogue promises, "soars up to 300 feet, then the second stage goes even higher." They don't say how much higher, but presumably there's a gaping hole left in the ceiling to launch more advanced toys like the four-stage moon rocket and the ICBM Vanguard, made of "high impact plastic," which launches a satellite and tracks it on a miniature radar screen.

Youngsters who tire of extracting the square root of 3 on rainy afternoons can set up their own "Cape Canaveral rocket research center." It's complete with "two secret rocket launching areas, two polyethylene satellites, all necessary research equipment and a staff of 22 plastic men in characteristic poses."

Whether the "characteristic poses" include shrugs of frustration after a firing fizzle the catalogue blurb doesn't say. Anyhow Junior can always remedy a launching failure by putting in more time with his chemistry set, which now includes "a real sample of uranium ore."

INCENTIVE PLANS EFFECTIVE

Profit Sharing Aids Production

NEW YORK (AP) — Getting more goods for less work has long been an American goal. It is increasingly pressing in today's mounting costs and rising prices.

Many manufacturers and service firms try for it by upgrading their plant and machinery, by getting a mechanism to do what used to take elbow grease.

Many try for it by enlisting employe enthusiasm through letting them share in the profits. Theoretically at least, the more the workers produce, the greater the profits to share after the goods are sold and the books balanced. The Council of Profit Sharing Industries estimates that 20,000 employers have some such program affecting perhaps two million workers.

Many firms try for increased productivity by tying the wage itself directly to increases in output per man hour of labor. Increase your productivity above what is determined to be the norm and your take home pay goes up accordingly.

How effective have these wage incentive plans been in increasing productivity, in cutting unit labor costs for industry, in increasing the earnings for employes?

To find out, a study was made of 2,500 such wage incentive plans in 29 different industries as set up by 17 management consulting firms, three fourths of them since 1949. Just completed by the George Elliott Co., New York consulting firm, reports productivity rose by anywhere from 39 to 100 per cent, with an average of 63.55 per cent.

Companies using these plans cut unit labor costs by anywhere from 9 to 59 per cent for an average saving of 25.91 per cent.

Workers under the plans found take home pay higher by anywhere from 9 to 39 per cent for an average of 20.6 per cent.

Wage incentive plans were set up by the consultants in this fashion:

Base work measurements through time studies or predetermined time systems set performance standards considered acceptable by managements and the unions for employes to be able to earn their base rate of pay. Then incentive bonuses were offered for extra productivity above the determined standard performance.

Some standards were updated from time to time to take into account changes in methods, equipment or products.

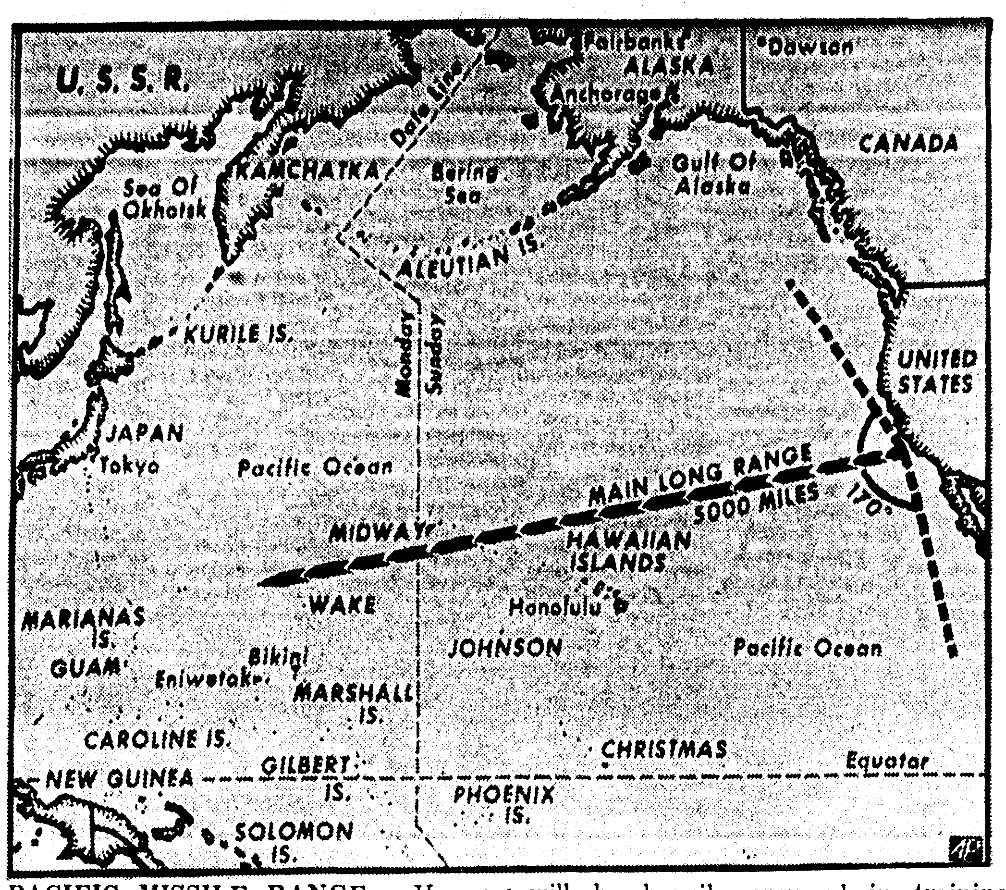
The survey reveals the dollar and cents value to the firms adopting them: for every 1 per cent increase in wages earned by the worker, the companies on average increased productivity by 3.1 per cent and cut unit costs 1.25 per cent.

Increases varied widely among industries.

Railroad employes involved in such plans had the best earnings increase, 39 per cent; followed by chemical workers, 34.46 per cent; transport equipment workers (other than autos), 31.71 per cent; services allied to transportation, 31.5 per cent; and stone, clay & glass products, 31.22 per cent.

Tobacco workers had the smallest increase, 9 per cent, although the tobacco industry led all the rest with a 100 per cent increase in productivity, while autos and auto equipment had the lowest productivity gain, 39 per cent.

The railroads had the best luck in cutting unit costs, 59 per cent. Tobocco was second in cost cutting benefits, 49 per cent; followed by state & local government enterprises, 39 per cent; metal rolling & extruding, 39 per cent and the stone, clay & glass group, 37.89 per cent.



PACIFIC MISSILE RANGE —Heavy line traces the main test range of the missile test center being activated at Vandenberg Air Force base, 150 miles northwest of Los Angeles. Shorter lines extending northwest and southwest will be for short range firings. Vandenberg is the nation's second missile center and will be heavily engaged in training troops in the handling of the various types of ballistic missiles as well as some research and development work. The other U.S. missile range is at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and is mainly concerned with research and development. (AP Wirephoto Map.)

Yule Picnic Observed In Australia

SYDNEY (AP)—The sun blazes down....men and women wear summer clothes to church ...... crowds pack the beaches ....cold turkey sald is eaten by quiet inland streams.

That is Christmas Day in Australia.

The day comes to the big cities of eastern Australia 10 hours before London, 15 hours ahead of New York.

Because it's mid-summer in the southern hemisphere, the Christmas-New Year period is holiday time in Australia.

Some small firms close for 10 days or so over Christmas and New Year. Those that stay open do little business.

Schools have their longest break, varying from six to eight weeks, in December and January. Working men and women who can manage it take their annual holidays at this time.

Many thousands of Australian families spend Christmas away from home. They live in canvas tents, caravans, holiday houses, hotels, and guesthouses.

But broadly the traditions of an English Christmas are maintained in this country 12,000 miles away from the British Isles.

More people go to church than on any other day in the year. Presents are exchanged. Santa Claus arrives for the children. Families try to be together. Special meals are eaten, with a special bottle of wine.

Many families still stick to the English Christmas Day midday dinner of hot roast turkey, chicken, or duck, followed by steaming plum pudding.

But in recent years more and more housewives are cooking their poultry the day before and having it cold with salad.

Merry Christmas

HOLLAND, Mich. (AP) — Six-year-old Kathy Langejans decided to try to imitate "a lady on television" by jumping from a second-story window. She said she meant to fly to the house next door. Instead she fell 25 feet into a deep snow bank. She was uninjured.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—The post office got this letter to Santa: "Will you give me a new bike, and if you can't find a new bike I will take an old one. If your eleves are too busy this year, will you please make me the first one on your list next year?"

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP)—Milton R. Smalling and William H. Butler have swapped wives. Their wives went to Las Vegas, Nev., earlier this week and shared a room while they waited for their divorces. Then the husbands arrived and married each other's ex-wife.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — A woman who broke her arm trying to dance on the waxed surface of a Millbrae bar has sued the owners for $10,000. Mrs. Virginia (Ginger) Leong, 34, said the owners of Melody House Tavern were negligent in permitting her to dance on the bar.

PRINCETON, Mo. (AP)—Mrs. Adeline Baldwin, 65, went next door to help her neighbor Mrs. Glen Shipley, 75, who was injured in a fall. In the Shipley home, Mrs. Baldwin tripped on a rug and fell. Both women were treated at separate hospitals for the same injury—a broken wrist.

OSWEGO, Kan. (AP)—Herbert L. Hazley, 51, a trusty serving 30 days for drunkenness, jumped from the third floor of the Labette County Courthouse. He walked five blocks to the home of a friend and collapsed. He was taken to a hospital and treated for a possible back injury and a cut on the head.

CHICAGO (AP) — Democratic Mayor Richard J. Daley, serving his first four-year term, will be a candidate for re-election in next year's municipal elections.

MIDDLETOWN, N.Y. (AP) — William Jessburger couldn't get his car started. He called a service station about battery service. It turned out the car really needed it. During the night somebody had stolen the battery.

Train Crossing Crash Kills One

VERONA, Miss. (AP)—Hermon Lamb, about 25, was killed today when a car and freight train crashed at a crossing here.

Highway Patrolman Tommy Rogers said witnesses told him the driver of the car appparently didn't see the train. Snow was packed over the crossing, Rogers said, and was falling in flurries.

Lamb, of Verona, was father of two. The driver of the car, identified as Dwain Baldwin, 27, also of Verona, was injured.

YOUNG SALESMAN

Says Blindness Is Not Handicap

By WHITEY SAWYER

DENTON, Tex. (AP) — "Being blind is just an inconvenience. It's not a handicap. People get it mixed up," said John Turner, a successful young insurance agent.

His lef hand stroked his seeing eye dog, Villa, as he went on firmly: "It means you don't do things as quickly as you'd like, you can't hop into a car and go somewhere; but it's not a handicap."

John, an athletic - looking man of 23, has the record to back up his words. In his first year as a life insurance agent he sold $700,000 in insurance and received an industry scholarship as one of the four most promising young agents of 1958. He has won other company prizes.

BECAME BLIND IN 1953

Retina troubles plagued him in high school, although he was a successful athlete until "the spring of 1953 I got so I couldn't see at all."

Several operations failed to help Turner more than temporarily, but he finished high school in May of that year.

"I learned braille that fall and got Villa in November of 1953. I started school at North Texas State College in February of 1954 and graduated in June of 1957," he related.

College didn't present any great problems he said. "I learned to take notes in braille and in longhand and had my books taped so I could listen to them. And I hired readers."

"Yes, and they were always girls," chimed in his pretty, petite wife, Jeanie.

Turner smiled a little.

"I majored in marketing and got a BBA," he said. "I took some insurance courses and figured on getting some kind of a sales job.

"It took me about two months. I checked with about 14 companies. Most of them wouldn't even consider me. I guess they just weren't interested in anyone who couldn't see.

LANDED JOB

"Then this Ray Campbell gave me a chance to work."

Campbell, a local manager for Massachusetts Mutual, explained his action simply: "I thought the man deserved a chance."

"I stayed home and studied a month or two," Turner related. "Then we had a course in Dallas at regular intervals. By August I was earning money and in October, November and December of that year I sold and delivered more insurance than any of the Massachusetts Mutual agents in the North Texas area."

Turner set up an office in Denton, where he went to school. He grew up in Frisco, Tex., a few miles to the east.

He married his senior year in school to a girl he had known since childhood. He hadn't seen Jeanie in several years, he said. "Then I heard she was in town, going to Texas Woman's University. I called her up and that was the most expensive phone call I ever made," he grinned.

During the day John and Villa call on customers, walking around the town of 30,000. At night, his wife gets a baby sitter for their baby daugher and drives him on calls.

"I have most of them in my head," Turner said of rates and other questions he might be asked about an insurance program. "I can come within a few cents of them in the main groups I deal with. If I don't know them, I call Jeanie or come back with her at night."

Turner said his wife does most of the reading and he does most of the correspondence.

"I really don't feel I could do any better if I could see," he said. "I expect to always be a salesman. I don't want to try managerial work, although I feel I could probably handle it, with Jeanie and Villa, if I tried."

Asked if he had any main problems, he laughingly answered: "Not enough business."

"Seriously," he went on, "I don't have a main problem."

He reconsidered a bit, "perhaps you might say I have to work a bit more at night."

"Getting baby sitters is our main problem," Jeanie said.

John's life is as normal as possible. He plays cards with a braille deck. "He's got a phenomenal memory for cards," his wife said, "but he hasn't learned to read the cards quickly enough yet to tell what he deals to other people."

He follows football avidly, going to games and getting someone to describe to him what's going on.

The word handicap came up again.

"Jeanie and I saw a man with a real handicap today," John said.

"We saw a blind man rattling a tin cup. He didn't have a profession and he didn't have a dog like Villa, here. That man was really handicapped."

Strange Twist To Bald Spots

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A strange twist of human behavior is responsible for little patches of baldness in some people, say two medical investigators.

A youngster may have some missing eyelashes because of it. The scalp of a child who has an older brother or sister may start getting thin in spots without any apparent reason. A mustache may contain a bare patch from which hairs have been pulled.

The name of the disorder is trichotillomania, which means hair-pulling madness. It is not a true form of insanity but is a common habit among the insane, the investigators say.

Mostly, they add, it is a compulsive form of neurosis which may be a sign of a serious personality disorder. Often the help of a psychiatrist is needed to stop it.

This unusual behavior abnormaility is reported by Capt. William N. New, of the Navy Medical Corps and Dr. Walter R. Nickel, of San Diego in studying reports on several hundred cases of baldness, including 22 at the San Diego Naval Hospital. Their conclusions are reported in California Medicine, publication of the California Medical Assn.

The neurotically produced bald spots can fool and dismay a doctor who may be looking for some more conventional cause of the loss of hair, the investigators said.

The hair-pulling child operates when no one is watching him. One of the things to look for is a thumb-sucking youngster in the family. Thumb sucking and hair pulling often go together, they said. A man with a little bare spot in his mustache should be suspected of the disorder, they reported.

Not much can be done to remedy the conventional type of male baldness, the physicians reported. However, they cited one study which showed 63 per cent of 55 people with patchy bald spots were neurotic and in need of mental treatment. Another 23 per cent had experienced mental shock of some kind. The other 14 per cent showed no sign of mental abnormality.

By, for, and about WOMEN

Those Nights BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Hostesses during pre-Christmas entertaining don't have to have a special costume . . . but it adds to a festive mood. Whether you're holding open house, entertaining a few friends informally, or trimming the Christmas tree with the family, you can add a special something to the occasion with your "At Home" clothes. Be they trousers and blouse or full-length gown, they are glamorous to see.

Red and green poinsettia with sprigs of holly forms a lovely door arrangement. But even lovelier is Mrs. Garland Shell at 1400 Speed Drive, in her red taffeta great coat with narrow vertical stripping.

Brilliant Christmas green with shades of brown and the unusual train effect at the back create this pure silk kalumau hostess gown. This is a choice of Mrs. John H. Birdsong Jr., while entertaining at a Yule party in her home at 1305 Spencer.

Comfortable and cozy to wear while wrapping packages, says Mrs. Wayne Woods at 1004 Speed Drive, is this ensemble. The blouse is of lovely shades of green blue and turquoise and black. The tapered trousers are of black velveteen.

Monroe Morning World

December 14, 1958

Salley Greer Is Married To James Collins

Colorful chrysanthemums with rich autumn leaves was the background setting in the First Baptist Church of Oak Grove recently when Miss Salley Sue Greer was united in marriage to James L. Collins.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aubry Greer and the groom is the son of Mrs. Annie Collins of Delhi.

The Reverend J. D. Cheatham, pastor of Oak Grove Baptist Church officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Louise Butler gave a prelude of organ music while Mrs. Doris Buckley accompanied her on the piano.

Mrs. Charles Pollard sang, "I Love Thee Dear," and "The Wedding Prayer." Jane Greer and Grey Biggs were candle lighters. Maid of honor was Miss Dorothy Costello and the bridesmaid was Miss Carol Ann Thomas. They wore identical dresses of gold satin, with fitted bodice and full skirts with matching slippers. They carried fan shaped bouquets of autumn chrysanthemums with satin streamers.

BRIDE

The bride looked lovely in white embroidered organza over white taffeta, with a fitted bodice, full flowing skirt. Her veil of illusion was elbow length. Her headdress was white satin trimmed with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white stephanotis with a gold throated orchid in the center.

Mother of the bride, Mrs. Greer, wore a turquoise blue model with accessories of light blue with a white mum corsage.

Mrs. Collins, mother of the groom wore a blue suit with beige accessories and a matching white mum corsage. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Aubry Greer. Mrs. Jack Sanders registered the guests in the guest book. Ushers for the occasion were Russ Greer, brother of the bride, James Crook, and Raymond Russell.

After the ceremony a reception was held in the social room of the church. The table was overlaid with a white satin cloth with an arrangement of bronze chrysanthemums as a central decor. Punch and wedding cake was served by Mrs. Patricia Nell, and Mrs. Mable Dickerson.

The bidding:

The bidding shown in the diagram today is very interesting and shows each side going to the limit of its resources. East, recognizing that he had enormous trick taking power after his partner's double, refused to give up the fight. He realized there was a fair chance to make 11 tricks with the best suit as trumps. Rather than pick the suit himself he forced partner to do so by making the abnormal bid of four no trump. For the benefit of the naive perhaps it should be pointed out that this bid should not be construed as Blackwood. It is a method of forcing partner to name a suit at the level of five.

The five club contract was defeated 200 points, which was a bargain price to pay in exchange for a vulnerable game in spades. Actually this was a bit of a disappointment to East. Partner's double, while it is not subject to criticism, was from East's standpoin' not of the best. Note that had West had the king of diamonds instead of the king of spades the hand would have been spread for 11 tricks.

At the other table of the team of four match in which this hand was played East refused to take action over the four spade bid and South was permitted to play the contract. On the surface it appears that the hand must be set a trick, but by careful play declarer brought home the contract.

Three rounds of hearts were led, declarer ruffing the third. The ace of spades revealed the bad news, after which declarer cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed the jack. Now, if West held exactly two diamonds the hand could be made, so declarer cashed the ace and king of that suit and gave West the lead with a trump. Since he had no diamond to return he was obliged to lead a club or a heart, which enabled declarer to discard the losing diamond from dummy and ruff in the closed hand.

Party Honors Cheryl Gray

The refreshment table was covered with a pink and white striped cloth and centered with a three tiered birthday cake iced in white and decorated with pink confection roses, tiny blue flowers and green leaves. Pink and blue crepe paper streamers were combined to form hanging scallops around the table with pink and blue balloons grouped between each scallop. Plates of party mints and nuts were at either end of the table.

Mrs. Gray assisted by Mrs. R. B. Hurley served cake and cold drinks to the following young people who enjoyed the evening's entertainment: Billy Troha, Phillip Curtis, Libby Whitfield, Jeanne Dishongh, Sheila Kelly, Heidi Ann Heidelberg, Bonnie McCandlish, Sam Bradley, Ralph Cutler, Michael Mitchell, Joe Gilley, Butch Trapp, Glen Ezell, Carol Coulter, Frances O'Neal, Stevie Heidelberg, Johnna DeVanie, Jack Washburne, Jr., Ted Gilley, Beverly Sanford, Suzanne Barrios, Donnie Magee, Jr., Ezell and Linda Gray.

Note that had West had the king of diamonds instead of the king of spades the hand would have been spread for 11 tricks.

At the other table of the team of four match in which this hand was played East refused to take action over the four spade bid and South was permitted to play the contract. On the surface it appears that the hand must be set a trick, but by careful play declarer brought home the contract.

Three rounds of hearts were led, declarer ruffing the third. The ace of spades revealed the bad news, after which declarer cashed the ace of clubs and ruffed the jack. Now, if West held exactly two diamonds the hand could be made, so declarer cashed the ace and king of that suit and gave West the lead with a trump. Since he had no diamond to return he was obliged to lead a club or a heart, which enabled declarer to discard the losing diamond from dummy and ruff in the closed hand.

Party Honors Cheryl Gray

The refreshment table was covered with a pink and white striped cloth and centered with a three tiered birthday cake iced in white and decorated with pink confection roses, tiny blue flowers and green leaves. Pink and blue crepe paper streamers were combined to form hanging scallops around the table with pink and blue balloons grouped between each scallop. Plates of party mints and nuts were at either end of the table.

Mrs. Gray assisted by Mrs. R. B. Hurley served cake and cold drinks to the following young people who enjoyed the evening's entertainment: Billy Troha, Phillip Curtis, Libby Whitfield, Jeanne Dishongh, Sheila Kelly, Heidi Ann Heidelberg, Bonnie McCandlish, Sam Bradley, Ralph Cutler, Michael Mitchell, Joe Gilley, Butch Trapp, Glen Ezell, Carol Coulter, Frances O'Neal, Stevie Heidelberg, Johnna DeVanie, Jack Washburne, Jr., Ted Gilley, Beverly Sanford, Suzanne Barrios, Donnie Magee, Jr., Ezell and Linda Gray.

Model Building

Today's model toys are a far cry from the days when children easily assembled simple cars, wagons or planes.

The model kits on the market for Christmas '58, are created to develop ingenuity and dexterity, and make available everything from authentic miniatures of antique cars to an exact reproduction of an army "box car" plane complete with combat team.

The famous Harley-Davidson motorcycle is recreated in a model kit designed from official blueprints, accurately detailed and scaled to 9 inches in length.

The world's first experimental helicopter-plane, the McDonnel XV-1 is also available in authentic miniature and comes with three life-like figures.

Pre-Christmas Party Held At Dr. Irving Home

One of the loveliest pre-Christmas parties of the season was that in the home of Dr. and Mrs Irving Wolff at 1514 Park Avenue.

In the living room was the decor of orchid and gold. Orchid Fujii mums in a bronze container were placed on a console table. Above this was a large mirror outlined with golf leaves.

Pink carnations interspersed by greenery and placed in a silver epergne, were used effectively on the service table. To either side was silver candelabra holding burning pink tapers. The buffet was graced with a cut glass punch bowl filled with green grapes.

Alternating at the silver coffee service were Mrs. Charles Wilds and Mrs. Roy Kelly.

Mrs. Wolff was lovely for the occasion in a black dress accented by a white lace collar.

Calling between the appointed hours of six and eight o'clock in the evening were eighty guests.

Modern Games

It was once a standing family joke that Junior's model trains were really purchased for Dad! Today, with Christmas, '58 upon us, it becomes more and more apparent that the latest children's games are really designed for family fun!

The trend toward flexible rules makes it easier than ever for different age groups to participate on equal terms.

"Name that Tune," a form of musical bingo is the first game to base the play on a phonograph record. Ten can play, and probably will.

Continuing in popularity is "Rack-O," a numbered card game played with racks. "Go To The Head Of The Class," a takeoff on T.V. quiz shows, comes in a new edition that caters to the knowledge of three different age levels.

To paraphase the poet, here we are knee-deep in December, with parties marking every day of this gayest of seasons.'Tis the best month of the year for a dedicated party-goer. There are dances, open houses, luncheons, dinners, coffees — all sorts of excuses for new dresses.

Last weekend the emphasis was on the dance. Several galas were on the schedule last Friday night. . . . the Jan Garber dance at Bayou DeSiard country club; the Cosmopolitan club party on the Frances roof; and the Beaus and Belles fun club dance at the Highland Park Country club.

Preceding the Cosmopolitan dance, several informal open houses were held for members and out of town guests. One of these was hosted by the FRED PLITTS and the BARNEY PATES at the Plitt home. A Christmas motif was carried out in the decorations, done in shades of green and white and gold. Dibble was wearing a beige lace, while Jane chose black velvet. Twelve couples attended the party, including the JOHN WHIPPLES of Homer and the GERALD BRYANTS of Vidalis.

Later, at the dance, we were busy admiring the holiday dresses worn by the ladies. Saw PEGGY CROSLOW in a beige bodice embroidered in tangerine, worn with a tangerine chiffon skirt.... and AMALIE GAINES in a strapless, balloon-skirted model printed in shades of blue... SARA MAYO wore silver shoes with her red embroidered nylon net ....White lace with a skirt made entirely of ruffles was most becoming to MARY ELIZABETH WEBSTER . .. Pink satin shoes exactly matched DARLENE LINER's pink brocado ....WAENA MAYO's persimmon colored taffeta was made with a halter neckline. The long waistline was accented with a bow on the side ......EVELYN ETHRIDGE's black wool jersey featured a satin facing around the hem of the harem skirt .... JEANETTE ACKEL wore a champagne brocade made with a dropped waist and bustle effect above the full skirt ......Apricot satin made the beautiful dress worn by VIRGINIA CROW. It featured a back panel falling in pleats from the shoulder, caught in with a bow of the material just below the knees.

At the Bayou DeSiard country club, we also saw some lovely outfits. SCOTTY CARBONE was in white chiffon and her luscious mink stole ......Red was a favorite color. LOUISE SEYMOUR, JANET STRAUSS, MARTHA GRANT, and FRANCES HUEY were among those in the Christmas shade ...... VICKY HILL was also in red, worn with white satin shoes sprinkled with varicolored brilliants ....BILLIE ROOT looked lovely in bright blue, with long white gloves. With his dinner jacket, her husband, "OLE BERT", was wearing a handsome ruffled formal shirt ....SALLIE OLIVER wore a high - waisted black trapeze .... LOUISE KLAM was in silver grey brocade ....All the ladies were oohing and ahhing over DOT ROREX's stockings with clocks .. .the clocks were black roses on four inch stems .... LEIGH BROWN chose champagne lace over taffeta.

At the door, the young people were given a card as a means of finding their partner for the first game, and a small gold safety pin which was the equipment for an all-evening game. Anyone saying the world "I" was obliged to hand over his pin, and the one with the most pins at the end of the evening won a prize. BARBARA JACKSON was the lucky winner ....The refreshment table was centered with a white Christmas tree hung with tiny red reindeer. Punch was served at each end of the table, and sandwiches and assorted cookies passed at intermission.

Among the gaily dressed young ladies we say ANN CASEY in a full skirted dress of turquoise lace over satin, with a satin cowl over the shoulders ...... PENNY NICHOLS wore pink net with a matching stole ... .Yellow net was most becoming to GRETCHEN LA FRANCE ....GERRY FRAZIER chose strapless white net with lace and ruffled skirt ....JAN EVANS was wearing her Christmas mouton over bright green taffeta . . . . . .SUZANNE MOSELEY was in pale green net with a ruffled skirt ..... Geranium was the lovely color of PAULA NEAL's lace over taffeta, very full-skirted, with a big taffeta bow in back.

Out of town visitors here last weekend were the LLOYD MUNSONS of Donaldsonville, who were guests of the DIEH LMAN BERNHARDTS. Several parties honored the Munsins, including a small buffet supper at the Bernhardts Friday ...... Saturday morning MILDRED CONGER entertained with a brunch for seven guests in her home. Pink blush camellias in a pink Swedish glass swan centered the table. The meal began with brandied broiled grapefruit and included friend chicken with grits, apple rings, and hot biscuits ... Saturday evening the PAUL OZMENTS, the JOHN FRETWELLS, and the SHERROD M'LEANS were hosts at a barbecue at the Ozment home. Scene of the party was the guest house with its cheery open fire. Barbecued supper was served to twenty-four guests.

Travelling is just as much fun — maybe more —in winter as in summer. RUBY WARNER left Wednesday for three weeks in Europe. She flew to New York (brave girl, in this weather), and sailed on the S.S. Constitution. Return trip will be by air, after the holidays abroad.

MRS. ALFRED G. BAUER, the former Leila Dean Frazier, is here visiting her mother, MARIE FRAZIER, in West Monroe. With her are her two children, PEGGY and JOHN ... GLADYS MUURPHY honored Leila Dean with an informal conversational hour on Friday afternoon. Rosey cranberry punch and party goodies were served. Fifteen old friends enjoyed the oppirtunity for a good visit with the honoree. . . Leila Dean will be home until Wednesday. The Bauers are taking Marie home with them for Christmas in Canton, Ohio.

A lovely pre - Christmas party was hosted last night by the TOBY TROWBRIDGES and the A. T. VAN VECKHOVENS at the Penn Hotel. When they greeted their guests in the Green Room, Ann was wearing a blue silk chiffon, and Elizabeth, a silver brocade sheath with matching shoes . . . Gold and white decorations were used exclusively. On the columns in the center of the room were swags of gold balls and white leaves. The table was covered with a gold lame cloth, centered with white carnations and gold balls in a gold compote .... Brightest spot on the menu was the flaming coffee brulot. Turkey, ham, and smoked oysters were passed to the guests.

Unusually clever cards invited friends to open house at the home of the J. ARTHUR SMITHS, JR., last night. On the front of the invitation was a picture of a gay Santa saying "Got the Christmas Spirit," and inside, "Come have some!" . . . Setting the mood was the beautiful gold tree on the front door. Sydnie was wearing an intricately tucked textured black crepe. A pleated panel fell in folds from the waist to the hemline . . . The living room was done in gold and white. On one side table was an arrangement of pineapple and nuts, sprayed gold, and on another table, a gold candle and wreath. Sprayed magnolia foliage and tapers were used on the table in the dining area . . . On the table in the den was a small Christmas tree decorated with miniature baubles. The hanging basket on the wall held pyracantha. Over a hundred guests called during the evening.

The dinner party is another favorite method of entertaining during the season. MARILYN and BOB CLAY invited members of their Friday night dancing class to a Christmas buffet. The group had their regular lesson, with Marilyn serving late supper afterwards . . . Fruit and Christmas balls were used with a gold candle in the arrangement on the serving table. Chicken in wine sauce was served in patty shells, along with asparagus and pimiento. Salads were cranberry ice molded into Christmas trees, and dessert was pecan pie.

On Tuesday the JACK TOM JACKSONS invited a small group of friends to a seated dinner. The hostess used fruit and greenery with red candles on the living porch. All silver was used in the dining room, with the table centered with a big pineapple made of silver balls. Turkey and dressing with all the trimmings were served. For dessert, guests were treated to angel food cake sliced in layers and filled with peppermint.

A congenial group of friends drove to Bosco Thursday night to have dinner with the T. A. CALLOWAYS. Greeting the visitors as they turned into the yard was a life - size figure of Santa Claus in the floodlit picture window. Inside, red and gold candles and berries were used with magnolia foliage throughout the house. A red reindeer and gold leaves made the centerpiece for the dining table. Steak with green rice, and chocolate angel pie for dessert were served to twelve guests.

The home of the ED HAYWARDS, JR., was the scene of seasonal activity last week end, with a party for the children on Saturday, and for the grown-ups on Sunday evening . . . December 6 is the traditional date in Germany for Santa Claus to visit the children and check on their behavior so that he may tell the Christ Child who has been good. Thirty - five little guests met at the Haywards to sing carols and await Santa's arrival. After the jolly saint's visit, punch and cookies were served.

Sunday evening forty adults were invited to open house. Annelies was wearing a most becoming green velveteen dress. Seasonal greenery was used in the decorations. The table was a perfect picture, covered with a red cloth and centered with candles and holly. At one end egg nog was served from a milk glass punch bowl. A hot red German punch (Annelies says that the literal translation of the name is "glow wine") was served at the other end of the table. Other goodies included lebkuchen, rum cakes, pate de foie gras, cheese straws, and stollen.

RETT PORTER marked his eleventh birthday with a skating party Wednesday afternoon. The group played the Stop - the - Music game, with LINDA MASSEY and TOMMY ERNST winning the prizes. Doughnuts and soft drinks were served to the thirty-two children attending, and chocolate Santa Clauses given as favors.

A supper party at Bayou DeSiard Country Club celebrated NANCY GILLILAND's eleventh birthday last week. Nancy was wearing a beige taffeta, brocaded in pink and turquoise, trimmed with black velvet bows . . . The guests put on their own style show, with a commentator to describe their party frocks as each one modeled. Hamburgers and French fries, birthday cake and ice cream were served to thirty little friends.

Here is "Christmas Everywhere" by Phillips Brooks:

Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!
Christmas in lands of the fir-tree and pine,
Christmas in lands of the palm-tree and vine,
Christmas where snow peaks stand solemn and white,
Christmas where cornfields stand sunny and bright.
Christmas where children are hopeful and gay,
Christmas where old men are patient and gray.
Christmas where peace, like a dove in his flight
Broods o'er brave men in the thick of the fight;
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!
For the Christ-child who comes is the Master of all;
No palace too great, no cottage too small.

Miss Jones Is Complimented At Tea-Shower

A lovely tea was given recently in honor of Miss Peggy Ann Jones prior to her marriage in the home of Mrs. Frances Turner, in Linville.

The honoree greeted her guests in the foyer with her hostesses, Mrs. Sidney Cooper, Mrs. Max Parker, and Mrs. Percy Turner.

She chose for this occasion an Empire-sheath of royal blue jersey trimmed with satine of the same shade. A single white Camellia formed her corsage.

Mrs. Gordy Jones, mother of the bride - elect, was dressed in black persey with accessories of white.

Mrs. Adele Brown, mother of the groom-elect, was wearing an aqua blue velvet sheath with slippers to match.

At the left of the living room entrance an arrangement of pink carnations was placed on a mohogany console. The bride's book was placed here, and Miss Ann Love invited the guests to register.

The Tea-table was covered with a cloth of Italian cut-work over pink. An altar of pink carnations and fern formed the centerpiece. In front of this stood a pretty bride - doll. White satin ribbon flanked by pink carnations and fern formed a pathway to the end of the table where silver wedding bells fell in a cluster from a bow of white satin.

Mrs. Surville Cooper, dressed in a blue jersey sheath model, presided at the tea-table.

Lovely gifts were on display in an adjoining room. There to greet the many guests who called were Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Brown.

Among the gaily dressed young ladies we say ANN CASEY in a full skirted dress of turquoise lace over satin, with a satin cowl over the shoulders . . . . . . PENNY NICHOLS wore pink net with a matching stole . . . Yellow net was most becoming to GRETCHEN LA FRANCE . . . GERRY FRAZIER chose strapless white net with lace and ruffled skirt . . . . JAN EVANS was wearing her Christmas mouton over bright green taffeta . . . . . SUZANNE MOSELEY was in pale green net with a ruffled skirt . . . . . Geranium was the lovely color of PAULA NEAL's lace over taffeta, very full-skirted, with a big taffeta bow in back.

Out of town visitors here last weekend were the LLOYD MUNSONS of Donaldsonville, who were guests of the DIEH LMAN BERNHARDTS. Several parties honored the Munsins, including a small buffet supper at the Bernhardts Friday . . . . . . Saturday morning MILDRED CONGER entertained with a brunch for seven guests in her home. Pink blush camellias in a pink Swedish glass swan centered the table. The meal began with brandied broiled grapefruit and included friend chicken with grits, apple rings, and hot biscuits . . . Saturday evening the PAUL OZMENTS, the JOHN FRETWELLS, and the SHERROD M'LEANS were hosts at a barbecue at the Ozment home. Scene of the party was the guest house with its cheery open fire. Barbecued supper was served to twenty-four guests.

Travelling is just as much fun — maybe more —in winter as in summer. RUBY WARNER left Wednesday for three weeks in Europe. She flew to New York (brave girl, in this weather), and sailed on the S.S. Constitution. Return trip will be by air, after the holidays abroad.

MRS. ALFRED G. BAUER, the former Leila Dean Frazier, is here visiting her mother, MARIE FRAZIER, in West Monroe. With her are her two children, PEGGY and JOHN ... GLADYS MUURPHY honored Leila Dean with an informal conversational hour on Friday afternoon. Rosey cranberry punch and party goodies were served. Fifteen old friends enjoyed the oppirtunity for a good visit with the honoree. . . Leila Dean will be home until Wednesday. The Bauers are taking Marie home with them for Christmas in Canton, Ohio.

A lovely pre - Christmas party was hosted last night by the TOBY TROWBRIDGES and the A. T. VAN VECKHOVENS at the Penn Hotel. When they greeted their guests in the Green Room, Ann was wearing a blue silk chiffon, and Elizabeth, a silver brocade sheath with matching shoes . . . Gold and white decorations were used exclusively. On the columns in the center of the room were swags of gold balls and white leaves. The table was covered with a gold lame cloth, centered with white carnations and gold balls in a gold compote . . . Brightest spot on the menu was the flaming coffee brulot. Turkey, ham, and smoked oysters were passed to the guests.

Unusually clever cards invited friends to open house at the home of the J. ARTHUR SMITHS, JR., last night. On the front of the invitation was a picture of a gay Santa saying "Got the Christmas Spirit," and inside, "Come have some!" . . . Setting the mood was the beautiful gold tree on the front door. Sydnie was wearing an intricately tucked textured black crepe. A pleated panel fell in folds from the waist to the hemline . . . The living room was done in gold and white. On one side table was an arrangement of pineapple and nuts, sprayed gold, and on another table, a gold candle and wreath. Sprayed magnolia foliage and tapers were used on the table in the dining area . . . On the table in the den was a small Christmas tree decorated with miniature baubles. The hanging basket on the wall held pyracantha. Over a hundred guests called during the evening.

The dinner party is another favorite method of entertaining during the season. MARILYN and BOB CLAY invited members of their Friday night dancing class to a Christmas buffet. The group had their regular lesson, with Marilyn serving late supper afterwards . . . Fruit and Christmas balls were used with a gold candle in the arrangement on the serving table. Chicken in wine sauce was served in patty shells, along with asparagus and pimiento. Salads were cranberry ice molded into Christmas trees, and dessert was pecan pie.

On Tuesday the JACK TOM JACKSONS invited a small group of friends to a seated dinner. The hostess used fruit and greenery with red candles on the living porch. All silver was used in the dining room, with the table centered with a big pineapple made of silver balls. Turkey and dressing with all the trimmings were served. For dessert, guests were treated to angel food cake sliced in layers and filled with peppermint.

A congenial group of friends drove to Bosco Thursday night to have dinner with the T. A. CALLOWAYS. Greeting the visitors as they turned into the yard was a life - size figure of Santa Claus in the floodlit picture window. Inside, red and gold candles and berries were used with magnolia foliage throughout the house. A red reindeer and gold leaves made the centerpiece for the dining table. Steak with green rice, and chocolate angel pie for dessert were served to twelve guests.

The home of the ED HAYWARDS, JR., was the scene of seasonal activity last week end, with a party for the children on Saturday, and for the grown-ups on Sunday evening . . . December 6 is the traditional date in Germany for Santa Claus to visit the children and check on their behavior so that he may tell the Christ Child who has been good. Thirty - five little guests met at the Haywards to sing carols and await Santa's arrival. After the jolly saint's visit, punch and cookies were served.

Sunday evening forty adults were invited to open house. Annelies was wearing a most becoming green velveteen dress. Seasonal greenery was used in the decorations. The table was a perfect picture, covered with a red cloth and centered with candles and holly. At one end egg nog was served from a milk glass punch bowl. A hot red German punch (Annelies says that the literal translation of the name is "glow wine") was served at the other end of the table. Other goodies included lebkuchen, rum cakes, pate de foie gras, cheese straws, and stollen.

RETT PORTER marked his eleventh birthday with a skating party Wednesday afternoon. The group played the Stop - the - Music game, with LINDA MASSEY and TOMMY ERNST winning the prizes. Doughnuts and soft drinks were served to the thirty-two children attending, and chocolate Santa Clauses given as favors.

A supper party at Bayou DeSiard Country Club celebrated NANCY GILLILAND's eleventh birthday last week. Nancy was wearing a beige taffeta, brocaded in pink and turquoise, trimmed with black velvet bows . . . The guests put on their own style show, with a commentator to describe their party frocks as each one modeled. Hamburgers and French fries, birthday cake and ice cream were served to thirty little friends.

Here is "Christmas Everywhere" by Phillips Brooks:

Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!
Christmas in lands of the fir-tree and pine,
Christmas in lands of the palmtree and vine,
Christmas where snow peaks stand solemn and white,
Christmas where cornfields stand sunny and bright.
Christmas where children are hopeful and gay,
Christmas where old men are patient and gray,
Christmas where peace, like a dove in his flight
Broods o'er brave men in the thick of the fight;
Everywhere, everywhere, Christmas tonight!
For the Christ-child who comes is the Master of all;
No palace too great, no cottage too small.

Miss Jones Is Complimented At Tea-Shower

A lovely tea was given recently in honor of Miss Peggy Ann Jones prior to her marriage in the home of Mrs. Frances Turner, in Linville.

The honoree greeted her guests in the foyer with her hostesses, Mrs. Sidney Cooper, Mrs. Max Parker, and Mrs. Percy Turner.

She chose for this occasion an Empire-sheath of royal blue jersey trimmed with satine of the same shade. A single white Camellia formed her corsage.

Mrs. Gordy Jones, mother of the bride - elect, was dressed in black persey with accessories of white.

Mrs. Adele Brown, mother of the groom-elect, was wearing an aqua blue velvet sheath with slippers to match.

At the left of the living room entrance an arrangement of pink carnations was placed on a mohogany console. The bride's book was placed here, and Miss Ann Love invited the guests to register.

The Tea-table was covered with a cloth of Italian cut-work over pink. An altar of pink carnations and fern formed the centerpiece. In front of this stood a pretty bride - doll. White satin ribbon flanked by pink carnations and fern formed a pathway to the end of the table where silver wedding bells fell in a cluster from a bow of white satin.

Mrs. Surville Cooper, dressed in a blue jersey sheath model, presided at the tea-table.

Lovely gifts were on display in an adjoining room. There to greet the many guests who called were Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Brown.

Highland School Presents Xmas Pantomine

In rapt silence, an audience of two hundred persons watched a Christmas pantomine presented Wednesday night by the advanced students of Highland Elementary School, under the direction of Mrs. H. B. McClendon, school principal, in an unusual contribution which made "dad's night" an occasion to be remembered.

A best loved and perhaps most familiar of all stories was narrated by Diane Murray and included a cast of fifteen, who were: The Virgin Mary, Pat Spillers; Joseph, Chip Thompson; the angel Anita Roberson; taxpayers, Jeanette Bush, Ronald Brown, Standley Chapman; shepherds, Gervaise Andre, Bill DeLoach, Reggie Freeman, Jimmy Nelson and Dennis Terry; wisemen, Jerry Anderson, Marvin Green, and Mike Schoonover; King Herod, Donald Neese.

The P-TA meeting was opened by Mrs. A. R. Nix, president, who extended a welcome to members and visitors. She introduced Dr. Hugh E. Bradshaw of Monroe who offered prayer.

Mrs. J. W. Roberson, P-TA program chairman, expressed her committee's appreciation to Mrs. McClendon, the sixth grade students, and the chorus for taking charge of the program so ably.

Reports were given by various committee chairmen, each stating that gratifying progress is being made in the respective fields.

Mrs. Julius Cathey, legislation chairman, told of a central committee P-TA meeting held at Baton Rouge to which was invited heads of industrial plants in that city.

Room count was won by Mrs. Ballard's six grade.

Refreshments were served to the P-TA members and visitors after adjournment, to give each person an opportunity to meet with the teachers and discuss problems relative to the students, should any so desire.

Highland School Presents Xmas Pantomine

In rapt silence, an audience of two hundred persons watched a Christmas pantomine presented Wednesday night by the advanced students of Highland Elementary School, under the direction of Mrs. H. B. McClendon, school principal, in an unusual contribution which made "dad's night" an occasion to be remembered.

A best loved and perhaps most familiar of all stories was narrated by Diane Murray and included a cast of fifteen, who were: The virgin Mary, Pat Spillers; Joseph, Chip Thompson; the angel Anita Roberson; taxpayers, Jeanette Bush, Ronald Brown, Standley Chapman; shepherds, Gervaise Andre, Bill DeLoach, Reggie Freeman, Jimmy Nelson and Dennis Terry; wisemen, Jerry Anderson, Marvin Green, and Mike Schoonover; King Herod, Donald Neese.

The P-TA meeting was opened by Mrs. A. R. Nix, president, who extended a welcome to members and visitors. She introduced Dr. Hugh E. Bradshaw of Monroe who offered prayer.

Mrs. J. W. Roberson, P-TA program chairman, expressed her committee's appreciation to Mrs. McClendon, the sixth grade students, and the chorus for taking charge of the program so ably.

Reports were given by various committee chairmen, each stating that gratifying progress is being made in the respective fields.

Mrs. Julius Cathey, legislation chairman, told of a central committee P-TA meeting held at Baton Rouge to which was invited heads of industrial plants in that city.

Room count was won by Mrs. Ballard's six grade.

Refreshments were served to the P-TA members and visitors after adjournment, to give each person an opportunity to meet with the teachers and discuss problems relative to the students, should any so desire.

MRS. TED LAMPRICH, JR.

Miss Bettye Jo Nolan And Ted Lamprich, Jr. Exchange Marriage Vows

The First Baptist Church of Farmerville was the scene of the beautiful wedding on Friday, at six o'clock in the evening, uniting in marriage Miss Bettye Jo Nolan and Ted Lamprich, Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Troy Nolan of Farmerville and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Lamprich, also of Farmerville.

The Rev. L. B. Hall performed the double ring ceremony before baskets of pink blossoms and green fernery and pink mums, flanked by tall burning pink tapers. Huge silver wedding bells were formed in the background.

Mrs. Lonnie Black, Jr, was the soloist who sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer." She was accompanied by Miss Jean Ludwig at the organ.

THE BRIDE

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a lovely gown of bridal satin and French imported chantilly type lace. Satin overlaid with lace formed the bodice, which featured a scalloped neckline edged with seed pearls and long lace sleeves which came to a point over the hand. The bouffant skirt, which came to a point at the waistline, was also of satin overlaid with lace. Her fingertip veil was of nylon tulle, attached to a headpiece of tulle and illusion with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white carnatons with lace and seed pearls, and was centered by a purple orchid.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Bonnie Nolan served her sister as maid of honor. Her dress was of white - rose taffeta with scooped neckline and brief sleeves. Her headdress was also of rose taffeta. She wore pink gloves and matching satin bridesmaid slippers.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Bill Lapervic and Miss Jean Lamprich. They were in dresses identical to that one which was worn by the maid of honor. They carried bouquets of pink Peter John mums which were tied with green satin ribbons.

The flower girls were Miss Pam Nolan and Miss Roselyn Smith cousins of the bride. They wore pink taffeta dresses trimmed with lace, which featured a bouffant skirt tied in back by a large bow. Their headdresses were of pink taffeta. They wore white gloves and carried baskets of rose petals decorated with pink lace and ribbons.

Lighting the candles were Miss June Nolan and Miss Faye Ford, cousins of the bride. They were dressed identical to the maid of honor and the bridesmaids.

Mr. Bill Lamprich served his brother as best man. Ushers were Mr. Max Williams and Mr. Jeff Lee.

The bride's mother chose to wear a beige crepe dress, complimented by beige and black accessories. At her shoulder was a corsage of yellow roses.

RECEPTION

The bride's table was covered with a pink cloth, and in the center was an arrangement of pink mums. On one end stood a crystal punch service and crystal trays which held individual cakes. At the opposite end was a beautiful three - tiered wedding cake.

Assisting in the serving were Miss Christine Holloway, Miss Gay Mitchell, Miss Linda Black, and Miss Brenda Anderson.

All - Purpose Coat Is Good On A Cruise

By BETH BLAIR

The holiday cruise season is getting underway and last summer's wardrobe is getting a new appraisal. Take play clothes and casual clothes for general daytime wear if you're off on a boat or plane to sunny areas. Add some new things, however, from the new resort clothes now in the stores. A reader writes —

Dear Miss Blair:

I am going on a Caribbean cruise just after Christmas and would like to know if a long black velvet evening coat would be good on board ship and evenings spent ashore. I do not have a fur stole but do own a beautiful white and silver knit stole that could be worn for evenings.

I feel the long black velvet evening coat would not be a good choice for the cruise. First of all, a shorter length coat would be more manageable for trips ashore. The knit stole might be a wiser choice but I would suggest some sort of a coat to wear for evening and any cool weather during daytime as well. This might be a lightweight wool, a brocade type or perhaps a plain or printed raincoat to wear over everything. Jackets and sweaters are useful also on a cruise.

Dear Miss Blair:

I have a black knit chemise dress which I should like to remodel. What could I bind the armholes with if I remove the sleeves?

Before you remove the sleeves from your knit dress, stitch around the armhole of the dress — not the sleeve. Use a loose stitch that will not tighten the size of the armhole and run it for two or three rows. Bind armhole with a bias tape or soft braid. Grosgrain ribbon would be good, also. If you change the dress neckline outline it with the same binding.

THE HOME SHIFT

Holiday Look For Christmas

By MILDRED SWIFT

With Christmas just ten days away, we're beginning to give our homes that holiday look. I have some ideas — some old, some new to pass on to you.

Somebody said save all broken Christmas balls. Crush them and keep in a jar. They make gorgeous "glitter." Just spray marine glue on the article to be "glittered," then sprinkle on your glitter.

LIVE MATERIAL

Yew or pine used as Christmas green will hold up better than most any other. These greens (and any other Christmas greens) have a sweet tooth. Place the greens in a gallon of cold water that has had a cup of sugar or molasses added. Let stand outside for a few days. If there's no rain, sprinkle the branches daily You'll be surprised how much longer the greens will remain fresh and green.

Do the Christmas tree the same way. Cut a diagonal slice off the bottom of the trunk. Place the tree in the sweetened water and leave outside a few days.

MORE CHRISTMAS

For the framework for wreaths, use privet hedge canes with the leaves stripped. Take a very long cane and wrap it round and round. This holds greens well for a wreath or swag.

You can make a lovely swag for your front door using a dust pan for foundation, the handle down. Water can be put in the pan and the greens kept fresh for a longer period of time. Paint the pan and if you wish, tie a big bow on the handle. The greens can be Burford holly with its gorgeous red berries.

SKELETONIZING

I've had requests to repeat the method for skeletonizing magnolia leaves. First, select well matured, well shaped leaves, but not old tough ones. Matured leaves of current seasons growth are best.

Now, put one third can of lye and one third cup of soap in three quarts of water. (Soap, not detergent). Bring to a boil and drop leaves in solution. Boil 15 minutes and let stand for 30 minutes in the solution.

Remove leaves. Rinse well. Remove green leaf tissue with a soft brush. Bleach in clorox until they are light as you want them.

Now you're ready to dye. Use an all purpose rit or dye, following the instr[illegible]ns in the package and ad[illegible] tablespoon of vinegar to s[illegible] color. You can dye these any [illegible]de to blend with the color scheme of your room. They are dainty and lovely in arrangements and can be carried over year after year.

You'll tear at least a third of these leaves in the process, so don't be disappointed.

MORE

Hardware cloth is just right for weaving greens in and out for swags for doors, above mantels or any place you want to put them. Be careful, hardware cloth can scratch furniture or woodwork.

This hardware cloth is purchased by the foot from hardware stores. You will have to cut this into the sizes and shapes you want with heavy wire shears.

Maybe you'll get around to a little gardening during the holidays. One thing — you can prune your evergreens and use the prunings for the house during the holidays. While you're doing this, don't forget those new home owners who have no greens. Also remember your church may need some for activities during the Christmas season.

A word about tulips from Mrs Winona Guedry, specialist in Home gardening. She says that refrigerating tulips has no relationship to the depth of planting. The cold storage period forces dormancy necessary for long stems and better flowering.

Get your fertilizer (8-8-8 is fine) so you can start feeding your plants and trees in January and February.

After the frosts kill the pampas plants, elephant ears and banana plants, cut back the dead tops.

Start making lists of shrubs you want Santa to bring you.

Sometimes it's just impossible to get a baby - sitter and the little ones have to be carried along to do the Christmas shopping. Remember to make the shopping trip as easy on the child as possible.

Make sure he's put to bed early the night before and has a good breakfast before leaving home. Don't drag him around to any more stores than necessary. And— don't rush him. Little legs tire easily and sometimes find it difficult to keep up with adults.

If your child appears to be tiring, and gets fussy or cross, chances are he's overdoing, and just must be taken home.

Relieve actual shopping with a couple of rest stops for refreshments. Take routes through the stores that will afford views of things children will enjoy.

A final reminder — don't try to do too much in one day.

There will be lots of pressing going on as the family will change clothes often for different occasions.

Most materials, and all rayons, become shiny when ironed on the right side. This garment, of course, must be ironed on the wrong side.

Always iron the straight of the material and not on the bias. A skirt can be made to "sag" by ironing in all directions.

Your Christmas recipe books are ready. Call, write or come by and pick up your copy.

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Elizabeth McDaniel from Caldwell Parish will do "Leather Craft"; Tuesday, Lola Caldwell from Caldwell Parish will make planters: Wednesday, Glady Kulke and Christmas arrangements; Thursday and Friday, Christmas cooking with Mildred. See you next Sunday.

INDOOR GARDEN — With new planting boxes recently placed on the market, it is possible to grow parsley and start several other plants right in the kitchen this winter.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Shade Loving Plants Listed

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Requests have come to the column recently for information about plants that will grow in the shade, especially smaller plants. It is unnecessary to have bare areas under trees when so many beautiful plants will grow in such places with a minimum of preparation and feeding.

WILD FLOWERS

A number of our wild flowers — some of them evergreens — are quite drouth resistant and permannt under the trees if they are not starved to death by the removal of the leaves every year or by the competition from the tree roots. Then there are some showy plants from other parts of the world which will do equally well in such locations.

If you really want a permanent planting of shade lovers, spade over the area or use a subsoiler to thoroughly loosen the soil before any planting is done. The subsoiler can be used underneath deep rooted trees like oaks and hickories. It is not practical right underneath dogwoods. A heavy application of bone meal and cotton-seed meal will work wonders. It will feed the trees and nourish the wild flowers. Three or four inches of moist peat moss can then be worked in. Once this preparation is made and the wild flowers are set out, you can maintain both trees and wild flowers by scattering bone and cottonseed meal over the annual crop of tree leaves and letting them stay where they are. If they look too untidy, you can lightly rake off a few. The evergreen plants will soon show above the leaves in the Fall. Be sure to plant them throughout the area if you want a real evergreen ground cover.

WINTER GREENS

A walk through the woods in winter will show you at once that there are several plants that stay green in December and January. Two kinds of heart leaves (Hexastylis), about which we have written recently in the column, rattle-snake plantain, putty-root or Adam-and-Eve and spotted wintergreen or pipsissewa.

In the rich woods of some areas in the South, there are such other evergreen little plants as galax leaves and trailing arbutus and still other winter treasures How we can go on and on growing the same old trite ground covers when we have these tough little plants is hard to see. Perhaps it is because we do not realize that they can be bought by the hundreds and thousands from wild flower nurseries.

Heart leaves will increase in larger and larger round clumps. Rattle-snake plantain is really a little orchid. It will increase by running along the ground into larger and larger patches. The exquisite rosettes of mottled green and white leaves are most attractive. Putty-root or Adam-and-Eve has just a few leaves of light green. They are purple underneath. To turn one over and see the violet underside is to discover one of the secrets of the woods. In next week's column, we shall discuss some of the evergreen ferns and more shade lovers.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Center Shows Decorations

By MARY M. JARDINE

GUEST WRITER GLADYS KULCKE

The Garden Study Club of Monroe had a very pretty and most interesting exhibit of Christmas decorations in the Garden Center this week. Mrs. J. H. Scogin Jr. made a round 2 feet tall evergreen Christmas Tree trimmed with little figures of Musical Dwarfs. This tree was made of chicken wire stuffed with aphagnum moss. The moss had been soaked in water to support the small twigs of Chinese Yew that formed the tree. This Christmas tree is suitable for a childs room or the play room.

Mrs. A. M. Guerriero made a beautiful arrangement for the mantel. The arrangement was made on a piece of gilded styra foam. The Madonna was placed in a gilded niche, made of a syrup can. A tall gilded candle was placed back of the Madonna and shorter ones on either side.

A gold star stood above the niche back of the Madonna. Lightly gilded pine branches formed the background. Gilded pine cones and pine cone flowers were placed in the foreground.

Mrs. Fritz Becker glamourized the tincan in her Christmas decoration. On a tree form of gilded ply-wood she fastened gilded flowers made of tincan tops. Each flower had a center of a red wooden bean and a sprinkling of red glitter. Small gold balls and leaves were placed about on the tree. The trunk of the tree was covered with brass thumb tacks. This is a case of creating a thing of beauty out of 'nothing'.

Mrs. John P. Lewis made a door swage in pink and green colors. She wired the large green magnolia leaves to form the swage. Pink dyed static was artistically placed through the swage, which was tied with pink sequin ribbon and pink Christmas balls attached. This swage would be very pretty for the door of a pink home.

Mrs. Morris Harrison made a long-lasting Christmas Tree of cones, nuts, pods and berries. This tree was made on a pegboard form. A dozen or more different pods and cones were used in making this tree, among them were Eucalyptus pods, Lipstick pods, Hemlock cones, and Agave pods. The brown and tan coloring of the tree was high-lighted by the green Pinyon cones and white Tallow Berries. This tree was made to hang on a paneled wall.

You will be interested to know that an article by Mildred Swift appears in the November issue of Extension Service Review, published in Washington. Mildred's subject is "Spotlighting Audience Interests by Means of News Columns". An exact replica of the heading of The Home Shift, (Mildred's Sunday Column) and an identical heading of "Spotlight on Foods" (her Thursday and Friday Column) is reproduced at the beginning of the article. These columns appear in News-Star World, weekly.

Congratulations Mildred.

Winter Time To Rid Lawn Of Weak Trees

Trees that need removal for any reason should go now. It's better for safety and for the family budget.

Weakened trees are a particular menace in winter, for burdens of sleet or snow may send them crashing, warns W. R. Strickland, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co. And waiting for next growing season to call in the tree doctors only complicates removal and ups the cost.

It's simple economics. One of the most costly aspects of tree removal is the care required in protecting lawns and gardens. Such protection calls for taking down trees in sections during the growing season. When the soil is hard or frozen, trees often can be taken down in larger sections. In some instances, they may even be removed in one piece.

Time, labor and effort are reduced, with accompanying savings to the home owner, when tree dormancy makes a big cut in the bulk of foliage that must be carted away. To go still further, the difficult chore of stump elimination is simplified. New types of stump eradication utilizing speedier mechanical methods can be employed at this time with less threat to lawns and flower beds.

Certain trees are more apt to be problems under unusual winter stresses. They may be weak V-forked elms likely to split and willows and soft maples notorious for their brittleness. If Dutch elm has hit any tree, all wood, including debris, should be burned.

How To Make Better Coffee

By AUDREY DAWSON

GOOD COFFEE

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology conducted research on what makes a good cup of coffee. They discovered that the quality of water is not important in brewing good coffee. Mineral impurities were added to distilled water until the taste became obvious. Then the water was used to make coffee. It tasted perfectly fine. However, coffee cannot mask the staleness of water. Freshly drawn water should always be used. Coffee should be fresh and made in a clean coffeemaker — never boiled.

PRODUCTS

To promote increased use of agricultural products, research is being made in the candy and confectionery fields. Smooth fudge, brightly colored jellies, dried fruit combinations, and chocolate coated cranberry cordials are a few of the confections being tested by the U. S. department of agriculture.

The fudge is made with a combinaton of concentrated milk products which gives it an extra creamy texture. Fruit jelly candies owe their full, rich flavor to a new research - developed process for preparing flavor essences.

GUIDE TO DIETS

Four food groups, instead of the basic seven, are now being used by many educators. Group one includes 2 servings of milk, cheese or ice cream for adults or children. Group two 4 servings of fruits and vegetables, including citrus fruit and dark green or deep yellow vegetables. Group three 2 servings of meat, fish, eggs, dry beans or peas and nuts. Group four 4 servings of enriched restored or whole grain breads and cereals. This includes any product of rice, oats, corn or wheat.

25-YEAR CLUB

Your president, Mrs. T. T. Jones, wants you to please remember the annual luncheon — December 18 at 7:30 p.m. at Walts Restaurant in West Monroe.

CANDLE WAX

Candle wax that may drip on table linens during holidays can be removed with very little trouble. The tools you will need are a spatula, two white blotters, your iron, and a mild solvent. Two useful solvents are denatured alcohol or carbon tetrachloride. You can buy these two solvents at most drug stores, but remember they should be kept out of reach of the children. Now to remove the wax — place the stain between white blotters, cleaning tissues or paper toweling and press with a warm iron, changing the blotters as they become soiled. Then sponge with the solvent. If your table linen is washable, wash in gentle suds.

WAX ON RUGS

If Christmas candle wax drips on your rug, here is how you can remove the wax spot and stain. Scrape off all the wax with a dull knife or spatula. Then with a clean, soft white cloth, sponge off the remaining wax with carbon tetrachloride.

HELP DRY CLEANER

Garments made of wool blended with precious fur fibers deserve the best care, so don't handicap your cleaner by removing the label. He needs to know what the construction is in order to give a fabric the proper treatment.

From some metallic fabrics it is difficult, if not impossible, to remove stains because the reagents required to remove them may also cause a color change or dulling of the yarn.

Each Christmas the fancy wrappings outdo those of previous years. There's nothin wrong with that so long as we don't forget that the greatest gift of all was wrapped in simple swaddling clothes.

Divide Modern Floor Layouts With Planters

Interior decorators say that planters are one of the most effective ways to divide modern open floor plans. Although planters have been used for many years, they are especially effective in modern layouts because they outline definite areas but do not eradicate the visual spaciousness of an open plan.

A well - designed planter can set off a dining area from the main living room. Privacy can be added to a living room if a planter is used to divide the children's area from the space reserved for Mom and Dad.

A home handyman can build a sturdy and attractive planter by facing a simple lumber framework with plastic - finished covering in a handsome wood-grain. Predecorated hardboard is highly resistant to moisture and hard wear, and it can be cleaned with a damp - wiping.

Weakened trees are a particular menace in winter, for burdens of sleet or snow may send them crashing, warns W. R. Strickland, field representative of the Davey Tree Expert Co. And waiting for next growing season to call in the tree doctors only complicates removal and ups the cost.

It's simple economics. One of the most costly aspects of tree removal is the care required in protecting lawns and gardens. Such protection calls for taking down trees in sections during the growing season. When the soil is hard or frozen, trees often can be taken down in larger sections. In some instances, they may even be removed in one piece.

Time, labor and effort are reduced, with accompanying savings to the home owner, when tree dormancy makes a big cut in the bulk of foliage that must be carted away. To go further, the difficult chore of stump elimination is simplified. New types of stump eradication utilizing speedier mechanical methods can be employed at this time with less threat to lawns and flower beds.

Certain trees are more apt to be problems under unusual winter stresses. They may be weak V-forked elms likely to split and willows and soft maples notorious for their brittleness. If Dutch elm has hit any tree, all wood, including debris, should be burned.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Center Shows Decorations

By MARY M. JARDINE
GUEST WRITER GLADYS KULCKE

The Garden Study Club of Monroe had a very pretty and most interesting exhibit of Christmas decorations in the Garden Center this week. Mrs. J. H. Scogin Jr. made a round 2 feet tall evergreen Christmas Tree trimmed with little figures of Musical Dwarfs. This tree was made of chicken wire stuffed with aphagnum moss. The moss had been soaked in water to support the small twigs of Chinese Yew that formed the tree. This Christmas tree is suitable for a childs room or the play room.

Mrs. A. M. Guerriero made a beautiful arrangement for the mantel. The arrangement was made on a piece of gilded styra foam. The Madonna was placed in a gilded niche, made of a syrup can. A tall gilded candle was placed back of the Madonna and shorter ones on either side.

A gold star stood above the niche back of the Madonna. Lightly gilded pine branches formed the background. Gilded pine cones and pine cone flowers were placed in the foreground.

Mrs. Fritz Becker glamourized the tincan in her Christmas decoration. On a tree form of gilded ply-wood she fastened gilded flowers made of tincan tops. Each flower had a center of a red wooden bean and a sprinkling of red glitter. Small gold balls and leaves were placed about on the tree. The trunk of the tree was covered with brass thumb tacks. This is a case of creating a thing of beauty out of 'nothing'.

Mrs. John P. Lewis made a door swage in pink and green colors. She wired the large green magnolia leaves to form the swage. Pink dyed static was artistically placed through the swage, which was tied with pink sequin ribbon and pink Christmas balls attached. This swage would be very pretty for the door of a pink home.

Mrs. Morris Harrison made a long-lasting Christmas Tree of cones, nuts, pods and berries. This tree was made on a pegboard form. A dozen or more different pods and cones were used in making this tree, among them were Eucalyptus pods, Lipstick pods, Hemlock cones, and Agave pods. The brown and tan coloring of the tree was high-lighted by the green Pinyon cones and white Tallow Berries. This tree was made to hang on a paneled wall.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Shade Loving Plants Listed

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Requests have come to the column recently for information about plants that will grow in the shade, especially smaller plants. It is unnecessary to have bare areas under trees when so many beautiful plants will grow in such places with a minimum of preparation and feeding.

WILD FLOWERS

A number of our wild flowers — some of them evergreens — are quite drouth resistant and permanent under the trees if they are not starved to death by the removal of the leaves every year or by the competition from the tree roots. Then there are some showy plants from other parts of the world which will do equally well in such locations.

If you really want a permanent planting of shade lovers, spade over the area or use a subsoiler to thoroughly loosen the soil before any planting is done. The subsoiler can be used underneath deep rooted trees like oaks and hickories. It is not practical right underneath dogwoods. A heavy application of bone meal and cotton-seed meal will work wonders. It will feed the trees and nourish the wild flowers. Three or four inches of moist peat moss can then be worked in. Once this preparation is made and the wild flowers are set out, you can maintain both trees and wild flowers by scattering bone and cottonseed meal over the annual crop of tree leaves and letting them stay where they are. If they look too untidy, you can lightly rake off a few. The evergreen plants will soon show above the leaves in the Fall. Be sure to plant them throughout the area if you want a real evergreen ground cover.

WINTER GREENS

A walk through the woods in winter will show you at once that there are several plants that stay green in December and January. Two kinds of heart leaves (Hexastylis), about which we have written recently in the column, rattle-snake plantain, putty-root or Adam-and-Eve and spotted wintergreen or pipsissewa.

In the rich woods of some areas in the South, there are such other evergreen little plants as galax leaves and trailing arbutus and still other winter treasures. How we can go on and on growing the same old trite ground covers when we have these tough little plants is hard to see. Perhaps it is because we do not realize that they can be bought by the hundreds and thousands from wild flower nurseries.

Heart leaves will increase in larger and larger round clumps. Rattle-snake plantain is really a little orchid. It will increase by running along the ground into larger and larger patches. The exquisite rosettes of mottled green and white leaves are most attractive. Putty-root or Adam-and-Eve has just a few leaves of light green. They are purple underneath. To turn one over and see the violet underside is to discover one of the secrets of the woods. In next week's column, we shall discuss some of the evergreen ferns and more shade lovers.

How To Make Better Coffee

By AUDREY DAWSON

GOOD COFFEE

The Massachusetts Institute of Technology conducted research on what makes a good cup of coffee. They discovered that the quality of water is not important in brewing good coffee. Mineral impurities were added to distilled water until the taste became obvious. Then the water was used to make coffee. It tasted perfectly fine. However, coffee cannot mask the staleness of water. Freshly drawn water should always be used. Coffee should be fresh and made in a clean coffee-maker — never boiled.

PRODUCTS

To promote increased use of agricultural products, research is being made in the candy and confectionery fields. Smooth fudge, brightly colored jellies, dried fruit combinations, and chocolate coated cranberry cordials are a few of the confections being tested by the U. S. department of agriculture.

The fudge is made with a combinaton of concentrated milk products which gives it an extra creamy texture. Fruit jelly candies owe their full, rich flavor to a new research - developed process for preparing flavor essences.

GUIDE TO DIETS

Group two 4 servings of fruits and vegetables, including citrus fruit and dark green or deep yellow vegetables. Group three 2 servings of meat, fish, eggs, dry beans or peas and nuts. Group four 4 servings of enriched restored or whole grain breads and cereals. This includes any product of rice, oats, corn or wheat.

CANDLE WAX

Candle wax that may drip on table linens during holidays can be removed with very little trouble. The tools you will need are a spatula, two white blotters, your iron, and a mild solvent. Two useful solvents are denatured alcohol or carbon tetrachloride. You can buy these two solvents at most drug stores, but remember they should be kept out of reach of the children. Now to remove the wax — place the stain between white blotters, cleaning tissues or paper toweling and press with a warm iron, changing the blotters as they become soiled. Then sponge with the solvent. If your table linen is washable, wash in gentle suds.

WAX ON RUGS

If Christmas candle wax drips on your rug, here is how you can remove the wax spot and stain. Scrape off all the wax with a dull knife or spatula. Then with a clean, soft white cloth, sponge off the remaining wax with carbon tetrachloride.

Divide Modern Floor Layouts With Planters

Interior decorators say that planters are one of the most effective ways to divide modern open floor plans. Although planters have been used for many years, they are especially effective in modern layouts because they outline definite areas but do not eradicate the visual spaciousness of an open plan.

A well - designed planter can set off a dining area from the main living room. Privacy can be added to a living room if a planter is used to divide the children's area from the space reserved for Mom and Dad.

A home handyman can build a sturdy and attractive planter by facing a simple lumber framework with plastic - finished covering in a handsome wood-grain. Predecorated hardboard is highly resistant to moisture and hard wear, and it can be cleaned with a damp - wiping.

WORK BEGINS ON SWISS - STYLE BIRD HOUSE

Man's Project--Houses For Non-Paying Guest

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

He came from Bastrop and drove the streetcars in 'small-town' Monroe of 1910 . . . fought as a volunteer fireman when the "wildcat whistle" screamed an alert . . . and now builds houses after 41 years as a streetcar motorman and bus drived.

The houses are special, and extremely well - built. The tenants are small and can pay no rent.

But the reward is great for someone who cannot stay idle — and the birds who inhabit his attractive homes have no complaints.

M. Z. Worley, 69, began the unusual hobby three years ago.

The results can be seen by motorists who drive past his residence, 206 Texas Avenue. A small "Alpine village" of Swiss - type birdhouses surrounds the masterpiece — a three - story plantation - style Colonial home, complete with white pillars and shuttered windows.

"I sell the houses, for just about what it costs to construct them. If I asked the high prices that I've seen in catalogues, I might be tempted to really go into business,' Worley quipped.

How did he get into birdhouse construction?

BEGAN

"Three years ago, I bought a workshop from my brother. It had a few saws and some equipment, so I got a birdhouse pattern, made some improvements on it, and started building — just piddling around," he revealed.

The birds may not be interested, but anyone with a knowledge of house construction would be surprised at just how well the houses are built.

The two - story homes are partitioned off, with one section containing a perch for the papa bird, and one for the mama — an unusual feature in birdhouses.

Pine wood, generally white pine, is used for the walls, floor, roof and chimney. Then, regular roofing material is nailed onto the roof.

Worley marks off the wood, cuts it, uses a jigsaw, nails it up — and the house is ready for its two coats of paint.

Two round holes on the front of the houses open into the partitioned - off interior. The closed chimney jutting up from the roof has a hook to attach to the tree branch.

A little brown and white wren house has only one opening — "that's the way most birdhouses are built," pointed out Worley.

THREE-STORY

The three - story plantation home, which takes a week to complete, has a panel back which is removable. "The house can also be used for a doll's house," the builder explained.

Four columns support the roof, and an open door leads into the partitioned - off interior. The rooms on each floor are whitewashed, and windows with shutters on each side let in light. Worley made the pattern for this colonial home himself, has sold four of the structures.

"Out - of - town drivers usually stop and buy most of the birdhouses. One lady said that she had bought several birdhouses from a place in Texas but they didn't hold up. I've had a birdhouse hanging outside for three years and you can see how well it has stood the weather," brought out Mrs. E. E. Sission, who was visiting at the Worley home.

"And you should hear the kids going past on schoolbuses in the springtime — they really have fun shouting 'Look at the birdhouses" chuckled Mrs. Worley.

Wrens, martens and sparrows build nests in the houses — sometimes before the homes are sold. They also make use of a birdbath Worley constructed in his back yard. Fresh water constantly flows through the birdbath.

Worley also has several wishing - well planters, covered with shells, hanging next to the birdhouses.

"I use the money from selling the houses to buy more shells — and fish bait," confided Worley, who is an avid fisherman and hunter.

ANGLER

In favor of the 'pole and line' type fishing, he proudly announced that he had just just caught a five - pound buffalo fish, using red worms and a cane pole.

"I was down on the Ouachita River bank, with a pole and line, when the Buffalo caught on the hook — and Buffalo don't often bite worms," he added.

"Shot a deer last week, up above Bastrop in Morehouse parish, but it ran for about a mile with the dogs after it. When I caught up, someone else had taken it off. There were so many people up there, the only way you could tell you weren't on a city street was that there weren't any houses," Worley joked.

Describing himself as "an old country boy who came to town and rode the streetcar," he recalled that Monroe had two paved streets —DeSiard and South Grand— in 1910.

"The rest of the streets were gravel and dirt. There were very few autos, and the streetcar went right down the middle of the street," continued the ex-motorman.

"Each streetcar had a motorman, and a conductor who took the fares. The people rode the car regularly knew how to swing right off the end without the car stopping," he mentioned.

Both ends of the streetcars were open, and young ladies in ankle - length dresses were as agile as the gentlemen in "swinging off, right in front of their house."

"When they were ready to get off, they'd look back at the conductor, he'd ring a bell, the motorman slowed the streetcar, and they stepped off," recalled Worley.

"During the horse and buggy days, the streetcar boys were volunteer firemen, and a certain number of blasts from the Fire Department's wildcat whistle indicated which part of the town had a fire," he noted.

Before World War I and the days of the streamlined fire department, the volunteers aided the regular firemen.

"I remember about 1911 or '12, one of the worst fires we fought," Worley stated. "The fire started in the morning, on the east end of Monroe. It was a windy day . . . and the flames really went to town. Fifty - town homes burned down . . . but no one was hurt."

A man who has "seen hard times and good times," Worley said wistfully that "sometimes I'd rather still be working."

"I sure do miss a lot of my passengers," he explained. When you see between 150 and 750 persons a day, for 41 years, you miss them when you stop work right off."

MISSILE - SPACE RACE

Russia And U.S. 'Neck And Neck'

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government experts believe as 1958 ends that the U. S. and Russia are running neck-and-neck for the space leadership of the world.

The Soviets can claim only one clearly superior accomplishment for the year — launching of the 3,000-pound Sputnik III last May 15.

Against this, America can claim a variety of achievements, including the outstanding scientific result of 1958—discovery by the Explorer satellites of the deadly "Van Allen belt" of radiation at altitudes of more than 600 miles above the earth.

The situation is far different from what it was at the beginning of the year when the Soviets, with the successful Sputniks held undisputed leadership in the race for space, the U. S. just having blown up a Vanguard rocket in its first attempt at hurling a "moon" into orbit.

Today, America's many-pronged programs for launching satellites in the coming months from both the east and west coasts and for continuing lunar probes in which the Soviets are not yet participating, gives strong evidence that the U. S. may move definitely ahead in 1958.

Sputnik III's great weight, nearly 100 times that of the heaviest of America's orbiting moons, would seem to mean Soviet leadership in the race to the next big prestige prize —placing a manned vehicle in orbit around the earth.

Manned orbital flight is now expected within two to three years. Numerous calculations agree that this achievement, including the man's safe return to earth, will require almost the same "payload" weight as Russia's third Sputnik.

To the rocket experts in the Pentagon and the new U. S. civilian space agency, however, the weight of Sputnik III merely means that the Soviets have used their intercontinental ballistic missile for satellite launchings, while America has not yet reached that state.

The Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency now assures that America's Atlas ICBM will be used as a satellite booster during 1959, and that its use eventually will make possible orbiting payloads of as much as 4,000 pounds.

That is enough to allow for a "man in space" capsule, which is already being designed and could fly in 1950 or 1961. The capsule and man are expected to weigh about 2,500 pounds. Additional payload is needed for "Safety" rockets, which would be set off to free the capsule and permit the man to descend by parachute if the launcher blew up.

Another field in which America may or may not be ahead of the Russians is the launching of military reconnaissance satellites. Experimental models of these may go up as often as once a month in 1959 from Vandenberg Air Force Base, on part of what was formerly Camp Cooke in California.

The reconnaissance satellites will sail over the North and South Poles. With the earth turning under them, they will bring every part of the globe under surveillance every 24 hours. Launchings, started with the 1,500-mile Thor as a booster and with a payload of about 300 pounds, are to work up to the use of the 5,500 - mile Atlas.

The starting gun for American space successes was fired on the night of Jan. 31, 1958, at Cape Canaveral, Fla., when the Army rocketed into orbit Explorer I, the first U. S. satellite.

A second army attempt failed on March 5, but on March 17, Vanguard I, a small test sphere, found an orbit. Explorer III on March 26 and Explorer IV in July brought the total of successful U. S. moon launchings to four.

Between Explorer III and IV, a major mystery developed, because the satellites were reporting expected amounts of radiation below altitudes of 600 to 700 miles, but none above that level.

Dr. James A. Van Allen of the University of Iowa concluded that the radiation at higher levels was so intense that the instruments were "overwhelmed" and could not report.

That has now been confirmed by Explorer IV. Van Allen believes the radiation may go as high as 1,000 "roentgens" per hour at 8,000 miles, which would mean that an unprotected person would suffer a lethal dose in a half hour.

The air force's three lunar probe launchings took the spotlight on Aug. 17, Oct. 11 and Nov. 7. Although none was successful in reaching the moon, the flight of Pioneer II to an altitude of 79,212 miles held the attention of the world for more than 30 hours.

If space historians of the future are looking for significant dates in 1958, they may pick March 27, when President Eisenhower ordered the lunar probes and also issued a historic statement assuring the public that "this is not science fiction."

The historians might also pick Aug. 15, when Roy Johnson, ARPA director, ordered development of a rocket "cluster" with a combined thrust of 1,500,000 pounds. If the Atlas can project two tons into orbit, the cluster should be able to orbit 12 to 15 tons.

Another significant date may turn out to have been Oct. 1, when the Civilian National Aeronautics and Space Agency headed by Dr. T. Keith Glennan took over much of the space program, including a 50 per cent voice in the "man in space" project.

Actually, America's lunar rockets have the power to send objects of almost equal weight to the planets Mars and Venus, 50 million to 100 million miles away. But manned flight to the moon will prove much easier because of the shorter distance, shorter time and lesser amount of navigation required.

President Eisenhower's March 27 statement, outlining the nation's space plans, included "human flight in orbit" under the heading "later." "Human lunar exploration and return" came under the heading "still later," while "human planetary exploration" was labeled "much later still."

Missing Dog Turns Up To Receive Medal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Big Ben the huge dog who earned a medal for his participation in medical research but turned up missing when he was to get it, is back home.

The 68-pound canine was to receive the citation a week ago from the National Society for Medical Research. When Big Ben couldn't be found, the society planned to honor him posthumously or in absentia as research dog hero of 1958.

But Big Ben was found Friday about eight blocks from his New Orleans home.

A group of children found the animal wandering about a week ago. They thought he was homeless and adopted him.

But when they learned his owners were looking for him, they agreed to return him.

The medical group is honoring the three-year-old mongrel for his career in research at Tulane University's medical school. Before he was put out for retirement last summer, Big Ben was the subject of cancer studies on the brain, limbs and organs and was a blood donor for other animals.

Advances In Coping With Disease Of Heart Described By Specialist, Doctor Paul White

By PAUL D. WHITE, M. D.

By The Associated Press

Three years ago I prepared an article summarizing some current medical experiences and thoughts concerning heart disease and its relationships with especial reference to heart attacks caused by coronary thrombosis.

Much blood has flowed through innumerable coronary arteries since then and it has been suggested, again by The Associated Press, that I write about the current status of some of our newer knowledge and experiences about coronary thrombosis, and certain other interesting aspects of heart disease and indeed of medicine as a whole.

First, I shall list some of the more important and interesting advances in the general field of cardiovascular disease during recent years.

Perhaps the most significant advance is the extension of our knowledge concerning the preponderant role that disease of the arteries plays in the malfunction of our vital organs.

EARLY 20s

In the early 1920's, we began to realize that much of the crippling of the heart muscle was not due to a disease of the heart muscle itself, but rather to the cutting off of much of the blood supply due to thrombosos — clot formation—superimposed on atherosclerosis — the thickening of the inner wall — of the vital coronary arteries of the heart. A scar or infarct is often left in the heart muscle tissue. This concept was pioneered by James Herrick of Chicago.

Then 35 years ago Rene Leriche of France established the fact that much disability of leg muscles and often the symptom of pain in the buttocks, thighs and calves were caused by similar involvement of the lower end of the great artery, the aorta, and its two main divisions. In 1940, surgery to correct this condition began, but it took some time before this was adequately recognized by us in the United States.

Another important discovery was announced in 1934 by Harry Goldblatt of Cleveland, who said that obstruction to blood flow through one of the renal arteries might so affect the kidney that high blood pressure would result. This was received with considerable skepticism except for isoated cases, but very recently careful X-ray studies by injection of radio - opaque dyes have revealed an increasing number of instances of high blood pressure due to this cause.

Most recently of all has come the discovery that at least some of the acquired vascular disease of the brain —such as "little strokes" and even major apoplexies — may be caused by reduction of blood supply to the brain by atherosclerotic disease with or without thrombosis of vital arteries to or in the brain, especially the internal carotid, the vertebral and the basilar arteries. Even the blood supply to the gastrointestinal tract can be similarly impeded.

This new knowledge has brought two important developments.

The first is marvelous new surgery directed either to removing the obstructing material from inside the arteries —a technique called endarterjectomy — or to replace the most seriously affected sections of the arteries by grafts of normal artery segments or even fabrics.

This has already been done quite extensively for obstruction in the aorta and major leg arteries, and has begun in repairing circulation to the brain, the kidneys and the heart muscle itself. Such pioneering surgery, much of it led by Dr. Michael DeBakey of Houston, is already yielding promising results.

The second important development is the recognition that whatever methods we eventually discover to protect against coronary heart disease are also likely to protect against some of the blood vessel disabilities of the brain, legs and kidneys.

Another brilliant advance is surgical correction of congenital and acquired defects of the heart. They have developed techniques — not always as yet completely perfected — of opening the heart for direct vision by cooling the body, by the use of heart-lung machines, and by applying potassium to produce temporary standstill of the heart.

NOTE

Finally I should note the progress in our use of well-regulated anticoagulant drugs to prevent thrombosis or blood clotting when it threatens, or when some clotting already has occurred in patients with arterial disease of the heart, brain or legs. New anti-coagulants have been tried. And other drugs have been introduced against circulatory diseases, including antibiotics for bacterial infections of the heart, and drugs to reduce blood pressure or to remove excess water from the body.

And now for more detail about acute coronary thrombosis — which continues to hold the limelight.

It is happening every day to hundreds of citizens, mostly to middle - aged men.

The realistic fact is that 54 per cent of all Americans who died of diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

In this cardiovascular group, 51 per cent of deaths were due to coronary arteriosclerosis with or without such complications as high blood pressure; 21 per cent to vascular disease of the brain; 10 per cent to effects of high blood pressure on the heart without major arteriosclerosis; 4 per cent to diseases of other arteries of the body, and 14 per cent to heart diseases including rheumatic fever, syphilitic disease, congenital defects, or other causes.

A generation ago, rheumatic heart disease held first place as a cause of death from heart conditions.

Now there has been a great change, attributable largely to three factors:

The control of infections and much of their toll in rheumatic heart disease and cardiovascular syphilis or other infections.

"Improvement" in living conditions with attendant prosperity, which appears to bring hazards as well as advantages.

LONGEVITY

Increasing longevity of our population, with the seemingly inevitable arteriosclerosis of older ages.

In thinking of longevity, one might add that sudden, painless deaths occuring during sleep at the age of 100 years or more after a healthy, active, happy and useful lifetime might be a desirable goal for 100 per cent of the world's population. That is, everyone would die of cardiovascular disease, with no more cancer, fatal infections, accidents, or war.

Right now, as the U. S. Public Health Service mortality figures quoted above indicate, we find coronary heart disease ranks an overwhelming first, hypertensive cardiovascular disease second, and rheumatic heart disease a relatively low third, with cardiovascular syphilis so uncommon as hardly to rank at all.

Coronary heart disease may reveal its presence in several ways. There is coronary thrombosis — the familiar "heart attack" which is a common but not the only kind of heart attack. There is angina pectoris, a particular kind of discomfort in the chest, not consisting of sharp pain, and caused by inadequate blood supply to the heart. There is a rare type of fainting due to the blocking of the electrical impulse through the heart. And sometimes there are symptomless but characteristic abnormalities of the electrocardiogram.

We can now diagnose coronary heart disease infinitely more easily than we did a generation ago, partly because we have it on our minds and ask the right questions, and partly because we have better technical methods for its detection.

What about the outlook, then and now?

A generation ago, the disease was regarded with great apprehension. Once the diagnosis had been made, it was thought that death was imminent and unpredictable, and that three years of life was the most one might expect after an attack of coronary thrombosis.

SPECIALIZE

But then some of us who began to specialize early in the study and practice of cardiology watched many of our coronary cases recover, and not only live for years but carry on active lives if their heart scars were not very large and if they were free of symptoms.

Intrigued by this, my associate Dr. Edward Bland and I began a long follow - up of my first 200 cases of coronary thrombosis clearly diagnosed in the 1920s. Our first report was in 1931, our second after 10 years in 1941, and finally we published in 1956 our third and almost complete report on these patients.

Although many of them were seen only during their convalescense and not during the first few hours or day or two — except in a few instances — they were all severely hit and at that time didn't receive the much improved treatment available today.

Briefly, they were finally divisible into four groups, each approximately 25 per cent of the total.

One quarter died of the acute illness. Another quarter was hard hit with large scars and congestion, though often amenable to good treatment. A third quarter suffered from angina pectoris afterward, sometimes succumbing within a few years but not infrequently recovering and living in good health for a long time.

Finally, the fourth group of 25 per cent was free of symptoms and had little or no cardiac enlargement ofter recovery from the acute attack. It was this last group who greatly surprised us and quite radically changed our views concerning the prognosis.

Over four fifths (83 per cent) of that group survived five years and over half (56 per cent) survived 10 years, and most were able to resume an active life and carry on in their previous jobs, some of which were difficult.

President Eisenhower belongs in this fourth and most favorable group.

FACTORS

Other factors enter into the forecasts of longevity of heart patients, or patients with most diseases. To mention three:

1. Familial longevity, or heredity.

2. Treatments which are available. And it is quite certain that the prognosis or chances of life after coronary thrombosis will improve steadily as a result of better treatment and protective measures.

3. Cooperation of the patient and his or her family. This is much better than it was years ago.

One of the most important changes in treatment of heart disease in recent years has been psychological. More and more the physician is taking both the patient and his relatives into his confidence, talking to them, telling them the full story.

This has helped enormously, dispelling fear of the unknown and securing the full cooperaton of everyone concerned during the long period of illness and convalescence.

In physical treatment, hospitalization is usually although not always best during the acute stages of a heart attack. The immediate relief of pain and complications — such as state of collapse, congestion or irregular heart beat —is quite standardized now. As a rule, although not invariably, some anticoagulant is given for at least a few weeks, sometimes for a few months, and in special cases for years, particularly if there has been more than one attack of thrombosis, whether in the coronary or other arteries.

Whether to continue with an anticoagulant indefinitely is still a matter of opinion. Statistics favor doing so, but only if the drug is given carefully with frequent blood testing and observation of the patient.

It still is true that the majority of persons who have had coronary or other arterial thrombosis can expect further trouble of this sort.

But a good many years may intervene. And artery trouble is also likely to be the fate of many of us who are healthy today and who escape such other hazards as cancer and accidents.

WORK BEGINS ON SWISS - STYLE BIRD HOUSE

Man's Project--Houses For Non-Paying Guest

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
Staff Writer

He came from Bastrop and drove the streetcars in 'small-town' Monroe of 1910 . . . fought as a volunteer fireman when the "wildcat whistle" screamed an alert . . . and now builds houses after 41 years as a streetcar motorman and bus drived.

The houses are special, and extremely well - built. The tenants are small and can pay no rent.

But the reward is great for someone who cannot stay idle — and the birds who inhabit his attractive homes have no complaints.

M. Z. Worley, 69, began the unusual hobby three years ago.

The results can be seen by motorists who drive past his residence, 206 Texas Avenue. A small "Alpine village" of Swiss - type birdhouses surrounds the masterpiece — a three - story plantation - style Colonial home, complete with white pillars and shuttered windows.

"I sell the houses, for just about what it costs to construct them. If I asked the high prices that I've seen in catalogues, I might be tempted to really go into business,' Worley quipped.

How did he get into birdhouse construction?

BEGAN

"Three years ago, I bought a workshop from my brother. It had a few saws and some equipment, so I got a birdhouse pattern, made some improvements on it, and started building — just piddling around," he revealed.

The birds may not be interested, but anyone with a knowledge of house construction would be surprised at just how well the houses are built.

The two - story homes are partitioned off, with one section containing a perch for the papa bird, and one for the mama — an unusual feature in birdhouses.

Pine wood, generally white pine, is used for the walls, floor, roof and chimney. Then, regular roofing material is nailed onto the roof.

Worley marks off the wood, cuts it, uses a jigsaw, nails it up — and the house is ready for its two coats of paint.

"The color of the trim depends on the color of the house," pointed out the artistic carpenter.

Two round holes on the front of the houses open into the partitioned - off interior. The closed chimney jutting up from the roof has a hook to attach to the tree branch.

A little brown and white wren house has only one opening — "that's the way most birdhouses are built," pointed out Worley.

THREE-STORY

The three - story plantation home, which takes a week to complete, has a panel back which is removable. "The house can also be used for a doll's house," the builder explained.

Four columns support the roof, and an open door leads into the partitioned - off interior. The rooms on each floor are whitewashed, and windows with shutters on each side let in light. Worley made the pattern for this colonial home himself, has sold four of the structures.

"Out - of - town drivers usually stop and buy most of the birdhouses. One lady said that she had bought several birdhouses from a place in Texas but they didn't hold up. I've had a birdhouse hanging outside for three years and you can see how well it has stood the weather," brought out Mrs. E. E. Sission, who was visiting at the Worley home.

"And you should hear the kids going past on schoolbuses in the springtime — they really have fun shouting 'Look at the birdhouses" chuckled Mrs. Worley.

Wrens, martens and sparrows build nests in the houses — sometimes before the homes are sold. They also make use of a birdbath Worley constructed in his back yard. Fresh water constantly flows through the birdbath.

Worley also has several wishing - well planters, covered with shells, hanging next to the birdhouses.

"I use the money from selling the houses to buy more shells — and fish bait," confided Worley, who is an avid fisherman and hunter.

ANGLER

In favor of the 'pole and line' type fishing, he proudly announced that he had just just caught a five - pound buffalo fish, using red worms and a cane pole.

"I was down on the Ouachita River bank, with a pole and line, when the Buffalo caught on the hook — and Buffalo don't often bite worms," he added.

"Shot a deer last week, up above Bastrop in Morehouse parish, but it ran for about a mile with the dogs after it. When I caught up, someone else had taken it off. There were so many people up there, the only way you could tell you weren't on a city street was that there weren't any houses," Worley joked.

Describing himself as "an old country boy who came to town and rode the streetcar," he recalled that Monroe had two paved streets —DeSiard and South Grand— in 1910.

"The rest of the streets were gravel and dirt. There were very few autos, and the streetcar went right down the middle of the street," continued the ex-motorman.

"Each streetcar had a motorman, and a conductor who took the fares. The people rode the car regularly knew how to swing right off the end without the car stopping," he mentioned.

Both ends of the streetcars were open, and young ladies in ankle - length dresses were as agile as the gentlemen in "swinging off, right in front of their house."

"When they were ready to get off, they'd look back at the conductor, he'd ring a bell, the motorman slowed the streetcar, and they stepped off," recalled Worley.

"During the horse and buggy days, the streetcar boys were volunteer firemen, and a certain number of blasts from the Fire Department's wildcat whistle indicated which part of the town had a fire," he noted.

Before World War I and the days of the streamlined fire department, the volunteers aided the regular firemen.

"I remember about 1911 or '12, one of the worst fires we fought," Worley stated. "The fire started in the morning, on the east end of Monroe. It was a windy day . . . and the flames really went to town. Fifty - town homes burned down . . . but no one was hurt."

A man who has "seen hard times and good times," Worley said wistfully that "sometimes I'd rather still be working."

"I sure do miss a lot of my passengers," he explained. When you see between 150 and 750 persons a day, for 41 years, you miss them when you stop work right off."

MISSILE - SPACE RACE

Russia And U.S. 'Neck And Neck'

By DARRELL GARWOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Government experts believe as 1958 ends that the U. S. and Russia are running neck-and-neck for the space leadership of the world.

The Soviets can claim only one clearly superior accomplishment for the year — launching of the 3,000-pound Sputnik III last May 15.

Against this, America can claim a variety of achievements, including the outstanding scientific result of 1958—discovery by the Explorer satellites of the deadly "Van Allen belt" of radiation at altitudes of more than 600 miles above the earth.

The situation is far different from what it was at the beginning of the year when the Soviets, with the successful Sputniks held undisputed leadership in the race for space, the U. S. just having blown up a Vanguard rocket in its first attempt at hurling a "moon" into orbit.

Today, America's many-pronged programs for launching satellites in the coming months from both the east and west coasts and for continuing lunar probes in which the Soviets are not yet participating, gives strong evidence that the U. S. may move definitely ahead in 1958.

Sputnik III's great weight, nearly 100 times that of the heaviest of America's orbiting moons, would seem to mean Soviet leadership in the race to the next big prestige prize —placing a manned vehicle in orbit around the earth.

Manned orbital flight is now expected within two to three years. Numerous calculations agree that this achievement, including the man's safe return to earth, will require almost the same "payload" weight as Russia's third Sputnik.

To the rocket experts in the Pentagon and the new U. S. civilian space agency, however, the weight of Sputnik III merely means that the Soviets have used their intercontinental ballistic missile for satellite launchings, while America has not yet reached that state.

The Pentagon's Advanced Research Projects Agency now assures that America's Atlas ICBM will be used as a satellite booster during 1959, and that its use eventually will make possible orbiting payloads of as much as 4,000 pounds.

That is enough to allow for a "man in space" capsule, which is already being designed and could fly in 1950 or 1961. The capsule and man are expected to weigh about 2,500 pounds. Additional payload is needed for "Safety" rockets, which would be set off to free the capsule and permit the man to descend by parachute if the launcher blew up.

Another field in which America may or may not be ahead of the Russians is the launching of military reconnaissance satellites. Experimental models of these may go up as often as once a month in 1959 from Vandenberg Air Force Base, on part of what was formerly Camp Cooke in California.

The reconnaissance satellites will sail over the North and South Poles. With the earth turning under them, they will bring every part of the globe under surveillance every 24 hours. Launchings, started with the 1,500-mile Thor as a booster and with a payload of about 300 pounds, are to work up to the use of the 5,500 - mile Atlas.

The starting gun for American space successes was fired on the night of Jan. 31, 1958, at Cape Canaveral, Fla., when the Army rocketed into orbit Explorer I, the first U. S. satellite.

A second army attempt failed on March 5, but on March 17, Vanguard I, a small test sphere, found an orbit. Explorer III on March 26 and Explorer IV in July brought the total of successful U. S. moon launchings to four.

Between Explorer III and IV, a major mystery developed, because the satellites were reporting expected amounts of radiation below altitudes of 600 to 700 miles, but none above that level.

Dr. James A. Van Allen of the University of Iowa concluded that the radiation at higher levels was so intense that the instruments were "overwhelmed" and could not report.

That has now been confirmed by Explorer IV. Van Allen believes the radiation may go as high as 1,000 "roentgens" per hour at 8,000 miles, which would mean that an unprotected person would suffer a lethal dose in a half hour.

The air force's three lunar probe launchings took the spotlight on Aug. 17, Oct. 11 and Nov. 7. Although none was successful in reaching the moon, the flight of Pioneer II to an altitude of 79,212 miles held the attention of the world for more than 30 hours.

If space historians of the future are looking for significant dates in 1958, they may pick March 27, when President Eisenhower ordered the lunar probes and also issued a historic statement assuring the public that "this is not science fiction."

The historians might also pick Aug. 15, when Roy Johnson, ARPA director, ordered development of a rocket "cluster" with a combined thrust of 1,500,000 pounds. If the Atlas can project two tons into orbit, the cluster should be able to orbit 12 to 15 tons.

Another significant date may turn out to have been Oct. 1, when the Civilian National Aeronautics and Space Agency headed by Dr. T. Keith Glennan took over much of the space program, including a 50 per cent voice in the "man in space" project.

Actually, America's lunar rockets have the power to send objects of almost equal weight to the planets Mars and Venus, 50 million to 100 million miles away. But manned flight to the moon will prove much easier because of the shorter distance, shorter time and lesser amount of navigation required.

President Eisenhower's March 27 statement, outlining the nation's space plans, included "human flight in orbit" under the heading "later." "Human lunar exploration and return" came under the heading "still later," while "human planetary exploration" was labeled "much later still."

3. Cooperation of the patient and his or her family. This is much better than it was years ago.

One of the most important changes in treatment of heart disease in recent years has been psychological. More and more the physician is taking both the patient and his relatives into his confidence, talking to them, telling them the full story.

This has helped enormously, dispelling fear of the unknown and securing the full cooperaton of everyone concerned during the long period of illness and convalescence.

In physical treatment, hospitalization is usually although not always best during the acute stages of a heart attack. The immediate relief of pain and complications — such as state of collapse, congestion or irregular heart beat —is quite standardized now. As a rule, although not invariably, some anticoagulant is given for at least a few weeks, sometimes for a few months, and in special cases for years, particularly if there has been more than one attack of thrombosis, whether in the coronary or other arteries.

Whether to continue with an anticoagulant indefinitely is still a matter of opinion. Statistics favor doing so, but only if the drug is given carefully with frequent blood testing and observation of the patient.

It still is true that the majority of persons who have had coronary or other arterial thrombosis can expect further trouble of this sort.

But a good many years may intervene. And artery trouble is also likely to be the fate of many of us who are healthy today and who escape such other hazards as cancer and accidents.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Books Are Very Interesting

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Although the publishing year is drawing to a close, there are a number of interesting new books added to the Library collection this week. In the field of fiction several books are worth reading. "The Visitors" by Mary McMinnies is a fascinating novel of intrigue among the foreign diplomatic circles. "The Sea is Red" by Scott O'Dell is a Civil War story with an entirely new background. It is concerned with the adventures of a trader in Port-Au-Price, Haiti and of the part he played in helping the Southern cause. "From the Terrace" is the title of the latest novel by John O'Hara and will find a host of readers among those who enjoyed, "Ten North Frederick." It is a novel of present day life among the very rich and will appeal to all of those who like stories about big business. "Anna and Her Daughters" by Dorothy M. Stevenson is another of her delightful stories of English country life.

Alfred Leo Duggan is a historical novelist of note and his latest novel "Three's Company" will not dissapoint his reading public. This is a clear-cut picture of Rome in transition from republic to Empire and should be interesting to Latin students and students of Roman history. "One Ulysses too Many" by Storm Jameson has its setting in post-war Nice and is concerned with the adventures of a group of ex-patriate Poles. Those who like Western stories will want to read R. G. Choate's "Buffalo Gold," while mystery readers will thrill to a new novel in "The Girl who Cried Wolf," by Hillary Waugh.

One of the most beautiful cookbooks that we have ever had is "A Picture Cook Book" published by Life Magazine. It is a large book, beautifully illustrated not only with pictures of food, but pictures of famous restaurants all over the world. "The Complete Book of Roses" by Rockwell and Grayson is another beautiful although practical book. Anyone interested in roses would love this book.

A very popular historical book is "War Reminiscences of John Singleton Mosby." This is the true account from which many of the episodes in the T.V. program "The Gray Ghost" are taken. In the field of architecture a most interesting as well as beautiful book is "The Public Buildings of Williamsburg" by Marcus Whiffen. "The Merrimack" by Raymond Holden is the title of the latest volume in the Rivers of America series and contributes a great deal of information about the Northeastern states through which it flows.

Biographies are always popular and we have three of special interest this week. "Hannibal" is the story of one of the bravest generals of all time and a man whose tactics are still studied by military men. This book was written by the master historian, Harold Lamb. Ezio Pinza's autobiography will be popular with all lovers of music, and especially with those who saw him in "South Pacific." One of the greatest names in modern literature is Mark Van Doren and his autobiography is certain to be well received.

Our science collection is one of the weakest spots in the library collection. We are trying to build it up, but it is a slow process, first because the books are so expensive and second because the field changes so fast. However, this week we have two new titles. One is "The Dictionary of Physics and Allied Sciences" in German and English. The other is called "Hurricane" and was written by Marjory Stobeman Douglas. It gives a thorough and scientific explanation of hurricanes, their causes, detection and how to live through one.

Two O'Casey Plays Acted In New York

NEW YORK—(UPI)—Take the case of Sean O'Casey . . .

The Irish playwright has been represented on the New York stage by two plays within a week. He is a master, a genius — they say.

One of the plays is "The Shadow of a Gunman," his first to be produced, 36 years ago. The other is "Cock-a-doodle Dandy," only nine years old. The former had been done here before by an Irish repertory company long ago; the latter had never been shown in New York.

"The Shadow of a Gunman" has most of the elements of the O'Casey that most people appreciate. It is the least of the three, but of a piece with "Juno and the Paycock" and "The Plough and the Stars," all early works in a completely realistic manner and about Ireland's "troubles" of the rebellion era.

"The Shadow of a Gunman" has been given what is, for the most part, an excellent production at the Bijou Theater by a group that comes from the Actors Studio, home of the much disputed "method" type of acting. "The method" is not obtrusive in this case.

As a play, it is "thin." It lacks a strong line of story or character interest. Yet it contains the basic O'Casey specialty of exposing in wry comedy style the essense of the Gaelic character and mores, and, personally, I can think of little else in the world that is more interesting. The production is worth seeing.

Not in apology but in explanation, I would like to insert here my belief that "Juno and the Paycock" is one of the few truly great modern plays. In this one case, at least, O'Casey was a master.

Now for the heretical part. O'Casey's works since "The Plough and the Stars" impress me individually and generally as being, in the main, boring. That, of course, includes "Cock-a-doodle Dandy," which was presented at the off-Broadway Carnegie Hall Theater.

This one, and the others from 1930 on, are of O'Casey's mystical or fantasical period. They are supposed to be laden with lyricism, deep meanings and possibly some radicalism, although the latter is of such a childish nature that a true radical must scorn it. As for the vaunted quality of their comedy, this element impresses this reviewer as being about on a par with the humor of American vaudeville and burlesque of the latter half of the 19th century.

In all fairness, I suppose it should be noted here that O'Casey is on record as regarding "Cock-a-doodle Dandy" as his favorite and best play. It is a work that extolls the joy of living, that excoriates those who would stifle it. Its particular protagonists are a couple of seriocomic Irishmen who, I think, even Harrigan and Hart of the long ago would have refused to portray on the grounds both of poor material and questionable taste.

As for its standing in the joy-versus-gloom area of the drama, it can't hold a candle to, say, William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life." And I am not exactly a Saroyanophile.

Aside from "Juno and the Paycock," I would say that O'Casey's fame eventually will rest on his truly great autobiographical volumes for all their sometimes too-precious quality and their author's too - much - awareness of having been canonized by some as the master of poetic prose.

BOOKS

Henry Knox, George Washington's General, by North Callahan (Rinehart): Not many since Washington have acknowledged the great contribution Knox made when the Colonies rebelled. Callahan goes a long way toward making up for the oversight in this well-documented tribute to a gallant patriot. As an apprentice Boston bookseller, Knox had read so much about artillery that he knew more about guns than anyone else in the stripling country. Washington, who also learned generalship from books, was not long in spotting Knox as a fighter and choosing him as perhaps his closest friend with the exception of Lafayette. Knox brought off the epic transport of 55 captured cannon from Ticonderoga over snow, ice, rivers and the Berkshires to Dorchester Heights, where they helped drive the British from Boston. Knox succeeded Washington as commander of the army and served in the first cabinet. Callahan's fine book bolsters Washington Irving's assertion that Knox "was one of those providential characters which spring up in emergencies as if formed by and for the occasion."

From the Terrace, by John O'Hara (Random House): O'Hara's most ambitious work, in which he attempts to trace the blighting effect of a father's rejection of a child. Alfred Eaton is the chief figure of this marathon-length novel. Born into a wealthy Pennsylvania family, Alfred appparently had all the advantages anybody could ask for — health, wealth, intelligence, social position. But Alfred's brother Billy was his father's favorite, and when Billy died the elder Eaton was crushed by a grief that never left him. He turned all his energies into his steel mill, ignoring his wife and children. Alfred also carried a burden of adolescent guilt in connection with the deaths of two girls he loved. These events influenced everything that happened to him later in his personal and business life. O'Hara's characters are exactly drawn with a wealth of detail —especially sexual, which probably will offend some readers. His word pictures of and commentaries on the high society and business strata in which Alfred moved are remarkably sharp.

A Yankee Jeffersonian, edited by Mary Lee Mann (Harvard University Press): Selections from the diary and letters of William Lee of Massachusetts written between 1796 and 1840. They are reverently edited and annotated by his great-granddaughter in this collection of Americanna that Allan Nevins terms in a foreword "a delightful find." Lee was a shrewd Yankee businessman who held consular rank in France for 15 years before returning to further government duty in Washington. He knew of and wrote to his wife about Napoleon Bonaparte, Talleyrand, Monroe, Madison, John Quincy Adams and his lifetime idol, Jefferson. He found a bull-baiting in France "the most incredible, ridiculous and extraordinary thing," and he was pretty shocked by the garb of the actresses in the Comedie Francaise.

New Book On Photography Rated Tops

An uncle of I. N. Phelps Stokes in Paris over a century ago met Daguerre and came back to exclaim fondly to his father about "a man there who polishes a plate of metal so that when you look at it your likeness remains on it." The father replied: "My son, if you are weak enough to believe such a thing, you ought to have sense enough not to tell it."

When Stokes told it in 1915 in his "Iconography of Manhattan Island," it was already funny. Now it is ridiculous, and the best proof of it at the moment is this far - ranging book by Pollack. We never hear any more the old argument — yes, but is it art? Indeed we find in these fascinating pages some reproductions which, like some favorite great paintings, have assumed a fixed place in our memories as if they were formative, visual, esthetic experiences. As clear in your mind's eye, as, say, a specific Rouault "King" or a Picasso cubist canvas are such masterly portraits as Nadar's Daumier, Carjat's Baudelaire and Steichen's Morgan, to mention only this one field of work.

Paris started it, whether it was Niepce or Daguerre alone or as partners. Atget followed them, there were Hill, Adamson and Julia Cameron in Britain. But the United States — New York, Chicago and many other centers — can point to a roster of splendid names whether we go back to Morse, Brady and Eakins, or note two who got their start in Paris, Man Ray and Berenice Abbott, or pick at random such names as Stieglitz, Weston, Adams, Duncan, Bourke-White.

You could like this book if you just read the text, or if you just look at the pictures; when you do both, it can't be beat.

DRAMA, FUN, MYSTERY

Cat And Dog Doings Create Excitement

By FRANCIS STILLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Doghouse Blows Up .... Silly Kitty Has Town Treed .... Canine Medical Hero Vanishes .... Parliament Ponders Pooch Problem .... Dog In Circle Gives People The Runaround.

There you have the latest headlines on cat and dog doings around the animal world.

It's just like people-news, too. Drama, excitement, fun, mystery.

First, about that exploding doghouse. It happened at Clifton N.J., at the home of Mrs. H. C. Mollen. Her dog's house in the yard suddenly blew into smithereens last Monday.

The dog was in the Mollen house. But the mysterious blast had everybody plenty excited. They scurried all around, looking for bomb fragments and suspicious characters.

They didn't find any. The state police laboratory experts on exploding doghouses, explain it this way:

When dogs sleep on straw, and they are restless sleepers, they roll and toss around and cause friction. This generates a lot of static electricity.

Then comes a little puff of wind, the wind stirs up dust and poof—goodby doghouse. Maybe doggie, too, if he's in it.

The scene now shifts to New Orleans and the sad story of Big Ben.

Big Ben was not only a big dog, weighing 68 pounds, but he was about as big a dog hero as any dog ever gets to be, no matter what size.

Big Ben was retired in the summer after a noteworthy career in research at the Tulane University Medical School. Big Ben didn't do the research. It was done on him.

The 3 - year - old mixed breed pooch was the subject of some important cancer studies concerning the brain, limbs and organs. He once had an emergency operation for a massive hemorrhage of the neck. He also was a blood donor for another animal.

After his retirement came word that Big Ben had been named research dog hero of 1958 by the National Society for Medical Research. At the year's end he was going to receive a special collar with a silver plate, appropriately inscribed.

But the honor apparently came too late for Big Ben to enjoy it. He has vanished from his new home with the Arnold York family of nearby Algiers, La.

If he isn't found, he will receive his tribute—in absentia or posthumously.

LET US now take up the case of the frigid kitty, and the warm-hearted citizens of Canton, Conn., who spent 72 hours trying to take her down.

Miss Kitty climbed to an 80-foot perch in a tree and wouldn't budge. There she sat for 72 hours.

The townfolk, perspiring freely despite the below-freezing temperature, tried to entice her down but got only stares which were colder than the weather.

Tempting tidbits hoisted near her were eyed in disdain. Efforts to dislodge her with sticks were fruitless. The fire department boys put up their longest ladders but they weren't long enough.

In desperation, it was decided the only thing to do was to drive her down the tree with a stream from a fire hose.

Just at that moment a hero appeared on the scene: Eugene Shipman, 24-year-old former tree surgeon. Nothing to it, said he.

Equipped with hooks and ropes, Shipman went up. Eight minutes later he and the cat were down.

From London comes word that delinquent dogs may get a new deal in Britain. Home Secretary Richard Butler, was asked in the House of Commons to change the law condemning to death those which do bad things.

Butler also was asked to change the law under which dog owners must pay a pound a day penalty—that means $2.80 per—if they defy the death sentence.

All this because of Lassie, a 2-year-old Alsatian. This Lassie is not the same Lassie which does only good deeds on American television.

The British Lassie likes to chase motorcycles and was sentenced to death because, apparently, the British don't like dogs to chase motorcycles.

But Ruby Bowring, 23, Lassie's owner, took her pet to a sanctuary for canines after the sentence and the police have no authority to remove the dog.

Lassie is getting along just fine there, but Miss Bowring isn't. Shes running low on cash — already owes more than $280.

That was why the member of parliament representing her district got up and asked the home secretary about changing the law.

Butler said he couldn't go against a court order. However, he indicated he would be willing to back a change in the present dog death law if it should be proposed.

At New Brunswick, N.J., there is a dog named "Tippy," "Blackie," "Brownie," "Skippy" or "Ching." Those aren't really his names because nobody knows what his real name is. People just call him what they choose.

Tippy, etc. has been camping in the middle of a busy traffic circle for six weeks, possibly because somebody abandoned him there and he's waiting for his master's return.

Tippy, etc., got pretty hungry after a while and he had a terrible time trying to cross the busy street to go find something to eat. He eventually learned to wait for a lull in the traffic, but always returned.

People tried to give him something to eat and lure him away to a new home. Tippy, etc., will have none of it.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been trying to fox him by putting out meatballs drugged so as to make him woozy and catchable. Nary a nibble so far.

Floods of calls have come in from people as a result of newspaper stories. They all think he may be their missing pooch. A woman in Vermont said she's almost sure he's her pet "Ching," lost in Washington, D. C., six weeks ago. She's coming down when she can.

Party For Horses Is Her Ambition

NEW YORK (AP)—Mary Simpson, who is known as "the Elsa Maxwell of the pet world," has an odd professional ambition. She wants to throw a beach party for horses.

"A beach is an ideal place for such a party," she explained. "Horses love the surf, but most of them rarely get to visit a beach."

Miss Simpson, an employe of the Hess Bros. department store in Allentown, Pa., is the world's only pet party consultant — at least as far as she knows.

But Mary, a college graduate who majored in Far Eastern history, doesn't think of her job as odd. She has loved animals all her life, enjoys catering to them.

"People have been throwing parties for their pets for some time," she said, "but it has been on a rather haphazard basis.

"People enjoy doing special things for their pets on special occasions — such as their birthdays. But many don't know how to make a party come off."

Miss Simpson does. If possible, she likes to go over the animal guest list in advance — just as a professional Washington social hostess might.

"Animals don't differ much from human beings at a party," she observed. "They catch the air of excitement. They have their showoffs and their wallflowers. You have to be sure the guests will get along.

"So far I haven't supervised a party where we mixed canaries, parakeets and cats and dogs. But we've had a number of cat and dog mixed parties that come off very well."

"The fact a dog chases a cat outside the home has no bearing on how they will get along at a party. After they get to know each other, they behave very well. Cats and monkeys also get along well at parties." she said.

Jealousy arises only when the guest pet of honor gets all the presents—or when two dogs want to show off at the same time.

"As at a children's party," cautioned Miss Simpson, "it is important that all the guests receive a favor. And it is better if the favors are identical. This keeps down envy."

Naturally, the pets put on their best attire for a party. Here Miss Simpson feels owners often err. They often dress their pet to please themselves rather than the animal.

"A boxer looks just right in a light green flannel car coat," she said. "But a sport jacket wouldn't do at all for a fashion-conscious poodle. He needs something simply elegant—such as a black leather collar with pearls — that doesn't detract from his own looks."

The doggy sport jackets cost a few bucks each. The pearl-trimmed collars are $29. Also available are such winter luxuries as a set of our fur-lined canine galoshes at $5.95, or imported mink jackets at $100.

Pets like to play games at parties just like people. Their favorite games, Mary said, are "bone scramble" and "hide the meatball."

What should you give a pet as a birthday party present?

"The best present for a bird is another bird," said Miss Simpson. "The best way to surprise a cat or dog is to get it another toy like the very first one it ever had. It will remember—and be pleased.

"You can also get it a copy of some object it likes around the house but has been forbidden to play with — such as a slipper, lady's hat, rubber, or braided rug. But it is essential that you first use the object yourself, so that the pet will associate it with you. Otherwise he won't care for it."

People are so interested today in seeing their pets are happy that Mary feels comfortably sure her new specialty will develop into a personal gold mine.

"After all," she pointed out, smiling, "even the supermarkets now sell more dog food than baby food."

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Books Are Very Interesting

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Although the publishing year is drawing to a close, there are a number of interesting new books added to the Library collection this week. In the field of fiction several books are worth reading. "The Visitors" by Mary McMinnies is a fascinating novel of intrigue among the foreign diplomatic circles. "The Sea is Red" by Scott O'Dell is a Civil War story with an entirely new background. It is concerned with the adventures of a trader in Port-Au-Price, Haiti and of the part he played in helping the Southern cause. "From the Terrace" is the title of the latest novel by John O'Hara and will find a host of readers among those who enjoyed, "Ten North Frederick." It is a novel of present day life among the very rich and will appeal to all of those who like stories about big business. "Anna and Her Daughters" by Dorothy M. Stevenson is another of her delightful stories of English country life.

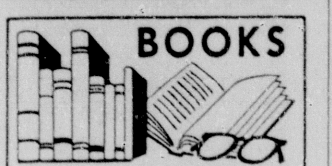
Alfred Leo Duggan is a historical novelist of note and his latest novel "Three's Company" will not dissapoint his reading public. This is a clear-cut picture of Rome in transition from republic to Empire and should be interesting to Latin students and students of Roman history. "One Ulysses too Many" by Storm Jameson has its setting in post-war Nice and is concerned with the adventures of a group of ex-patriate Poles. Those who like Western stories will want to read R. G. Choate's "Buffalo Gold," while mystery readers will thrill to a new novel in "The Girl who Cried Wolf," by Hillary Waugh.

One of the most beautiful cookbooks that we have ever had is "A Picture Cook Book" published by Life Magazine. It is a large book, beautifully illustrated not only with pictures of food, but pictures of famous restaurants all over the world. "The Complete Book of Roses" by Rockwell and Grayson is another beautiful although practical book. Anyone interested in roses would love this book.

A very popular historical book is "War Reminiscences of John Singleton Mosby." This is the true account from which many of the episodes in the T.V. program "The Gray Ghost" are taken. In the field of architecture a most interesting as well as beautiful book is "The Public Buildings of Williamsburg" by Marcus Whiffen. "The Merrimack" by Raymond Holden is the title of the latest volume in the Rivers of America series and contributes a great deal of information about the Northeastern states through which it flows.

Biographies are always popular and we have three of special interest this week. "Hannibal" is the story of one of the bravest generals of all time, and a man whose tactics are still studied by military men. This book was written by the master historian, Harold Lamb. Ezio Pinza's autobiography will be popular with all lovers of music, and especially with those who saw him in "South Pacific." One of the greatest names in modern literature is Mark Van Doren and his autobiography is certain to be well received.

Our science collection is one of the weakest spots in the library collection. We are trying to build it up, but it is a slow process, first because the books are so expensive and second because the field changes so fast. However, this week we have two new titles. One is "The Dictionary of Physics and Allied Sciences" in German and English. The other is called "Hurricane" and was written by Marjory Stobeman Douglas. It gives a thorough and scientific explanation of hurricanes, their causes, detection and how to live through one.



Henry Knox, George Washington's General, by North Callahan (Rinehart): Not many since Washington have acknowledged the great contribution Knox made when the Colonies rebelled. Callahan goes a long way toward making up for the oversight in this well-documented tribute to a gallant patriot. As an apprentice Boston bookseller, Knox had read so much about artillery that he knew more about guns than anyone else in the stripling country. Washington, who also learned generalship from books, was not long in spotting Knox as a fighter and choosing him as perhaps his closest friend with the exception of Lafayette. Knox brought off the epic transport of 55 captured cannon from Ticonderoga over snow, ice, rivers and the Berkshires to Dorchester Heights, where they helped drive the British from Boston. Knox succeeded Washington as commander of the army and served in the first cabinet. Callahan's fine book bolsters Washington Irving's assertion that Knox "was one of those providential characters which spring up in emergencies as if formed by and for the occasion."

From the Terrace, by John O'Hara (Random House): O'Hara's most ambitious work, in which he attempts to trace the blighting effect of a father's rejection of a child. Alfred Eaton is the chief figure of this marathon-length novel. Born into a wealthy Pennsylvania family, Alfred appparently had all the advantages anybody could ask for — health, wealth, intelligence, social position. But Alfred's brother Billy was his father's favorite, and when Billy died the elder Eaton was crushed by a grief that never left him. He turned all his energies into his steel mill, ignoring his wife and children. Alfred also carried a burden of adolescent guilt in connection with the deaths of two girls he loved. These events influenced everything that happened to him later in his personal and business life. O'Hara's characters are exactly drawn with a wealth of detail —especially sexual, which probably will offend some readers. His word pictures of and commentaries on the high society and business strata in which Alfred moved are remarkably sharp.

A Yankee Jeffersonian, edited by Mary Lee Mann (Harvard University Press): Selections from the diary and letters of William Lee of Massachusetts written between 1796 and 1840. They are reverently edited and annotated by his great-granddaughter in this collection of Americanna that Allan Nevins terms in a foreword "a delightful find." Lee was a shrewd Yankee businessman who held consular rank in France for 15 years before returning to further government duty in Washington. He knew of and wrote to his wife about Napoleon Bonaparte, Talleyrand, Monroe, Madison, John Quincy Adams and his lifetime idol, Jefferson. He found a bull-baiting in France "the most incredible, ridiculous and extraordinary thing," and he was pretty shocked by the garb of the actresses in the Comedie Francaise.

New Book On Photography Rated Tops

An uncle of I. N. Phelps Stokes in Paris over a century ago met Daguerre and came back to exclaim fondly to his father about "a man there who polishes a plate of metal so that when you look at it your likeness remains on it." The father replied: "My son, if you are weak enough to believe such a thing, you ought to have sense enough not to tell it."

When Stokes told it in 1915 in his "Iconography of Manhattan Island," it was already funny. Now it is ridiculous, and the best proof of it at the moment is this far-ranging book by Pollack. We never hear any more the old argument — yes, but is it art? Indeed we find in these fascinating pages some reproductions which, like some favorite great paintings, have assumed a fixed place in our memories as if they were formative, visual, esthetic experiences. As clear in your mind's eye, as, say, a specific Rouault "King" or a Picasso cubist canvas are such masterly portraits as Nadar's Daumier, Carjat's Baudelaire and Steichen's Morgan, to mention only this one field of work.

Paris started it, whether it was Niepce or Daguerre alone or as partners. Atget followed them, there were Hill, Adamson and Julia Cameron in Britain. But the United States — New York, Chicago and many other centers — can point to a roster of splendid names whether we go back to Morse, Brady and Eakins, or note two who got their start in Paris, Man Ray and Berenice Abbott, or pick at random such names as Stieglitz, Weston, Adams, Duncan, Bourke-White.

You could like this book if you just read the text, or if you just look at the pictures; when you do both, it can't be beat.

DRAMA, FUN, MYSTERY

Cat And Dog Doings Create Excitement

By FRANCIS STILLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Doghouse Blows Up .... Silly Kitty Has Town Treed .... Canine Medical Hero Vanishes .... Parliament Ponders Pooch Problem .... Dog In Circle Gives People The Runaround.

There you have the latest headlines on cat and dog doings around the animal world.

It's just like people-news, too. Drama, excitement, fun, mystery.

First, about that exploding doghouse. It happened at Clifton N.J., at the home of Mrs. H. C. Mollen. Her dog's house in the yard suddenly blew into smithereens last Monday.

The dog was in the Mollen house. But the mysterious blast had everybody plenty excited. They scurried all around, looking for bomb fragments and suspicious characters.

They didn't find any. The state police laboratory experts on exploding doghouses, explain it this way:

When dogs sleep on straw, and they are restless sleepers, they roll and toss around and cause friction. This generates a lot of static electricity.

Then comes a little puff of wind, the wind stirs up dust and poof—goodby doghouse. Maybe doggie, too, if he's in it.

The scene now shifts to New Orleans and the sad story of Big Ben.

Big Ben was not only a big dog, weighing 68 pounds, but he was about as big a dog hero as any dog ever gets to be, no matter what size.

Big Ben was retired in the summer after a noteworthy career in research at the Tulane University Medical School. Big Ben didn't do the research. It was done on him.

The 3-year-old mixed breed pooch was the subject of some important cancer studies concerning the brain, limbs and organs. He once had an emergency operation for a massive hemorrhage of the neck. He also was a blood donor for another animal.

After his retirement came word that Big Ben had been named research dog hero of 1958 by the National Society for Medical Research. At the year's end he was going to receive a special collar with a silver plate, appropriately inscribed.

But the honor apparently came too late for Big Ben to enjoy it. He has vanished from his new home with the Arnold York family of nearby Algiers, La.

If he isn't found, he will receive his tribute—in absentia or posthumously.

LET US now take up the case of the frigid kitty, and the warm-hearted citizens of Canton, Conn., who spent 72 hours trying to take her down.

Miss Kitty climbed to an 80-foot perch in a tree and wouldn't budge. There she sat for 72 hours.

The townfolk, perspiring freely despite the below-freezing temperature, tried to entice her down but got only stares which were colder than the weather.

Tempting tidbits hoisted near her were eyed in disdain. Efforts to dislodge her with sticks were fruitless. The fire department boys put up their longest ladders but they weren't long enough.

In desperation, it was decided the only thing to do was to drive her down the tree with a stream from a fire hose.

Just at that moment a hero appeared on the scene: Eugene Shipman, 24-year-old former tree surgeon. Nothing to it, said he.

Equipped with hooks and ropes, Shipman went up. Eight minutes later he and the cat were down.

From London comes word that delinquent dogs may get a new deal in Britain. Home Secretary Richard Butler, was asked in the House of Commons to change the law condemning to death those which do bad things.

Butler also was asked to change the law under which dog owners must pay a pound a day penalty—that means $2.80 per—if they defy the death sentence.

All this because of Lassie, a 2-year-old Alsatian. This Lassie is not the same Lassie which does only good deeds on American television.

The British Lassie likes to chase motorcycles and was sentenced to death because, apparently, the British don't like dogs to chase motorcycles.

But Ruby Bowring, 23, Lassie's owner, took her pet to a sanctuary for canines after the sentence and the police have no authority to remove the dog.

Lassie is getting along just fine there, but Miss Bowring isn't. Shes running low on cash — already owes more than $280.

That was why the member of parliament representing her district got up and asked the home secretary about changing the law.

Butler said he couldn't go against a court order. However, he indicated he would be willing to back a change in the present dog death law if it should be proposed.

At New Brunswick, N.J., there is a dog named "Tippy," "Blackie," "Brownie," "Skippy" or "Ching." Those aren't really his names because nobody knows what his real name is. People just call him what they choose.

Tippy, etc. has been camping in the middle of a busy traffic circle for six weeks, possibly because somebody abandoned him there and he's waiting for his master's return.

Tippy, etc., got pretty hungry after a while and he had a terrible time trying to cross the busy street to go find something to eat. He eventually learned to wait for a lull in the traffic, but always returned.

People tried to give him something to eat and lure him away to a new home. Tippy, etc., will have none of it.

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been trying to fox him by putting out meatballs drugged so as to make him woozy and catchable. Nary a nibble so far.

Floods of calls have come in from people as a result of newspaper stories. They all think he may be their missing pooch. A woman in Vermont said she's almost sure he's her pet "Ching," lost in Washington, D. C., six weeks ago. She's coming down when she can.

Two O'Casey Plays Acted In New York

NEW YORK—(UPI)—Take the case of Sean O'Casey . . .

The Irish playwright has been represented on the New York stage by two plays within a week. He is a master, a genius — they say.

One of the plays is "The Shadow of a Gunman," his first to be produced, 36 years ago. The other is "Cock-a-doodle Dandy," only nine years old. The former had been done here before by an Irish repertory company long ago; the latter had never been shown in New York.

"The Shadow of a Gunman" has most of the elements of the O'Casey that most people appreciate. It is the least of the three, but of a piece with "Juno and the Paycock" and "The Plough and the Stars," all early works in a completely realistic manner and about Ireland's "troubles" of the rebellion era.

"The Shadow of a Gunman" has been given what is, for the most part, an excellent production at the Bijou Theater by a group that comes from the Actors Studio, home of the much disputed "method" type of acting. "The method" is not obtrusive in this case.

As a play, it is "thin." It lacks a strong line of story or character interest. Yet it contains the basic O'Casey specialty of exposing in wry comedy style the essense of the Gaelic character and mores, and, personally, I can think of little else in the world that is more interesting. The production is worth seeing.

Not in apology but in explanation, I would like to insert here my belief that "Juno and the Paycock" is one of the few truly great modern plays. In this one case, at least, O'Casey was a master.

Now for the heretical part. O'Casey's works since "The Plough and the Stars" impress me individually and generally as being, in the main, boring. That, of course, includes "Cock-a-doodle Dandy," which was presented at the off-Broadway Carnegie Hall Theater.

This one, and the others from 1930 on, are of O'Casey's mystical or fantasical period. They are supposed to be laden with lyricism, deep meanings and possibly some radicalism, although the latter is of such a childish nature that a true radical must scorn it. As for the vaunted quality of their comedy, this element impresses this reviewer as being about on a par with the humor of American vaudeville and burlesque of the latter half of the 19th century.

In all fairness, I suppose it should be noted here that O'Casey is on record as regarding "Cock-a-doodle Dandy" as his favorite and best play. It is a work that extolls the joy of living, that excoriates those who would stifle it. Its particular protagonists are a couple of serioeomic Irishmen who, I think, even Harrigan and Hart of the long ago would have refused to portray on the grounds both of poor material and questionable taste.

As for its standing in the joy-versus-gloom area of the drama, it can't hold a candle to, say, William Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life." And I am not exactly a Saroyanophile.

Aside from "Juno and the Paycock," I would say that O'Casey's fame eventually will rest on his truly great autobiographical volumes for all their sometimes too-precious quality and their author's too-much-awareness of having been canonized by some as the master of poetic prose.

Party For Horses Is Her Ambition

NEW YORK (AP)—Mary Simpson, who is known as "the Elsa Maxwell of the pet world," has an odd professional ambition. She wants to throw a beach party for horses.

"A beach is an ideal place for such a party," she explained. "Horses love the surf, but most of them rarely get to visit a beach."

Miss Simpson, an employe of the Hess Bros. department store in Allentown, Pa., is the world's only pet party consultant — at least as far as she knows.

But Mary, a college graduate who majored in Far Eastern history, doesn't think of her job as odd. She has loved animals all her life, enjoys catering to them.

"People have been throwing parties for their pets for some time," she said, "but it has been on a rather haphazard basis.

"People enjoy doing special things for their pets on special occasions — such as their birthdays. But many don't know how to make a party come off."

Miss Simpson does. If possible, she likes to go over the animal guest list in advance — just as a professional Washington social hostess might.

"Animals don't differ much from human beings at a party," she observed. "They catch the air of excitement. They have their showoffs and their wallflowers. You have to be sure the guests will get along.

"So far I haven't supervised a party where we mixed canaries, parakeets and cats and dogs. But we've had a number of cat and dog mixed parties that come off very well."

"The fact a dog chases a cat outside the home has no bearing on how they will get along at a party. After they get to know each other, they behave very well. Cats and monkeys also get along well at parties," she said.

Jealousy arises only when the guest pet of honor gets all the presents—or when two dogs want to show off at the same time.

"As at a children's party," cautioned Miss Simpson, "it is important that all the guests receive a favor. And it is better if the favors are identical. This keeps down envy."

Naturally, the pets put on their best attire for a party. Here Miss Simpson feels owners often err. They often dress their pet to please themselves rather than the animal.

"A boxer looks just right in a light green flannel car coat," she said. "But a sport jacket wouldn't do at all for a fashion-conscious poodle. He needs something simply elegant—such as a black leather collar with pearls — that doesn't detract from his own looks."

The doggy sport jackets cost a few bucks each. The pearl-trimmed collars are $29. Also available are such winter luxuries as a set of our fur-lined canine galoshes at $5.95, or imported mink jackets at $100.

Pets like to play games at parties just like people. Their favorite games, Mary said, are "bone scramble" and "hide the meat-ball."

What should you give a pet as a birthday party present?

"The best present for a bird is another bird," said Miss Simpson. "The best way to surprise a cat or dog is to get it another toy like the very first one it ever had. It will remember—and be pleased.

"You can also get it a copy of some object it likes around the house but has been forbidden to play with — such as a slipper, lady's hat, rubber, or braided rug. But it is essential that you first use the object yourself, so that the pet will associate it with you. Otherwise he won't care for it."

People are so interested today in seeing their pets are happy that Mary feels comfortably sure her new specialty will develop into a personal gold mine.

"After all," she pointed out, smiling, "even the supermarkets now sell more dog food than baby food."

Key Club Presents Yuletide Program

By AUSTIN ABRAMS
Staff Writer

"Have reindeer....Will travel."

Paladin and Santa haven't been trading six guns and snow sleds, but with 40 high school boys decked in flaming red jackets and stuffed inside a giant Christmas card, who knows?

Anything could happen.

But it's all settled and the group of young men have already shown they're dead serious about the matter and have lined themselves up for traveling.

It's the Neville Key Club, with something unique in Christmas programs, and named appropriately, "Have reindeer....Will travel."

The boys got their show rolling last year and the high school student body liked it so well, they've put it back in use, planned the first public performance tomorrow night and will head for several shows in Mississippi.

Herbert Gathright, music director at Neville, blended the 40 voices into a fine unit and the Key Club is all keyed up for this year's showings.

A. E. Culpepper Jr., Kiwanis faculty sponsor for the group at Neville, has drawn from dramatic skits and working with Gathright, has boys ready to sing and act for 63 minutes.

The group renders 27 musicals which are blended with dramatic skits based on such works as Heywood Broun's, "The Shepherd Who Stayed"; the late Peter Marshall's, "Let's Keep Christmas"; Norman Vincent Peale's, "The Gift of the Magi," and others.

The group's intentions are to stress the real meaning of Christmas and separated them from the many artifical conventions sometimes imposed during the season.

The technical end of the show is something to notice.

First, the chorus is staged inside a special, giant Christmas card equipped with an intricate lighting system which allows stage prop changes without interrupting the show.

Thus you see a continuous play.

Then the stereophonic sound system adds to the show, and each speaking member of the cast is equipped with lapel microphones which prevents jumbling of sound.

The boys sang Wednesday at Neville for the grammar schools in Monroe and played at Robert E. Lee (Formerly Southside Junior High) Wednesday night.

Thursday they sang at St. Mathews.

Tomorrow they play at Bastrop and return to Neville at 8:15 tomorrow night for their first public appearance in Monroe.

Then they swing into Mississippi for several stops and complete their tour at the end of next week at the Louisiana Sugar Cane Festival Auditorium in New Iberia.

About 11,000 people are expected to see the boys perform during the hour.

Last year Ivan Uttall, director of the Monroe Little Theater, said about the show:

"Really good theatre! The Neville Key Club Christmas program should be used as a standard of excellence for other high schools to meet. . ."

Comedy Riot Now Showing At Paramount

"A Nice Little Bank That Should Be Robbed", Twentieth Century-Fox's hilarious comedy, is now showing at the Paramount Theatre. The winner of the International Humor Festival award early this year has its northeast Louisiana premier today.

Based on an actual incident in which three amateurs robbed two Westchester County, New York, banks of more than a quarter of a million dollars, the Anthony Muto production, in Cinema-Scope topcasts Tom Ewell, Mickey Rooney and Mickey Shaughnessy as the zany culprits, and was directed by Henry Levin.

Ewell portrays the chief bandit with a yen for taking in hungry dogs and betting on long-shot horses; Rooney is his parasitic friend who calmly terrorizes a bank teller with a bundle of oranges, and Shaughnessy, the comedy sensation of "Don't Go Near the Water," is the bumbling, cowardly bookie who can't resist betting on his own horses.

Dina Merrill plays Ewell's fiancee of five years standing and acts as a catalyst to the action when she gives Ewell an ultimatum demanding a stop to his betting activities and a firm date for their weddding. Also featured in this laugh-riot are Madge Kennedy, as a bank teller who is politely and unprofessionally kidnapped by the trio, Frances Bavier, Richard Deacon, Stanley Clements and Tome Greenway.

Major photography for "A Nice Little Bank That Should Be Robbed" centers around a supermarket, from which the criminals "case" a bank while hilariously filling and emptying a shopping cart with baby food; a garage and repair shop from which the trio bet on horses, dream of their winnings, and finally hatch the master plan to rob two banks; the Pomona Race Track and the County Fair Grounds race track near the Twentieth Century-Fox studio.

AT PARAMOUNT — Mickey Rooney, Tom Ewell and Michey Shaughnessy are the three amateur and hilarious bank robbers in "A Nice Little Bank That Should Be Robbed." The comedy riot starts today at the Paramount Theatre.

HUNGARIAN BEAUTY

'Zsa Zsa' Really Just A Nickname

By RICK Du BROW
UPI Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Zsa Zsa Gabor has told how she got that name.

"It's a nickname, Dolling," she said. "My real first name is Sari —pronounced Sha-ree. Zsa Zsa is the Hungarian nickname for Sari, just like Pam would be for Pamela. In America, Sari would be Charlotte. It's very simple."

Miss Gabor sat in the living room of her hilltop Bel Air mansion, which overlooks Los Angeles. She wore a simple black cocktail dress, a string of pearls and high-heeled black pumps.

"I was named after a Hungarian actress who was very famous when I was born," the blonde beauty explained. "When I was about six months old, my nurse started calling me Zsa Zsa, and that's what it stayed always."

BEAUTY SECRET

Being in a reveling mood, Miss Gabor also gave away her beauty secret. She's a teetotaler. Well, almost.

European women, Miss Gabor explained, don't drink as much as American women.

"We're not raised that way," she said. "People who drink get old and ugly. Whenever people ask me my beauty secret, I tell them I don't drink, except spritzers. They're not heavy, so you can't get drunk. It's pronounced Shpritzer."

Miss Gabor recently had a few spritzers with her old friend, King Farouk, in Rome, where she made a film, "for the first time," with Mario Lanza.

Asked what the deposed fat boy monarch of Egypt was doing these days, she replied:

"What should a king do? He has lots of money, speaks five languages and is very intelligent. He reads all the publicity about me."

Miss Gabor said Farouk was quite upset because she had sent him a postcard without addressing it personally.

"But I didn't know what to call him," she said. "What do you call a king? Sometimes I call him darling, but in front of other people, I always say 'Your royal highness.'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Zsa Zsa Gabor has told how she got that name.

"It's a nickname, Dolling," she said. "My real first name is Sari—pronounced Sha-ree. Zsa Zsa is the Hungarian nickname for Sari, just like Pam would be for Pamela. In America, Sari would be Charlotte. It's very simple."

Miss Gabor sat in the living room of her hilltop Bel Air mansion, which overlooks Los Angeles. She wore a simple black cocktail dress, a string of pearls and high-heeled black pumps.

"I was named after a Hungarian actress who was very famous when I was born," the blonde beauty explained. "When I was about six months old, my nurse started calling me Zsa Zsa, and that's what it stayed always."

BEAUTY SECRET

Being in a reveling mood, Miss Gabor also gave away her beauty secret. She's a teetotaler. Well, almost.

European women, Miss Gabor explained, don't drink as much as American women.

"We're not raised that way," she said. "People who drink get old and ugly. Whenever people ask me my beauty secret, I tell them I don't drink, except spritzers. They're not heavy, so you can't get drunk. It's pronounced Shpritzer."

Miss Gabor recently had a few spritzers with her old friend, King Farouk, in Rome, where she made a film, "for the first time," with Mario Lanza.

Asked what the deposed fat boy monarch of Egypt was doing these days, she replied:

"What should a king do? He has lots of money, speaks five languages and is very intelligent. He reads all the publicity about me."

Miss Gabor said Farouk was quite upset because she had sent him a postcard without addressing it personally.

"But I didn't know what to call him," she said. "What do you call a king? Sometimes I call him darling, but in front of other people, I always say 'Your royal highness.'

REFRIGERATED GI — A volunteer at the U.S. Army Medical Research Laboratory at Ft. Knox has his oxygen intake carefully measured in a "cold room" where he spends eight hours each day clad only in shorts. Object is to find ways to build resistance to frostbite and chilling.

Army Wants To Build A Weather-Proof Soldier

By RAY SHAW

FT. KNOX, Ky. (AP) — The Army is trying to develop a formula for a more weather - proof soldier.

"If successful, he would be a global fighter — ready to fight in the Arctic or the tropics with equal efficiency," said Dr. T. R. A. Davis.

The project is aimed at finding ways to build resistance to frostbite and chilling.

Research already has shown acclimatization to heat reduces possibility of heat stroke, exhaustion and collapse.

RESISTANCE INCREASED

"Our research shows man, in a month's time, can undergo physiological changes increasing his resistance to cold injury," Davis said.

"Also, there is some evidence acclimatization to both heat and cold possibly can occur to the same person at one time."

This, however, is yet to be proved.

Experiments are conducted in a gray - walled room with high ceilings. It can be changed from cold to hot experiments with the flip of a switch.

Machines measure the effects of heat and cold on volunteers in the room.

During one visit, 10 soldiers were being adapted to cold weather. They wore only shorts. Five exercised constantly — the others played cards.

All had one thing in common: chattering teeth and shivering.

The temperature was 52 degrees Fahrenheit — not frigid, but cool enough for a topcoat. The men spent eight hours daily in the room. Meals were common GI fare.

Is it cold? A sergeant said between chattering teeth:

"Our goose bumps have their own goose bumps."

These men had been in the room eight hours a day for two weeks. At the end of 30 days they still will feel the cold. But the teeth chattering and shivering will have ended.

If Davis' conclusions are correct, these men ought to be ready for cold weather fighting.

In another three weeks the same soldiers could be conditioned for hot weather. For this temperatures would be kept at 120 degrees Fahrenheit.

Davis believes that soldiers can be conditioned to both heat and cold within two months and can have immunity to both for an indefinite time.

In the hot room, temperature, blood pressure, pulse rates and perspiration will change as the soldier's body adjusts.

Davis, a 41 - year - old physiologist from the Cook Islands in the South Pacific, first noted as a teen-ager that a person can become used to extreme weather.

He left his tropical islands to attend school in Auckland, New Zealand.

"The first winter in New Zealand was misery," he said. "The next winter I stayed under an ice cold shower in the dead of winter for 43 minutes — still a record at the school."

His field is not a new one—"but one in which much is to be learned."

Example: Shivering is one of nature's ways of producing heat to replace that lost by the body in the cold. After 30 days, shivering ceases. Something else produces the heat in its place.

What is it? "We can only guess that something takes place inside the body," Davis said.

Persons living in temperate climates appear to acclimatize annually, Davis said.

"They shiver well in October and much less in December. This indicates that man acclimatizes to the changing seasons although he lives and works in heated buildings and drives a heated automobile."

Can a person become permanently acclimatized? "That's another question we don't know."

Designers To Put Shorter Coats On Men

By MARGUERITE DAVIS
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gentlemen, have you a rounded front?

Do your lapels peak?

The International Association of Clothing Designers, holding its 98th semi-annual convention this week to set next winter's masculine styles, agreed these will be the mark of the well dressed man.

The designers settled on a suit with a shorter coat than this year, peak lapels, slanted pockets, and rounded fronts.

The coat will measure 30¼ inches for a size 40, with square shoulders measuring 18 inches across. It will have two buttons and their placement is a matter of importance.

If they are properly placed, the coat can be buttoned when a man is sitting down, and the coat won't buckle up," a designer said.

The model sat down. And sure enough, his coat remained smooth.

The coat will nip in more sharply at the waist and side seams will hug the body a little more closely.

This sartorial symphony should be completed with a continental coat, the designers said. They offered two, one fitted and the other hanging loosely from the shoulders.

"The continental and the Como-continental," they said, but this brought a flurry of protest from retail dealers invited to the showing to offer suggestions on the merchandise they hope to sell next winter.

W. ELMO MERCER

Other Talents Counted By Bank Teller

WINNFIELD (Special) "The words just come to me out of nowhere so fast sometimes that I have to take them down in shorthand before I forget them", was the explanation of a 26-year-old Winnfield bank teller who has written more than 250 gospel songs over a twelve year period. Most of them have been published.

The talented composer is W. Elmo Mercer, who also writes under the pseudonym, Mark Johnson. He attributes his talent as a "gift of God". In support of this theory he pointed out that many of his gospel songs have "been well received" but the few popular numbers he has composed have failed to gain recognition.

His best known sacred hymn is "Each Step I Take". Others include: "The Way That He Loves", "Oh, What A Saviour", "Do You Know My Jesus", "The Glories of Our Lord," No Greater Depth of Love", "A Glimpse of Jesus", "My Word Shall Not Pass Away", "I'll Take Up My Cross,' "The Lord Will Lead You On", "The Master's Voice", "I Can't Stray", and "You Gotta Say No."

Publishing rights on the majority of his music have been secured by John T. Benson Publishing Co. of Nashville, Lillenas Publishing Co. of Kansas City, and the Rodeheaver Company of Chicago. He has a new four-year contract as a staff writer for the Benson Company.

Reports indicate that Mercer's songs are gaining a wide usage on radio and television. Such broadcasts as Billy Graham's "Hour of Decision," the "Old Fashioned Revival Hour", "Back to the Bible" program, and the international program of the Assembly of God denomination are making regular use of his songs.

His most popular composition, "Each Step I Take", has been recorded in a "Christian Faith" album by Ray Nobles. Another song—"So Great Is His Love"—has been included in a new album by Paul McNutt. Robles and McNutt are widely known gospel singers. George Beverly Shea, noted Billy Graham crusade singer, has sung the local writer's compositions before large audiences and on radio and television nationwide hookups.

Elmo is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mercer of Winnfield. He is a member of the American Society of Composer, Authors, and Publishers, and is church pianist at First Baptist Church here. He is married to the former Marcia Fletcher of Winnfield. They have one child, a son, Bill, who is 11 months old.

West Monroe Students To Get Degrees

Two West Monroe students will be graduated from Southwestern Baptist Seminary in mid-winter exercises January 16 in Fort Worth, Texas, it was announced today.

They are Robert C. Bayles, who will receive a bachelor of divinity degree, and Douglas K. Feazel, who will be awarded a master of religious education degree.

Bayles graduated from Centenary College of Louisiana, Shreveport, in 1955 and entered Southwestern the same year. Feazel graduated from Louisiana College, Pineville, in 1953.

Southwestern will confer 91 diplomas and degrees to students from 15 states and two foreign countries.

STUDENT — Hiroshi Kondoh, of Fukuoka, Japan, presently a student at New Orleans Seminary, will address the congregation of College Place Baptist Church at the morning worship period today. Church will present the cantata, "The Child of Bethlehem," at evening worship service, 7:30 p.m.

New Manual On Courtship For Young Couples

LITTLE ROCK (Special) —For the first time, the Methodist Church has an official marriage manual for engaged couples and a pastor's manual for premarital counseling.

The Rev. Bentley Slaone, executive secretary of the Methodist Louisiana Conference Board of Education, said that the new literature had its debut at the third National Methodist Conference on Family Life, held in Chicago.

The 143-page manual for engaged couples is entitled "In Holy Matrimony." It discusses Christian faith in marriage, learning to communicate, growth in love, importance of common interests, sexual harmony, plans for children, money management, the ceremony, the honeymoon, and building the Christian home.

WHEN WAS CHRIST BORN?

What Was The Eastern Star

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

When was Jesus born?

Modern scholarship has been unable to pinpoint the exact date. But there is abundant evidence that it was not Dec. 25, 1 A.D.

The custom of celebrating Christ's birthday on Dec. 25 originated in Rome in the fourth century of the Christian Era. The date apparently was chosen arbitrarily to coincide with the pagan holiday called Saturnalia which marked the winter solstice.

St. Luke's Gospel furnishes a strong clue that the actual date of the first Christmas was sometime in late summer or early autumn. The familiar Nativity study records that "there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night."

December is an intensely cold and rainy month in the hill country of Judea where Jesus was born. Shepherds take their flocks into the shelter of sheepfolds or caves at night. But during the warm months of summer and fall, the sheep are too languid to feed in the daytime, so the shepherds take them into the fields at night.

The assumption that Jesus was born in the year 1 A.D. is the basic premise of the Julian calendar, now generally used throughout the world. This calendar purports to date all events from the birth of Christ. It divides history into two eras — B. C. (before Christ) and A. D. (Anno Domini, which is Latin for "the Year of our Lord".)

But the Roman monk Dionysius Exiguus, who constructed the Julian calendar in the sixth century A.D., was not very good at arithmetic. He misplaced the year 1 A.D. by at least six years, and perhaps more, in his calculations.

St. Matthew's gospel relates that Jesus was born "in the days of Herod the King." Herod died in 4 B. C. If Herod was alive for approximately two years after Jesus' birth, as St. Matthew also indicates, this would point toward a year of birth not later than 6 B. C.

St. Luke connects the birth with a decree from Caesar Augustus requiring all residents of the Roman empire to enroll for a tax census. The census took place when Quirinius (whose name is wrongly translated Cyrenius in the King James Version) was governor of Syria. Historical research indicates that the date of the census was somewhere between 9 B.C. and 6 B.C.

St. Luke, who was an extremely careful reporter, also states that Jesus was "about 30 years of age" when he began his ministry "in the 15th year of the reign of Tiberius." This statement reinforces the other indications that the year of birth was probably 6 B.C.

Where was Jesus born?

The gospels of St. Matthew and St. Luke, and all other available evidence, agree that it was in the village of Bethlehem, a fertile oasis of vineyards, olive groves and pasturelands about six miles southwest of Jerusalem.

But the widely - held idea that Jesus was born in a stable cannot be documented from scripture or any other source. St. Luke simply says that Mary "brought forth her first son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes and placed him in a manager; because there was no room for them in the inn."

Artists, poets and song - writers for centuries have leaped to the conclusion that the manger was in a stable or cattle-barn attached to the inn.

Against this deduction must be weighed a very ancient tradition in Eastern countries that the Christ child was born in a cave. Modern scholarship has confirmed that caves were frequently used in that era to provide shelter for livestock. Pits were dug in the cave floors to serve as feeding troughs or mangers.

St. Luke does not say how far Joseph and Mary traveled after they were turned away from the overcrowded inn. So it is entirely plausible that they may have wandered around Bethlehem, seeking shelter in vain, until they were finally compelled to take refuge in a cave.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: We are a young couple with four children. We both have the feeling that my husband should enter the mininistry and serve the Lord. What do you think about this? At what age does a man usually enter this field of service?

ANSWER: You say you both have the feeling your husband should "serve the Lord". Of course you can do this in a lay capacity, as well as in a ministerial capacity. We make a mistake in thinking that a minister is the only man of God. As Christians, we are all to be people of God, and striving to serve Him acceptably.

I would say two things to you both about entering the ministry. First, don't contemplate being a preacher, if you can be content doing anything else. My call to preach, (and others have said they had a similar experience) was the result of a compelling urge to devote myself to the ministry, and a complete lack of interest in any other vocation. That was God's way of outlining my life's work. If the ministry appeals to you as a desirable profession, with allurements of social and financial compensations, by all means give up the idea. But if there is an inner urge to win men to Christ, and unquenchable desire to preach the Gospel, by all means do it.

Second, no man is ever too old to give himself to full time Christian service. If this is God's will for you, drop everything and begin your preparation. He will see you through, and as you obey Him, you will find it the greatest adventure imaginable for you will be a working partner with God.

APPOINTED FOR LIFE

Cardinals To Join 'Senate' Of Church

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The 23 new Roman Catholic cardinals being invested in the consistory starting Dec. 15 will join what is known as the "senate" of the church.

As members of the Scared College of Cardinals, they will act as aides and advisers to Pope John XXIII.

Cardinals are appointed for life. Their appointment is at the sole discretion of the Pope. And when the Pontiff dies the cardinals elect a new one.

The cardinals acquired the sole right to elect the Pope in 1179. Before then, other clergymen and laymen and emperors and members of the local nobility took part in the election.

In the early days of the church, bishops, priests and learned theologians advised the Pope on doctrines and government of the church.

The need came for a permanent body of advisers. These are the cardinals of today.

Even today, scholars dispute on the meaning of the word "cardinal." There is agreement, however, that it comes from the Latin word "cardo" which means "a hinge."

In the early days, a cathedral was designated a "cardo" because it was the see of a bishop who ruled the entire surrounding dioceses. At that time, priests assigned to such dioceses were referred to as "cardinals."

Mobile Units To Make Calls On State Churches

The Seventh - day Adventist Churches of Louisiana are being visited presently by Mobile units of Davidian Seventh - day Adventists from headquarters at Waco Texas — touring the state and dispensing hundreds of pieces of free Bible literature.

These unique literature bands on wheels have already made their appearance at over forty different camp meetings held throughout United States and Canada in the past two years. Their "Hear Ye the Rod" proclamation has attracted worldwide attention in the Adventist church by declaring that the next major prophetic event is the finishing of the sealing of 144,000 Seventh-day Adventists as the first fruits of the harvest followed by an anti - typical Passover in the Adventist church as foretold in the ninth chapter of Ezekiel.

It is reported that visitors to the churches are attracted by the large signs on the mobile Bible literature bands parked near the entrance to the churches, and many are inquiring about this "soon coming judgment starting at the Adventist church."

Trinity Baptist Church Slates Cantata Today

The Chapel Choir of the Trinity Baptist Church, West Monroe, under the direction of Sonny Steed, will present John W. Peterson's Christmas Cantata, "Love Transcending" this evening at 7:30 p.m.

This choir is composed of 50 voices of young people's age. Soloists for this challenging presentation of the Christmas story will be: Mickey Moody, tenor; Nelda Horn, soprano; Shirley Greer, soprano; Ila Kay Guraedy, alto; and Ronnie Sanford, baritone.

This Youth Choir is much in demand throughout our state; having made appearances in Shreveport, Delhi, DeQuincy, Winnfield, Marion, Louisiana; and Natchez, Mississippi. These singers have also made numerous appearances in the Monroe area. They have made a number of radio appearances and have been invited to sing at the State Evangelistic Conference, to be held in January in Monroe.

W. ELMO MERCER

Other Talents Counted By Bank Teller

WINNFIELD (Special) "The words just come to me out of nowhere so fast sometimes that I have to take them down in shorthand before I forget them", was the explanation of a 26-year-old Winnfield bank teller who has written more than 250 gospel songs over a twelve year period. Most of them have been published.

The talented composer is W. Elmo Mercer, who also writes under the pseudonym, Mark Johnson. He attributes his talent as a "gift of God". In support of this theory he pointed out that many of his gospel songs have "been well received" but the few popular numbers he has composed have failed to gain recognition.

His best known sacred hymn is "Each Step I Take". Others include: "The Way That He Loves", "Oh, What A Saviour", "Do You Know My Jesus", "The Glories of Our Lord," No Greater Depth of Love", "A Glimpse of Jesus", "My Word Shall Not Pass Away", "I'll Take Up My Cross,," "The Lord Will Lead You On", "The Master's Voice", "I Can't Stray", and "You Gotta Say No."

Publishing rights on the majority of his music have been secured by John T. Benson Publishing Co. of Nashville, Lillenas Publishing Co. of Kansas City, and the Rodeheaver Company of Chicago. He has a new four-year contract as a staff writer for the Benson Company.

Reports indicate that Mercer's songs are gaining a wide usage on radio and television. Such broadcasts as Billy Graham's "Hour of Decision," the "Old Fashioned Revival Hour", "Back to the Bible" program, and the international program of the Assembly of God denomination are making regular use of his songs.

His most popular composition, "Each Step I Take", has been recorded in a "Christian Faith" album by Ray Nobles. Another song—"So Great Is His Love"—has been included in a new album by Paul McNutt. Robles and McNutt are widely known gospel singers. George Beverly Shea, noted Billy Graham crusade singer, has sung the local writer's compositions before large audiences and on radio and television nationwide hookups.

Elmo is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mercer of Winnfield. He is a member of the American Society of Composer, Authors, and Publishers, and is church pianist at First Baptist Church here. He is married to the former Marcia Fletcher of Winnfield. They have one child, a son, Bill, who is 11 months old.

New Manual On Courtship For Young Couples

LITTLE ROCK (Special) --For the first time, the Methodist Church has an official marriage manual for engaged couples and a pastor's manual for premarital counseling.

The Rev. Bentley Slaone, executive secretary of the Methodist Louisiana Conference Board of Education, said that the new literature had its debut at the third National Methodist Conference on Family Life, held in Chicago.

The 143-page manual for engaged couples is entitled "In Holy Matrimony." It discusses Christian faith in marriage, learning to communicate, growth in love, importance of common interests, sexual harmony, plans for children, money management, the ceremony, the honeymoon, and building the Christian home.

WHEN WAS CHRIST BORN?

What Was The Eastern Star

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

When was Jesus born?

Modern scholarship has been unable to pinpoint the exact date. But there is abundant evidence that it was not Dec. 25, 1 A.D.

The custom of celebrating Christ's birthday on Dec. 25 originated in Rome in the fourth century of the Christian Era. The date apparently was chosen arbitrarily to coincide with the pagan holiday called Saturnalia which marked the winter solstice.

St. Luke's Gospel furnishes a strong clue that the actual date of the first Christmas was sometime in late summer or early autumn. The familiar Nativity study records that "there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night."

December is an intensely cold and rainy month in the hill country of Judea where Jesus was born. Shepherds take their flocks into the shelter of sheepfolds or caves at night. But during the warm months of summer and fall, the sheep are too languid to feed in the daytime, so the shepherds take them into the fields at night.

The assumption that Jesus was born in the year 1 A.D. is the basic premise of the Julian calendar, now generally used throughout the world. This calendar purports to date all events from the birth of Christ. It divides history into two eras — B. C. (before Christ) and A. D. (Anno Domini, which is Latin for "the Year of our Lord".)

But the Roman monk Dionysius Exiguus, who constructed the Julian calendar in the sixth century A.D., was not very good at arithmetic. He misplaced the year 1 A.D. by at least six years, and perhaps more, in his calculations.

St. Matthew's gospel relates that Jesus was born "in the days of Herod the King." Herod died in 4 B. C. If Herod was alive for approximately two years after Jesus' birth, as St. Matthew also indicates, this would point toward a year of birth not later than 6 B. C.

St. Luke connects the birth with a decree from Caesar Augustus requiring all residents of the Roman empire to enroll for a tax census. The census took place when Quirinius (whose name is wrongly translated Cyrenius in the King James Version) was governor of Syria. Historical research indicates that the date of the census was somewhere between 9 B.C. and 6 B.C.

St. Luke, who was an extremely careful reporter, also states that Jesus was "about 30 years of age" when he began his ministry "in the 15th year of the reign of Tiberius." This statement reinforces the other indications that the year of birth was probably 6 B.C.

Where was Jesus born?

The gospels of St. Matthew and St. Luke, and all other available evidence, agree that it was in the village of Bethlehem, a fertile oasis of vineyards, olive groves and pasturelands about six miles southwest of Jerusalem.

But the widely - held idea that Jesus was born in a stable cannot be documented from scripture or any other source. St. Luke simply says that Mary "brought forth her first son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes and placed him in a manager; because there was no room for them in the inn."

Artists, poets and song - writers for centuries have leaped to the conclusion that the manger was in a stable or cattle-barn attached to the inn.

Against this deduction must be weighed a very ancient tradition in Eastern countries that the Christ child was born in a cave. Modern scholarship has confirmed that caves were frequently used in that era to provide shelter for livestock. Pits were dug in the cave floors to serve as feeding troughs or mangers.

St. Luke does not say how far Joseph and Mary traveled after they were turned away from the overcrowded inn. So it is entirely plausible that they may have wandered around Bethlehem, seeking shelter in vain, until they were finally compelled to take refuge in a cave.

APPOINTED FOR LIFE

Cardinals To Join 'Senate' Of Church

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The 23 new Roman Catholic cardinals being invested in the consistory starting Dec. 15 will join what is known as the "senate" of the church.

As members of the Scared College of Cardinals, they will act as aides and advisers to Pope John XXIII.

Cardinals are appointed for life. Their appointment is at the sole discretion of the Pope. And when the Pontiff dies the cardinals elect a new one.

The cardinals acquired the sole right to elect the Pope in 1179. Before then, other clergymen and laymen and emperors and members of the local nobility took part in the election.

In the early days of the church, bishops, priests and learned theologians advised the Pope on doctrines and government of the church.

The need came for a permanent body of advisers. These are the cardinals of today.

Even today, scholars dispute on the meaning of the word "cardinal." There is agreement, however, that it comes from the Latin word "cardo" which means "a hinge."

In the early days, a cathedral was designated a "cardo" because it was the see of a bishop who ruled the entire surrounding dioceses. At that time, priests assigned to such dioceses were referred to as "cardinals."

Mobile Units To Make Calls On State Churches

The Seventh - day Adventist Churches of Louisiana are being visited presently by Mobile units of Davidian Seventh - day Adventists from headquarters at Waco Texas — touring the state and dispensing hundreds of pieces of free Bible literature.

These unique literature bands on wheels have already made their appearance at over forty different camp meetings held throughout United States and Canada in the past two years. Their "Hear Ye the Rod" proclamation has attracted worldwide attention in the Adventist church by declaring that the next major prophetic event is the finishing of the sealing of 144,000 Seventh-day Adventists as the first fruits of the harvest followed by an anti - typical Passover in the Adventist church as foretold in the ninth chapter of Ezekiel.

It is reported that visitors to the churches are attracted by the large signs on the mobile Bible literature bands parked near the entrance to the churches, and many are inquiring about this "soon coming judgment starting at the Adventist church."

Trinity Baptist Church Slates Cantata Today

The Chapel Choir of the Trinity Baptist Church, West Monroe, under the direction of Sonny Steed, will present John W. Peterson's Christmas Cantata, "Love Transcending" this evening at 7:30 p.m.

This choir is composed of 50 voices of young people's age. Soloists for this challenging presentation of the Christmas story will be: Mickey Moody, tenor; Nelda Horn, soprano; Shirley Greer, soprano; Ila Kay Guraedy, alto; and Ronnie Sanford, baritone.

This Youth Choir is much in demand throughout our state; having made appearances in Shreveport, Delhi, DeQuincy, Winnfield, Marion, Louisiana; and Natchez, Mississippi. These singers have also made numerous appearances in the Monroe area. They have made a number of radio appearances and have been invited to sing at the State Evangelistic Conference, to be held in January in Monroe.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: We are a young couple with four children. We both have the feeling that my husband should enter the mininistry and serve the Lord. What do you think about this? At what age does a man usually enter this field of service?

ANSWER: You say you both have the feeling your husband should "serve the Lord". Of course you can do this in a lay capacity, as well as in a ministerial capacity. We make a mistake in thinking that a minister is the only man of God. As Christians, we are all to be people of God, and striving to serve Him acceptably.

I would say two things to you both about entering the ministry. First, don't contemplate being a preacher, if you can be content doing anything else. My call to preach, (and others have said they had a similar experience) was the result of a compelling urge to devote myself to the ministry, and a complete lack of interest in any other vocation. That was God's way of outlining my life's work. If the ministry appeals to you as a desirable profession, with allurements of social and financial compensations, by all means give up the idea. But if there is an inner urge to win men to Christ, and unquenchable desire to preach the Gospel, by all means do it.

Second, no man is ever too old to give himself to full time Christian service. If this is God's will for you, drop everything and begin your preparation. He will see you through, and as you obey Him, you will find it the greatest adventure imaginable for you will be a working partner with God.

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

Upsurge In Yule Buying Puts New Zip In Economy

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—A vigorous upsurge in Christmas buying put new zip in the nation's economy this week.

But for the nation as a whole the outlook was for a 3 to 4 per cent rise over last year's Christmas volume.

Electric power consumption climbed to a record high of more than 13 billion kilowatthours as the main streets and shopping centers of America turned on the Christmas lights.

Detroit contributed to the winter upturn. Auto production again topped the 140,000 mark and if Chrysler Corp. plants hadn't been hobbled by strikes, the total would have reached 150,000. Chevrolet and Rambler set new production highs.

Steel output was the highest since October.

Likewise encouraging were the latest figures on jobs and paychecks. Unemployment held steady from mid-October to mid-November instead of showing the usual seasonal rise. Increased hiring by industry offset cold weather cutbacks in farming and construction. Average weekly earnings of factory workers punched to an all-time high.

Stock sales totaled 19,094,914 shares in the latest week compared to 17,565,462 in the previous week and 11,487,210 shares in the same 1957 week.

Bond sales had a par value of $32,377,500 in the latest week, $31,890,000 in the previous week and $30,035,000 in the corresponding week a year ago.

The news about employment was good for just about everybody except the 3,800,000 Americans who wanted work and couldn't get it. Unemployment was less than 3,200,000 a year ago.

College students who expect to graduate next June may be offered slightly higher starting salaries than those who got their sheepskins this year. And jobs should be more plentiful for them.

So says Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., after a survey of business hiring intentions. Starting salaries will run about two per cent higher, averaging $480 a month for engineers, $422 for accountants, $419 for salesmen and $413 for business trainees.

How does 1959 look to the leaders of U.S. business? Ten of the nation's top corporate executives made their views known this week at a forum sponsored by the First National Bank of Chicago. The consensus: It will be a good year in many ways, but it will lack the heady stimulus of a full-fledged boom in capital spending. Here are some typical comments:

Charles H. Kellstadt, president, Sears, Roebuck & Co.: The new year should see a continued but gradual upturn from the 1957-58 recession. By mid-year, the rate of recovery may slow down Prices may go higher.

Willie D. Gale, chairman, Commonwealth Edison Co.: the utility industry in the first six months of 1959 should smash all prior records.

Less hopeful was H.C. Turner Jr., president of Turner Construction Co., who declared: "I am not as optimistic as many of the published reports and I do not anticipate boom conditions in construction."

Briefly over the business scene: American Motors Corp. will spend 10 million dollars boosting the capacity of its Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., plants. The company says the factories can't keep up with demand for Ramblers . . . Khrushchev touched off a ripple of selling in the stock market this week . . . . U.S. government statisticians say businessmen have cut back previously announced expansion plans. . . . Starting Monday you'll be able to buy voting stock in the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.—The "A. & P."—for the first time in the big food chain's 99-year-history. . . . Pipeline companies are happy about the so-called "Memphis Case" decision which gives them greater leeway in boosting natural gas rates. . . . Output of the nation's mines and factories increased two per cent last month. . . Remember the hula hoop craze? It's reaching boom proportions in France. Frenchmen are buying 20,000 hula hoops a day. And three buyers out of four are grown-ups.

Natural Gas Facing State Tax Problem

HOUSTON (AP) —Natural gas companies won a major victory before the Supreme Court this week but they may face a big tax problem after the Legislature goes into session next month.

The state faces a huge deficit and there is talk of revival of efforts to bolster revenues by taxing Texas gas being exported to consumers in other states. A similar 1951 effort was knocked down in 1954 by the Supreme Court.

The court this week reversed a lower court ruling that prohibited major transmission lines from boosting rates without customer approval of the increases. Instead, the Supreme Court upheld the old system under which higher rates can be collected, subject to refund, pending the outcome of Federal Power Commission investigations on justification of the increases.

Rapid expansion of several trunklines is expected to result from the new ruling. Several hundred million dollars in expansion projects were cancelled after the Nov. 21, 1957, customer approval ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

The new order prompted no sudden boom in pipeline pipe orders but steel manufacturers joined gas industry spokesmen in optimistic predictions. Some steel mills specializing in fabrication of such pipe have been operating far below capacity in recent weeks.

Many Texas legislators have been searching for years for a method to tax exported gas without placing an additional tax burden on the Texas producer. Details have not been announced but some legislators report they believe they have found an answer that would withstand court tests.

The 1951 effort meant an income of about one million dollars a month to the state but about 30 million had to be refunded after the Supreme Court struck down the gathering tax on Feb. 8, 1954.

In appealing, attorneys for the Michigan-Wisconsin and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line companies argued taxation without representation.

"Since the burden of the tax ultimately will be borne by those persons in other states who consume the gas, the statute enables the state of Texas to achieve the politically popular result of raising revenue at the ultimate expense of citizens of other states," the appellants said.

The Supreme Court agreed. The unanimous ruling also held that the tax impeded the free flow of trade between the states.

After this setback, the Legislature boosted the state's gross production tax on natural gas from 5.72 per cent to 7 per cent. Revenue from the tax for the fiscal 1958 is estimated at $41,971,000.

The tax money Texas had to refund was dwarfed by the rate hike collections the gas companies would have had to refund if the customer approval ruling had been upheld. The collections have been estimated at from 200 to 250 million dollars and the companies now will have to refund only that portion the FPC finds to be unjustified after rising costs, profit levels and similar matters are taken into consideration.

Plus Signs Few In Grain Futures Weekly Trading

CHICAGO (AP) — A few plus signs were sprinkled through grain futures prices on the Board of Trade for the week but the trend generally was decidedly downward.

The few gains mainly were in small fractions of a cent while the declines ran to around three cents at the extremes. December corn was the steadiest contract on the board.

Brokers generally were surprised that selling of wheat in the southwest by both producers and elevator interests continued into this week at a rather liberal rate. Some of the grades sold at prices as much as 10 cents a bushel under the government loan figure.

Although commercial stocks in Chicago have been declining, the fact that exporters and some processors could obtain supplies direct from country stations had a bearish effect on the futures.

Colder weather was believed to be responsible to a large extent for the reduced grain movements but the major reason perhaps still was the fact that nearly all corn is in good storable condition and the growers are in sufficiently strong financial position to withhold the grain until the new tax year.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1⅝-3 cents lower than a week ago, December $1.92⅝-¾; corn ⅛ higher to 1⅜ lower, December old type contract $1.14⅝-¾; oats ⅛ higher to ⅜ lower, December 65⅝; rye 2-3⅛ cents lower, December $1.29¾-⅞, and soybeans 1¼ higher to 1⅞ lower, January $2.16¾-¼.

NO SUNDAY EDITIONS

N.Y. Newspapers Still Strikebound

NEW YORK (UPI)—A four-day deliverers' strike plunged New York City Saturday into a weekend without newspapers. The stoppage prevented publication of nearly 8 million Sunday papers that would have contained the largest volume of news and advertising of the year.

Representatives of both sides resumed negotiations Saturday but there was little chance for the presses to start rolling before Monday, even if a settlement were reached.

Officials of the Publishers Association of New York City and the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union failed to reach an agreement in renewed talks Friday.

The union spurned a management demand for a new rank-and-file vote on a contract that was accepted by union negotiators last Sunday night and then turned down by a vote of only 35 per cent of the union's 4,500 members Tuesday night.

The publishers said the outcome might be different in a new ballot if a majority of the union members were to participate.

The truck drivers and other delivery workers who distribute newspapers throughout the nation's most concentrated news consumption area originally walked out at midnight Dec. 7, when their contract expired.

They returned to work Monday after negotiators accepted a contract offer. But then they struck again shortly after 10 p.m. Tuesday after members voted 877 to 772 against the proposed agreement.

The negotiators met separately with federal mediators twice Friday and also held two joint sessions.

During that time, the union negotiators accepted the publishers' wage offer of a $7 package wage increase over a two-year period, with $4 being paid now and $3 next year.

But then the union resubmitted demands for a 35-hour week in place of the present 40-hour week and an additional paid holiday.

The drivers' current basic wage is about $103 a week.

Sunday's papers would have been the fattest of the year, with a peak load of Christmas advertising aimed at getting shoppers out during the last full week before Christmas.

A NUN

Surprise Opens Mouths To Dentist

BOSTON (AP) — Patients at Riseman Dental Clinic of Beth Israel Hospital open their mouths in astonishment these days.

Cause of the surprise is a nun . . . a nun who is also a dentist.

The patients are not prepared to find a nun in full habit bending over them saying: "Open just a little wider, please."

Sister Mary Christina is a member of the Missionary Sisters of the Society of Mary and the first of the order to become a dentist — and an excellent one, clinic officials say.

She also is the only nun to become a member of the Massachusetts Dental Society.

Sister Mary Christina, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Tilk of Menomonee Falls, Wis., elected to take up dentistry after taking her vows in 1951.

Her internship at Riseman ends next June when she plans to go to one of the Marist Society's Southwest Pacific Stations in the Solomons, Samoa or Tonga to set up a dental clinic.

"When I'm not doing dentistry I feel I'm missing something," she says.

"Going to the Pacific will let me help people."

Balloonists Send Radio Message Saying 'All Well'

LONDON (AP)—A British amateur radio operator said he received a message from the balloon Small World at 5 p.m. Saturday reporting "all well."

British radio operators said earlier Saturday they had not received scheduled reports from the balloon but several operators in the Canary Islands said they had picked up messages that everything was fine.

Then late Saturday the British ham reported he had received the "all well" report.

"The balloon gave its position as 320 miles west of the Canary Islands," the operator said. "It reported fresh winds were blowing and all was well."

Stock Prices Climb, Just Miss Record

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market tried for another record high this week but missed narrowly.

Midweek saw a vigorous upward drive following some fairly sluggish consolidation the week before. The averages might have hit a new peak, despite profit-taking, if not for the heightening Berlin crisis which led to nervous selling on Thursday.

The market was at its best in Wednesday when the second biggest daily jump of the year was achieved. This session was marked by solid gains of blue chip stocks as well as continued activity in secondary issues. The move served notice that the big institutional investors thought prices were not going much lower, not for the present, anyway.

This big leap was enough to put the market ahead on the week and chalk up the second straight weekly rise.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $2.50 to $206.90. At its best closing high on Wednesday the AP average stood at $207.50, only 20 cents below the record of $207.70 reached Nov. 20.

Weekly turnover of 19,094,914 shares was the biggest in three weeks and a further indication that the market was not running out of gas. A total of 744 issues rose and 542 declined this week.

U.S. Government and corporate bonds moved lower this week. Investment quality corporates bucked the trend by posting an advance. So did foreign bonds to a lesser degree. Utilities were down sharply, however, followed by rails and industrials.

Corporate trading mounted to $32,377,500 par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $31,890,000 the previous week and $30,035,000 for the corresponding week in 1957.

PRICE SUPPORTS ARE AT STAKE

Farmers Ballot Monday On Major Crop Controls

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farmers vote in four major referenda Monday. The results could further confuse the issue of how farmers feel about government farm controls.

The balloting will be on the questions of continuing in 1959 present production controls on upland cotton, American-Egyptian cotton, rice and flue-cured tobacco.

These referenda, which will affect farmers throughout the Southern half of the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, come on the heels of one held last month in which growers of corn, the nation's largest single crop, voted to throw off government controls on that grain.

This action was hailed by Secretary of Agriculture Benson and leaders of the American Farm Bureau Federation as an indication that farmers are tired of controls after 25 years of use.

But unless all signs fail, the growers voting Monday will approve the continuation of controls on the four affected crops.

Such a development would seem to contradict the corn election—particularly the interpretation put on it.

But the alternatives in Monday's elections are quite different from those put before corn growers.

The coming elections are loaded in favor of the controls. That was not the case with corn.

Under provisions of farm law, growers must accept controls on cotton, tobacco and rice or else lose heavily in government price supports. If controls are voted by the necessary two-thirds of those voting, the affected crops will be supported between 75 and 90 per cent of parity, depending on the size of surpluses. The larger the surplus, the lower the rate may be within this range.

This year, the cotton control program offers a special production and price support provision. Growers may overplant their allotments by as much as 40 per cent, but accept price supports at 15 per cent of parity less than that offered those who plant within allotments.

In some ways, this provision moves in the direction of grower freedom voted by corn producers.

But if growers reject controls, price supports drop to 50 per cent of parity. Even then, only those farmers who hold production within limits of the proposed controls are eligible for the supports.

This being the case, growers seldom have voted down controls on these crops and are not expected to do so Monday.

But the price support alternative was quite different for corn. Under the old control program, corn grown by farmers complying with acreage planting allotments was eligible for supports between 75 and 90 per cent of parity, also depending on the size of surpluses.

But a rejection of the controls kept price supports alive for all farmers, regardless of what acreage they plant, and at a higher level than provided in the case of the other crops. The support for all corn under the freedom-to-produce program beginning next year will be 90 per cent of the average market price for the three preceding years, but in no case less than 65 per cent of parity.

Hence, there was much greater invitation to vote out controls on corn than is offered for the other crops.

This being the case, approval of marketing quotas on both types of cotton, rice and flue-cured tobacco would not necessarily mean that farmers favored controls as such. Given a more favorable alternative, such as they offered corn producers, they might well vote differently.

Undoubtedly moves will be made in the coming session of Congress to enact legislation that would give growers of these crops—as well as wheat—an opportunity to vote on different alternatives to the present program.

Benson has said he believes producers of most crops would be willing to accept somewhat lower supports if granted freedom to produce as they see fit.

It is his contention that lower prices would help broaden markets and thereby absorb present overproduction. But some farm groups disagree with him.

The National Grance and the National Farmers' Union argue that it is not now possible to expand markets sufficiently to take ail that an unrestricted American agriculture could and would produce. They say there must be management — controls — over production to keep surpluses from pushing farm prices and incomes lower and lower.

What action Congress takes — if it takes any—may be determined in a large measure by the interpretation lawmakers put on this fall's farmer referenda.

ALABAMA PROBE ALARMS

Vote Machinery May Break Down

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—State officials warned Saturday that a breakdown in Alabama's vote registration machinery may result from investigation by the federal Civil Rights Commission into Negro voting rights in this state.

There was a distinct possibility that, in a parallel to public schools closings in Virginia and Arkansas vote registration offices in certain Alabama counties may shut down rather than face civil rights investigation.

Gov. - elect John Patterson, State Atty. Gen. and outspoken states' righter, has indicated the federal investigation may hinder rather than speed Negro vote registration in Alabama.

Patterson predicted the civil rights investigations will make it more difficult to secure registrars to serve for the next four years, especially in central and south Alabama counties where Negroes outnumber whites.

If that happens, Patterson said, voter registration machinery could break down and no one, white or Negro could register to vote.

Registrar boards in Macon and Bullock counties — two of the counties currently under investigation by the commission—ceased to function for months at a time when pressure from complaining Negroes became too great.

Voter registration officials in each of Alabama's 67 counties are appointed by a board composed of the governor, the state auditor and the commissioner of agriculture. The registrars during the Patterson administration will be appointed next September. They serve four years.

Macon County, where Negroes outnumber whites four - to - one and the central target of the commission investigation, already is without a registration board. Chairman E. P. Livingston and Grady Rogers, state representative - elect, resigned Wednesday, just before they were re - subpeaned to appear before the commission hearing next Friday with the county vote records.

Rogers was called before the commission last Tuesday but he refused to answer any questions other than his name, age and occupation. Livingston was not called to the stand as the hearing closed abruptly in the face of Alabama defiance.

The third member of the board died recently.

1959 GOVERNOR'S RACE

Senator Rainach Stays On Fence

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Sen. W. M. Rainach, outspoken voice of segregation in Louisiana, said Saturday it's no secret public pressure is developing for him to line up in the 1959 race for governor.

He hinted the possibility of a segregation ticket, but declined further comment.

"The past four years naturally have brought me into public focus," the Homer senator said in a telephone interview. "Nobody knows better than I do what the right man in the right place the next four years means to our cause."

Rainach, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, serious, hard-working architects of legislation designed as roadblocks to integration, said, "right now, I'm busy with my committee's work, which is non-political. . . . I can't say what I might do in politics."

Segregation leaders now take the view state legislation, while necessary in the fight to help preserve racial segregation, is diminishing in relative importance. The Legislature has waged the main battle, they say.

Skill in enforcing state laws dealing with the racial issue is the next weapon they seek. Rainach's group makes no secret of the fact they regard the way the next governor uses his powers in the coming showdown will be of critical importance.

The federal courts have not set a deadline for integration in New Orleans schools, but that issue is moving through the courts.

The federal civil Rights Commission announced this week it plans to set up a state advisory committee in Louisiana, to keep close watch on vote registration patterns.

To this, Rainach offered a new challenge.

"Louisianians can take the job if they want to, but they can expect an all out attack within the state," he said. "I'd hate to be in their shoes. Actually, I don't' think the civil rights commission can find nine responsible people in Louisiana for its advisory committee."

Rainach, with Rep. John Garrett of Claiborne Parish, stepped early into Louisiana leadership of the segregation cause. Earlier they were legislative whips for a right to work law.

Rainach and his leaders have played important roles in three major state decisions within the last year.

1. Last April, Rainach was a behind-the-scenes factor in the decision of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Assn. to go on record favoring a fight to preserve segregation in public schools. P-TA leaders said this was the first time such a state group endorsed segregation. With 105,000 members it is the largest organization in the state.

2. In the 1958 Legislature, Garrett broke the ranks of anti-tax legislators and helped give Gov. Earl Long a one-cent raise in the natural gas gathering tax for teachers pay. Segregation leaders work closely with education forces.

3. In the recent Democratic State Central Committee move to oust National Committeeman Camille Gravel for his support of civil rights legislation, Rainach was a prime mover. His group formed a coalition with Gov. Long for the step.

But Long and Rainach are not political buddies and never have been.

During that meeting, Gravel challenged Rainach to enter a public race with him in seeking an elective committee post.

Gravel accused Rainach of being a creature of Dist. Atty. Leander Perez of Plaquemines and St. Bernard Parishes, and of plotting a third party to break the grip of the Democratic Party in Louisiana.

Mentioning the Gravel Challenge, which he declined, Rainach said Saturday, "If he still feels that way, I suggest he test his popularity and run for governor."

HALF JOURNEY ABROAD

Cost Of Congress Junkets New High

The outlays hit a new high because of tours by House members to Paris, Hong Kong and points between. Perhaps half of the legislators journeyed abroad. The exact number has never been officially disclosed.

The House members used up $356,493.11 in foreign moneys, nearly three times the $122,062.06 reported the previous year.

Senators spent $131,791.96, a drop from the $169,185 of the year before. The total $488,285.07 for fiscal 1958—the year ended—was reported by the House Administration and Senate Appropriations committees.

The figures, subject to revision depending on what refunds the congressmen turn in, list the congressional committee travel spending abroad out of counterpart funds. Counterpart funds are foreign currencies acquired by the United States through foreign aid programs.

The totals do not include dollar spending for foreign tours, nor the cost of free rides for lawmakers provided by federal agencies. Neither do they specify what any individual congressman spent—a tight secret unless the individual himself is willing to say.

Both House and Senate last year passed legislation aimed at curbing over-free spending on what the congressmen themselves often call junkets, but the main provisions of both measures were knocked out in House-Senate conference.

The reports Friday did give spending by committees. The House Government Operations Committee topped the spenders with a $62,093.08 total in 23 currencies around the world from Austrian schillings to Vietnamese piastres.

The biggest committee expenditure in the Senate, as expected, was the Foreign Relations Committee with a travel cost total of $44,714.06 in 44 different foreign currencies during fiscal 1958.

There were several House committees with heavier overseas spending. The Judiciary Committee used up $58,047.03 in 19 currencies, the Foreign Affairs Committee $48,411.26 in 33 currencies and the Commerce Committee $46,618.61 in 20 currencies.

THIS WEEK IN BUSINESS

Upsurge In Yule Buying Puts New Zip In Economy

By WALTER BREEDE JR.

NEW YORK (AP)—A vigorous upsurge in Christmas buying put new zip in the nation's economy this week.

But for the nation as a whole the outlook was for a 3 to 4 per cent rise over last year's Christmas volume.

Electric power consumption climbed to a record high of more than 13 billion kilowatthours as the main streets and shopping centers of America turned on the Christmas lights.

Detroit contributed to the winter upturn. Auto production again topped the 140,000 mark and if Chrysler Corp. plants hadn't been hobbled by strikes, the total would have reached 150,000. Chevrolet and Rambler set new production highs.

Steel output was the highest since October.

Likewise encouraging were the latest figures on jobs and paychecks. Unemployment held steady from mid-October to mid-November instead of showing the usual seasonal rise. Increased hiring by industry offset cold weather cutbacks in farming and construction. Average weekly earnings of factory workers punched to an all-time high.

Stock sales totaled 19,094,914 shares in the latest week compared to 17,565,462 in the previous week and 11,487,210 shares in the same 1957 week.

Bond sales had a par value of $32,377,500 in the latest week, $31,890,000 in the previous week and $30,035,000 in the corresponding week a year ago.

The news about employment was good for just about everybody except the 3,800,000 Americans who wanted work and couldn't get it. Unemployment was less than 3,200,000 a year ago.

College students who expect to graduate next June may be offered slightly higher starting salaries than those who got their sheepskins this year. And jobs should be more plentiful for them.

So says Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., after a survey of business hiring intentions. Starting salaries will run about two per cent higher, averaging $480 a month for engineers, $422 for accountants, $419 for salesmen and $413 for business trainees.

How does 1959 look to the leaders of U.S. business? Ten of the nation's top corporate executives made their views known this week at a forum sponsored by the First National Bank of Chicago. The consensus: It will be a good year in many ways, but it will lack the heady stimulus of a full-fledged boom in capital spending. Here are some typical comments:

Charles H. Kellstadt, president, Sears; Roebuck & Co.: The new year should see a continued but gradual upturn from the 1957-58 recession. By mid-year, the rate of recovery may slow down Prices may go higher.

Willie D. Gale, chairman, Commonwealth Edison Co.: the utility industry in the first six months of 1959 should smash all prior records.

Less hopeful was H.C. Turner Jr., president of Turner Construction Co., who declared: "I am not as optimistic as many of the published reports and I do not anticipate boom conditions in construction."

Briefly over the business scene: American Motors Corp. will spend 10 million dollars boosting the capacity of its Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., plants. The company says the factories can't keep up with demand for Ramblers . . . Khrushchev touched off a ripple of selling in the stock market this week . . . . U.S. government statisticians say businessmen have cut back previously announced expansion plans. . . . Starting Monday you'll be able to buy voting stock in the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.—The "A. & P."—for the first time in the big food chain's 99-year-history. . . . Pipeline companies are happy about the so-called "Memphis Case" decision which gives them greater leeway in boosting natural gas rates. . . . Output of the nation's mines and factories increased two per cent last month. . . . Remember the hula hoop craze? It's reaching boom proportions in France. Frenchmen are buying 20,000 hula hoops a day. And three buyers out of four are grown-ups.

Natural Gas Facing State Tax Problem

HOUSTON (AP) —Natural gas companies won a major victory before the Supreme Court this week but they may face a big tax problem after the Legislature goes into session next month.

The state faces a huge deficit and there is talk of revival of efforts to bolster revenues by taxing Texas gas being exported to consumers in other states. A similar 1951 effort was knocked down in 1954 by the Supreme Court.

The court this week reversed a lower court ruling that prohibited major transmission lines from boosting rates without customer approval of the increases. Instead, the Supreme Court upheld the old system under which higher rates can be collected, subject to refund, pending the outcome of Federal Power Commission investigations on justification of the increases.

Rapid expansion of several trunklines is expected to result from the new ruling. Several hundred million dollars in expansion projects were cancelled after the Nov. 21, 1957, customer approval ruling by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

The new order prompted no sudden boom in pipeline pipe orders but steel manufacturers joined gas industry spokesmen in optimistic predictions. Some steel mills specializing in fabrication of such pipe have been operating far below capacity in recent weeks.

Many Texas legislators have been searching for years for a method to tax exported gas without placing an additional tax burden on the Texas producer. Details have not been announced but some legislators report they believe they have found an answer that would withstand court tests.

The 1951 effort meant an income of about one million dollars a month to the state but about 30 million had to be refunded after the Supreme Court struck down the gathering tax on Feb. 8, 1954.

In appealing, attorneys for the Michigan-Wisconsin and Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line companies argued taxation without representation.

"Since the burden of the tax ultimately will be borne by those persons in other states who consume the gas, the statute enables the state of Texas to achieve the politically popular result of raising revenue at the ultimate expense of citizens of other states," the appellants said.

The Supreme Court agreed. The unanimous ruling also held that the tax impeded the free flow of trade between the states.

After this setback, the Legislature boosted the state's gross production tax on natural gas from 5.72 per cent to 7 per cent. Revenue from the tax for the fiscal 1958 is estimated at $41,971,000.

The tax money Texas had to refund was dwarfed by the rate hike collections the gas companies would have had to refund if the customer approval ruling had been upheld. The collections have been estimated at from 200 to 250 million dollars and the companies now will have to refund only that portion the FPC finds to be unjustified after rising costs, profit levels and similar matters are taken into consideration.

Plus Signs Few In Grain Futures Weekly Trading

CHICAGO (AP) — A few plus signs were sprinkled through grain futures prices on the Board of Trade for the week but the trend generally was decidedly downward.

The few gains mainly were in small fractions of a cent while the declines ran to around three cents at the extremes. December corn was the steadiest contract on the board.

Brokers generally were surprised that selling of wheat in the southwest by both producers and elevator interests continued into this week at a rather liberal rate. Some of the grades sold at prices as much as 10 cents a bushel under the government loan figure.

Although commercial stocks in Chicago have been declining, the fact that exporters and some processors could obtain supplies direct from country stations had a bearish effect on the futures.

Colder weather was believed to be responsible to a large extent for the reduced grain movements but the major reason perhaps still was the fact that nearly all corn is in good storable condition and the growers are in sufficiently strong financial position to withhold the grain until the new tax year.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1⅝-3 cents lower than a week ago, December $1.92⅝-¾; corn ⅛ higher to 1⅜ lower, December old type contract $1.14⅝-¾; oats ⅛ higher to ⅜ lower, December 65⅝; rye 2-3⅛ cents lower, December $1.29¾-⅞, and soybeans 1¼ higher to 1⅞ lower, January $2.16⅜-¼.

NO SUNDAY EDITIONS

N.Y. Newspapers Still Strikebound

NEW YORK (UPI)—A four-day deliverers' strike plunged New York City Saturday into a week-end without newspapers. The stoppage prevented publication of nearly 8 million Sunday papers that would have contained the largest volume of news and advertising of the year.

Efforts continued to halt the stoppage that hit the newspapers at the height of the Christmas advertising season.

Representatives of both sides resumed negotiations Saturday but there was little chance for the presses to start rolling before Monday, even if a settlement were reached.

Officials of the Publishers Association of New York City and the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union failed to reach an agreement in renewed talks Friday.

The union spurned a management demand for a new rank-and-file vote on a contract that was accepted by union negotiators last Sunday night and then turned down by a vote of only 35 per cent of the union's 4,500 members Tuesday night.

The publishers said the outcome might be different in a new ballot if a majority of the union members were to participate.

The truck drivers and other delivery workers who distribute newspapers throughout the nation's most concentrated news consumption area originally walked out at midnight Dec. 7, when their contract expired.

They returned to work Monday after negotiators accepted a contract offer. But then they struck again shortly after 10 p.m. Tuesday after members voted 877 to 772 against the proposed agreement.

The negotiators met separately with federal mediators twice Friday and also held two joint sessions.

During that time, the union negotiators accepted the publishers' wage offer of a $7 package wage increase over a two-year period, with $4 being paid now and $3 next year.

But then the union resubmitted demands for a 35-hour week in place of the present 40-hour week and an additional paid holiday.

The drivers' current basic wage is about $103 a week.

Sunday's papers would have been the fattest of the year, with a peak load of Christmas advertising aimed at getting shoppers out during the last full week before Christmas.

A NUN

Surprise Opens Mouths To Dentist

Cause of the surprise is a nun . . . a nun who is also a dentist.

The patients are not prepared to find a nun in full habit bending over them saying: "Open just a little wider, please."

Sister Mary Christina is a member of the Missionary Sisters of the Society of Mary and the first of the order to become a dentist — and an excellent one, clinic officials say.

She also is the only nun to become a member of the Massachusetts Dental Society.

Sister Mary Christina, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Tilk of Menomonee Falls, Wis., elected to take up dentistry after taking her vows in 1951.

Her internship at Riseman ends next June when she plans to go to one of the Marist Society's Southwest Pacific Stations in the Solomons, Samoa or Tonga to set up a dental clinic.

"When I'm not doing dentistry I feel I'm missing something," she says.

"Going to the Pacific will let me help people."

Balloonists Send Radio Message Saying 'All Well'

LONDON (AP)—A British amateur radio operator said he received a message from the balloon Small World at 5 p.m. Saturday reporting "all well."

The balloon left Santa Cruz de Tenerife, Canary Islands, Friday for a trip across the Atlantic with four persons aboard.

British radio operators said earlier Saturday they had not received scheduled reports from the balloon but several operators in the Canary Islands said they had picked up messages that everything was fine.

Then late Saturday the British ham reported he had received the "all well" report.

"The balloon gave its position as 320 miles west of the Canary Islands," the operator said. "It reported fresh winds were blowing and all was well."

Stock Prices Climb, Just Miss Record

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market tried for another record high this week but missed narrowly.

Midweek saw a vigorous upward drive following some fairly sluggish consolidation the week before. The averages might have hit a new peak, despite profit-taking, if not for the heightening Berlin crisis which led to nervous selling on Thursday.

The market was at its best in Wednesday when the second biggest daily jump of the year was achieved. This session was marked by solid gains of blue chip stocks as well as continued activity in secondary issues. The move served notice that the big institutional investors thought prices were not going much lower, not for the present, anyway.

This big leap was enough to put the market ahead on the week and chalk up the second straight weekly rise.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose $2.50 to $206.90. At its best closing high on Wednesday the AP average stood at $207.50, only 20 cents below the record of $207.70 reached Nov. 20.

Weekly turnover of 19,094,914 shares was the biggest in three weeks and a further indication that the market was not running out of gas. A total of 744 issues rose and 542 declined this week.

U.S. Government and corporate bonds moved lower this week. Investment quality corporates bucked the trend by posting an advance. So did foreign bonds to a lesser degree Utilities were down sharply, however, followed by rails and industrials.

Corporate trading mounted to $32,377,500 par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $31,890,000 the previous week and $30,035,000 for the corresponding week in 1957.

PRICE SUPPORTS ARE AT STAKE

Farmers Ballot Monday On Major Crop Controls

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farmers vote in four major referenda Monday. The results could further confuse the issue of how farmers feel about government farm controls.

The balloting will be on the questions of continuing in 1959 present production controls on upland cotton, American-Egyptian cotton, rice and flue - cured tobacco.

These referenda, which will affect farmers throughout the Southern half of the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, come on the heels of one held last month in which growers of corn, the nation's largest single crop, voted to throw off government controls on that grain.

This action was hailed by Secretary of Agriculture Benson and leaders of the American Farm Bureau Federation as an indication that farmers are tired of controls after 25 years of use.

But unless all signs fail, the growers voting Monday will approve the continuation of controls on the four affected crops.

Such a development would seem to contradict the corn election—particularly the interpretation put on it.

The coming elections are loaded in favor of the controls. That was not the case with corn.

Under provisions of farm law, growers must accept controls on cotton, tobacco and rice or else lose heavily in government price supports. If controls are voted by the necessary two-thirds of those voting, the affected crops will be supported between 75 and 90 per cent of parity, depending on the size of surpluses. The larger the surplus, the lower the rate may be within this range.

This year, the cotton control program offers a special production and price support provision. Growers may overplant their allotments by as much as 40 per cent, but accept price supports at 15 per cent of parity less than that offered those who plant within allotments.

In some ways, this provision moves in the direction of grower freedom voted by corn producers.

But if growers reject controls, price supports drop to 50 per cent of parity. Even then, only those farmers who hold production within limits of the proposed controls are eligible for the supports.

This being the case, growers seldom have voted down controls on these crops and are not expected to do so Monday.

But the price support alternative was quite different for corn. Under the old control program, corn grown by farmers complying with acreage planting allotments was eligible for supports between 75 and 90 per cent of parity, also depending on the size of surpluses.

But a rejection of the controls kept price supports alive for all farmers, regardless of what acreage they plant, and at a higher level than provided in the case of the other crops. The support for all corn under the freedom-to-produce program beginning next year will be 90 per cent of the average market price for the three preceding years, but in no case less than 65 per cent of parity.

Hence, there was much greater invitation to vote out controls on corn than is offered for the other crops.

This being the case, approval of marketing quotas on both types of cotton, rice and flue-cured tobacco would not necessarily mean that farmers favored controls as such. Given a more favorable alternative, such as they offered corn producers, they might well vote differently.

Undoubtedly moves will be made in the coming session of Congress to enact legislation that would give growers of these crops —as well as wheat—an opportunity to vote on different alternatives to the present program.

Benson has said he believes producers of most crops would be willing to accept somewhat lower supports if granted freedom to produce as they see fit.

It is his contention that lower prices would help broaden markets and thereby absorb present overproduction. But some farm groups disagree with him.

The National Grance and the National Farmers' Union argue that it is not now possible to expand markets sufficiently to take all that an unrestricted American agriculture could and would produce. They say there must be management — controls — over production to keep surpluses from pushing farm prices and incomes lower and lower.

What action Congress takes — if it takes any—may be determined in a large measure by the interpretation lawmakers put on this fall's farmer referenda.

ALABAMA PROBE ALARMS

Vote Machinery May Break Down

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—State officials warned Saturday that a breakdown in Alabama's vote registration machinery may result from investigation by the federal Civil Rights Commission into Negro voting rights in this state.

There was a distinct possibility that, in a parallel to public schools closings in Virginia and Arkansas vote registration offices in certain Alabama counties may shut down rather than face civil rights investigation.

Gov. - elect John Patterson, State Atty. Gen. and outspoken states' righter, has indicated the federal investigation may hinder rather than speed Negro vote registration in Alabama.

Patterson predicted the civil rights investigations will make it more difficult to secure registrars to serve for the next four years, especially in central and south Alabama counties where Negroes outnumber whites.

If that happens, Patterson said, voter registration machinery could break down and no one, white or Negro could register to vote.

Registrar boards in Macon and Bullock counties — two of the counties currently under investigation by the commission—ceased to function for months at a time when pressure from complaining Negroes became too great.

Voter registration officials in each of Alabama's 67 counties are appointed by a board composed of the governor, the state auditor and the commissioner of agriculture. The registrars during the Patterson administration will be appointed next September. They serve four years.

Macon County, where Negroes outnumber whites four - to - one and the central target of the commission investigation, already is without a registration board. Chairman E. P. Livingston and Grady Rogers, state representative - elect, resigned Wednesday, just before they were re - subpeaned to appear before the commission hearing next Friday with the county vote records.

Rogers was called before the commission last Tuesday but he refused to answer any questions other than his name, age and occupation. Livingston was not called to the stand as the hearing closed abruptly in the face of Alabama defiance.

The third member of the board died recently.

1959 GOVERNOR'S RACE

Senator Rainach Stays On Fence

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Sen. W. M. Rainach, outspoken voice of segregation in Louisiana, said Saturday it's no secret public pressure is developing for him to line up in the 1959 race for governor.

He hinted the possibility of a segregation ticket, but declined further comment.

"The past four years naturally have brought me into public focus," the Homer senator said in a telephone interview. "Nobody knows better than I do what the right man in the right place the next four years means to our cause."

Rainach, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, serious, hard-working architects of legislation designed as roadblocks to integration, said, "right now, I'm busy with my committee's work, which is non-political. . . . I can't say what I might do in politics."

Segregation leaders now take the view state legislation, while necessary in the fight to help preserve racial segregation, is diminishing in relative importance. The Legislature has waged the main battle, they say.

Skill in enforcing state laws dealing with the racial issue is the next weapon they seek. Rainach's group makes no secret of the fact they regard the way the next governor uses his powers in the coming showdown will be of critical importance.

The federal courts have not set a deadline for integration in New Orleans schools, but that issue is moving through the courts.

The federal civil Rights Commission announced this week it plans to set up a state advisory committee in Louisiana, to keep close watch on vote registration patterns.

To this, Rainach offered a new challenge.

"Louisianians can take the job if they want to, but they can expect an all out attack within the state," he said. "I'd hate to be in their shoes. Actually, I don't' think the civil rights commission can find nine responsible people in Louisiana for its advisory committee."

Rainach, with Rep. John Garrett of Claiborne Parish, stepped early into Louisiana leadership of the segregation cause. Earlier they were legislative whips for a right to work law.

Rainach and his leaders have played important roles in three major state decisions within the last year.

1. Last April, Rainach was a behind-the-scenes factor in the decision of the Louisiana Parent-Teacher Assn. to go on record favoring a fight to preserve segregation in public schools. P-TA leaders said this was the first time such a state group endorsed segregation. With 105,000 members it is the largest organization in the state.

2. In the 1958 Legislature, Garrett broke the ranks of anti-tax legislators and helped give Gov. Earl Long a one-cent raise in the natural gas gathering tax for teachers pay. Segregation leaders work closely with education forces.

3. In the recent Democratic State Central Committee move to oust National Committeeman Camille Gravel for his support of civil rights legislation, Rainach was a prime mover. His group formed a coalition with Gov. Long for the step.

But Long and Rainach are not political buddies and never have been.

During that meeting, Gravel challenged Rainach to enter a public race with him in seeking an elective committee post.

Gravel accused Rainach of being a creature of Dist. Atty. Leander Perez of Plaquemines and St. Bernard Parishes, and of plotting a third party to break the grip of the Democratic Party in Louisiana.

Mentioning the Gravel Challenge, which he declined, Rainach said Saturday, "If he still feels that way, I suggest he test his popularity and run for governor."

HALF JOURNEY ABROAD

Cost Of Congress Junkets New High

The outlays hit a new high because of tours by House members to Paris, Hong Kong and points between. Perhaps half of the legislators journeyed abroad. The exact number has never been officially disclosed.

The House members used up $356,493.11 in foreign moneys, nearly three times the $122,062.06 reported the previous year.

Senators spent $131,791.96, a drop from the $169,185 of the year before. The total $488,285.07 for fiscal 1958—the year ended—was reported by the House Administration and Senate Appropriations committees.

The figures, subject to revision depending on what refunds the congressmen turn in, list the congressional committee travel spending abroad out of counterpart funds. Counterpart funds are foreign currencies acquired by the United States through foreign aid programs.

The totals do not include dollar spending for foreign tours, nor the cost of free rides for lawmakers provided by federal agencies. Neither do they specify what any individual congressman spent—a tight secret unless the individual himself is willing to say.

Both House and Senate last year passed legislation aimed at curbing over-free spending on what the congressmen themselves often call junkets, but the main provisions of both measures were knocked out in House-Senate conference.

The reports Friday did give spending by committees. The House Government Operations Committee topped the spenders with a $62,093.08 total in 23 currencies around the world from Austrian schillings to Vietnamese piastres.

The biggest committee expenditure in the Senate, as expected, was the Foreign Relations Committee with a travel cost total of $44,714.06 in 44 different foreign currencies during fiscal 1958.

There were several House committees with heavier overseas spending. The Judiciary Committee used up $58,047.03 in 19 currencies, the Foreign Affairs Committee $48,411.26 in 33 currencies and the Commerce Committee $46,618.61 in 20 currencies.

PHANTOM OF FORESTS

Patrol Seeking Elusive Slayer

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) —They call him the phantom of the forests.

It's been four years since Luther Musselwhite is known to have been in Mississippi, but the elusive killer is still number one on the highway patrol's most wanted list.

That Musselwhite has eluded authorities this long is credited to his World War II experience as a Marine jungle fighter.

Judge Sebe Dale of Columbia, who sentenced Musselwhite to death, remembers his crime as "the most brutal murder that has ever come before me in my judicial experience."

Musselwhite was working as a service station attendant in Columbia shortly after World War II. During a drinking session at a fishing camp he got into an argument with 70-year-old Virgil Price, the camp operator.

Witnesses testified that Musselwhite, then in his late 20's, unmercifully beat the elderly man for two solid hours, dashing his face with water and cold beer to revive him when he lapsed into unconsciousness, only to continue the vicious beating which proved fatal.

Musselwhite pulled a death row hunger strike shortly before his scheduled execution and, after a lengthy hassle, the Supreme Court ruled that although he was sane at the time of the murder—he became insane when the threat of execution was imminent.

The execution was postponed and Musselwhite was moved to a state mental hospital until such time that doctors might find him sane enough to execute.

But the stocky Musselwhite did not wait around. On the night of Oct. 16, 1954 he and four other "criminally insane" patients cut a hole in a hospital fence and escaped.

Officers quickly rounded up the other four men but Musselwhite took to the woods and managed to elude a huge posse as he slowly made his way through the forests to the Alabama line, almost 100 miles east of the hospital.

Although the officers found fingerprints and other signs of him in several places, he actually is known to have been seen only twice during the six weeks period he is believed to have been in Mississippi.

Two boys on a hunting trip came across him seated on a log munching a sandwich. A housewife entered her home one morning to find him rustling up some breakfast in her kitchen. He fled back into the forest.

It was later determined that he had broken into several homes en route to Alabama. He would usually eat and shave, leaving the dishes washed and the razor clean.

He had a sweet tooth and always helped himself to any pear preserves he found on pantry shelves. He generally stole only small amounts of food although he once took 75 pounds of meat from a frozen food locker.

Officers have also determined that he would lurk in the forests and watch a home for hours, sometimes days, before sneaking in while everyone was away.

Officers believe the last actual sighting of Musselwhite reported to the highway patrol was in Marengo county, Ala, in March, 1955. Several residents reported that a "very thin" man was lurking in the woods, coming out only at night to ask for food. An officer reported "we believe that the subject in question is Musselwhite and will be apprehended very shortly."

But that officer, like hundreds of Mississippi lawmen, soon learned of Musselwhite's uncanny ability to disappear into the woods.

LONDON (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein has agreed to retreat. He gave up his regular time next Friday on his BBC series recounting World War II battles so the government-run TV could show a Eurovision relay of soprano Maria Callas in Act II of Tosca at the Paris Opera.

TOKYO (AP) — Pyongyang radio reports a touring Iraqi delegation and the Red North Korean Peace Committee have signed a pledge to establish diplomatic relations and exchange economic and cultural groups.

LONDON (AP) — The way to beat a traffic jam is to pedal right over it. That's the prospect held forth by Moscow radio in announcing Anatoly Ivanyuta of Riga, Latvia, has designed a model foot-powered aircycle capable of 37 to 43 or so m.p.h. in the air — "suitable for sports and for transport."

WINNIPEG (AP) — A dealer here reports he paid more than $2,000 for a rare 1921 Canadian half dollar found by transit worker Frank Klos in an old piggy bank. Collector friends of Klos recognized it as one of the 12 so-called "Glamour Coins" known to exist. Dealer Somer James, the buyer, said only a few of the 1921s were released after discovery that plenty of 1919 and 1920 coins were in circulation.

CAPETOWN (AP) — Director R.A.W. Compton of the South African Museum has found some animal footprints reckoned at 150 million years old. Casts have been made of the fossilized tracks of eight animals belonging to three groups — dinosaur, mammalian reptile and pseudosuchian — and are being transferred to fibre glass. They were in a dried riverbed near Leribe, Basutoland, and exposed by erosion.

TORONTO (AP) — The million members of the United Church of Canada are being asked to fast for one day before Christmas and contribute savings to a half million dollar fund for the needy around the world.

PHANTOM OF FORESTS

Patrol Seeking Elusive Slayer

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) —They call him the phantom of the forests.

It's been four years since Luther Musselwhite is known to have been in Mississippi, but the elusive killer is still number one on the highway patrol's most wanted list.

That Musselwhite has eluded authorities this long is credited to his World war II experience as a Marine jungle fighter.

Judge Sebe Dale of Columbia, who sentenced Musselwhite to death, remembers his crime as "the most brutal murder that has ever come before me in my judicial experience."

Musselwhite was working as a service station attendant in Columbia shortly after World War II. During a drinking session at a fishing camp he got into an argument with 70-year-old Virgil Price, the camp operator.

Witnesses testified that Musselwhite, then in his late 20's, unmercifully beat the elderly man for two solid hours, dashing his face with water and cold beer to revive him when he lapsed into unconsciousness, only to continue the vicious beating which proved fatal.

Musselwhite pulled a death row hunger strike shortly before his scheduled execution and, after a lengthy hassle, the Supreme Court ruled that-although he was sane at the time of the murder—he became insane when the threat of execution was imminent.

The execution was postponed and Musselwhite was moved to a state mental hospital until such time that doctors might find him sane enough to execute.

But the stocky Musselwhite did not wait around. On the night of Oct. 16, 1954 he and four other "criminally insane' patients cut a hole in a hospital fence and escaped.

Officers quickly rounded up the other four men but Musselwhite took to the woods and managed to elude a huge posse as he slowly made his way through the forests to the Alabama line, almost 100 miles east of the hospital.

Although the officers found fingerprints and other signs of him in several places, he was actually known to have been seen only twice during the six weeks period he is believed to have been in Mississippi.

Two boys on a hunting trip came across him seated on a log munching a sandwich. A housewife entered her home one morning to find him rustling up some breakfast in her kitchen. He fled back into the forest.

It was later determined that he had broken into several homes en route to Alabama. He would usually eat and shave, leaving the dishes washed and the razor clean.

He had a sweet tooth and always helped himself to any pear preserves he found on pantry shelves. He generally stole only small amounts of food although he once took 75 pounds of meat from a frozen food locker.

Officers have also determined that he would lurk in the forests and watch a home for hours, sometimes days, before sneaking in while everyone was away.

Officers believe the last actual sighting of Musselwhite reported to the highway patrol was in Marengo county, Ala, in March, 1955. Several residents reported that a "very thin" man was lurking in the woods, coming out only at night to ask for food. An officer reported "we believe that the subject in question is Musselwhite and will be apprehended very shortly."

But that officer, like hundreds of Mississippi lawmen, soon learned of Musselwhite's uncanny ability to disappear into the woods.

World News At A Glance

LONDON (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Alamein has agreed to retreat. He gave up his regular time next Friday on his BBC series recounting World War II battles so the government-run TV could show a Eurovision relay of soprano Maria Callas in Act II of Tosca at the Paris Opera.

TOKYO (AP) — Pyongyang radio reports a touring Iraqi delegation and the Red North Korean Peace Committee have signed a pledge to establish diplomatic relations and exchange economic and cultural groups.

LONDON (AP) — The way to beat a traffic jam is to pedal right over it. That's the prospect held forth by Moscow radio in announcing Anatoly Ivanyuta of Riga, Latvia, has designed a model foot-powered aircycle capable of 37 to 43 or so m.p.h. in the air — "suitable for sports and for transport."

WINNIPEG (AP) — A dealer here reports he paid more than $2,000 for a rare 1921 Canadian half dollar found by transit worker Frank Klos in an old piggy bank. Collector friends of Klos recognized it as one of the 12 so-called "Glamour Coins" known to exist. Dealer Somer James, the buyer, said only a few of the 1921s were released after discovery that plenty of 1919 and 1920 coins were in circulation.

CAPETOWN (AP) — Director R.A.W. Compton of the South African Museum has found some animal footprints reckoned at 150 million years old. Casts have been made of the fossilized tracks of eight animals belonging to three groups — dinosaur, mammalian reptile and pseudosuchian — and are being transferred to fibre glass. They were in a dried riverbed near Leribe, Basutoland, and exposed by erosion.

TORONTO (AP) — The million members of the United Church of Canada are being asked to fast for one day before Christmas and contribute savings to a half million dollar fund for the needy around the world.

BUZ SAWYER
Featuring His Pal Rosco Sweeney
by Roy Crane
THIS WAY, IZZARD!
OBOY! AT LAST YOU'RE LETTING ME OUT OF JAIL, EH?
QUITE THE CONTRARY! YOU WERE ARRESTED AT THE SCENE OF THE ROBBERY. WE'VE FOUND YOUR FINGERPRINTS ON THE SAFE. DO YOU DENY TAKING THE MONEY?
OF COURSE NOT!
BUT THOSE YEGGS HAD GUNS ON ME. THEY FORCED ME TO OPEN THE SAFE. FORTUNATELY I USED MY WITS TO DISTRACT THEIR ATTENTION AND HID THE MONEY IN A WASTEBASKET TO PREVENT IT FROM BEING STOLEN.
BALONEY, IZZARD! WE SEARCHED THE WASTEBASKETS AND THEY'RE EMPTY! THE CONTENTS WERE ALL BURNED.
BURNED? B-B-BUT SURELY THERE'RE SOME CHARRED PIECES LEFT!
OH, YES! BUT I'VE GOT IT ALL FIGURED OUT. YOU WERE GOING TO DOUBLE-CROSS YOUR PALS AND KEEP ALL THE MONEY YOURSELF.
NO, NO, NO! I TELL YOU I'M INNOCENT!
THEY FORCED ME TO OPEN THAT SAFE!
JONES, BRING IN THE OTHER SUSPECTS!
IS IT TRUE YOU FORCED IZZARD TO AID YOU IN ROBBING THE SAFE?
NUTS! IT WAS HIM FORCED US!
HE THOUGHT UP THE WHOLE THING.
WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA? WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL THE TRUTH?
YOU CRAZY? HAVE 'EM HANG A KIDNAPPIN' RAP ON ME AND LEFTY AND SEND US UP FOR LIFE?
WELL, DEAR ME! I ALWAYS THOUGHT MY FEATS OF MAGIC COULD GET ME OUT OF ANYTHING, BUT THIS COULD PROVE MOMENTARILY EMBARRASSING.

The PHANTOM
By Lee Falk and Wilson McCoy
JUNGLE FOLK - SEE THIS FALSE PLANT MADE OF CLOTH - THE WITCH DOCTORS OF THE MASSAU INSIDE - MAKING IT MOVE AS THO IT WERE REAL.
THE 'VICTIMS' WERE SLAIN BY THE WITCH DOCTORS - SO THE TRIBES WOULD CONTINUE TO FEAR AND PAY TRIBUTE TO THE MASSAU - CHEATS - KILLERS - DESTROY THE MASSAU!
AS THE ENRAGED JUNGLE - FOLK MOVE AGAINST THE MASSAU!
STOP! THE MASSAU WILL MAKE GOOD TO YOU ALL THEY'VE STOLEN FROM YOU!
YOU CHIEFS, WHOSE TRIBES HAVE BEEN DEFRAUDED, WILL JUDGE THE MASSAU, AND DECREE PUNISHMENT!
IT WILL BE DONE, O GHOST WHO WALKS!
UNLESS YOU MASSAU WANT THE WHOLE JUNGLE TO MOVE IN ON YOU AND TEAR YOU APART - OBEY!
IT WILL BE DONE, O GHOST WHO WALKS.
OOH - HE'S MAGNIFICENT! HE - HE'S COMING TOWARD US! W-WHAT'S HE GOING TO DO - TO US?
I'M NOT QUITE SURE. WE'LL SOON KNOW -

THIS WAY, IZZARD!
OBOY! AT LAST YOU'RE LETTING ME OUT OF JAIL, EH?
QUITE THE CONTRARY! YOU WERE ARRESTED AT THE SCENE OF THE ROBBERY. WE'VE FOUND YOUR FINGERPRINTS ON THE SAFE. DO YOU DENY TAKING THE MONEY?
OF COURSE NOT!
BUT THOSE YEGGS HAD GUNS ON ME. THEY FORCED ME TO OPEN THE SAFE. FORTUNATELY I USED MY WITS TO DISTRACT THEIR ATTENTION AND HID THE MONEY IN A WASTEBASKET TO PREVENT IT FROM BEING STOLEN.
BALONEY, IZZARD! WE SEARCHED THE WASTEBASKETS AND THEY'RE EMPTY! THE CONTENTS WERE ALL BURNED.
BURNED? B-B-BUT SURELY THERE'RE SOME CHARRED PIECES LEFT!
OH, YES! BUT I'VE GOT IT ALL FIGURED OUT. YOU WERE GOING TO DOUBLE-CROSS YOUR PALS AND KEEP ALL THE MONEY YOURSELF.
NO, NO, NO! I TELL YOU I'M INNOCENT!
THEY FORCED ME TO OPEN THAT SAFE!
JONES, BRING IN THE OTHER SUSPECTS!
IS IT TRUE YOU FORCED IZZARD TO AID YOU IN ROBBING THE SAFE?
NUTS! IT WAS HIM FORCED US!
HE THOUGHT UP THE WHOLE THING.
WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA? WHY DIDN'T YOU TELL THE TRUTH?
YOU CRAZY? HAVE 'EM HANG A KIDNAPPIN' RAP ON ME AND LEFTY AND SEND US UP FOR LIFE?
WELL, DEAR ME! I ALWAYS THOUGHT MY FEATS OF MAGIC COULD GET ME OUT OF ANYTHING, BUT THIS COULD PROVE MOMENTARILY EMBARRASSING.
